SUGGESTS CAGE FOR TIGER

Two Large Audiences Cheer Hardest Broadsides He Has Aimed at Foes of Primary Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, May 21.—Gov. Sulzer delivered a telling blow when he carried his direct nominations fight into this Senatorial district to-night. Before an audience which jammed every corner of the Van Curler Opera House he assailed Senator Loren H. White, who voted against the Sulzer bill at the regular session, and virtually read him out of the party. He denounced the party bosses without stint, and for the first time in his direct primaries campaign he referred to Charles F. Murphy by name.

He mentioned Barnes and Murphy in the same sentence. Barnes he referred to as "Boss" Barnes. He referred to the Tammany leader as Mr. Murphy at all times, but there was a tone of sarcasm in his voice every time he mentioned the New York leader's name. He did another odd thing that caused some comment. When he spoke about the Democrats he referred to them always as "they."

This is a new departure. Some believe it may mean an epoch in his direct nominations fight. In his first address here to-night he gave a new name to his fight for the abolition of the State Convention. It is no longer the Sulzer Direct Nominations bill; it is the "People's" bill, just as it is the "People's House."

"I call it the People's bill," said the Governor, "because the people everywhere seem to be for it. With the exception of a few bosses and a political editor here and there whose paper is controlled by the special interests, everybody seems to want it. They, like the bosses, want the State Convention retained, and would have us believe that the world will come to an end if we do away with it."

The Governor said he could recall a time when several United States Senators, who were not amenable to their constituencies, scoffed when popular disfavor was threatened.

"They are all out of the Senate now," he exclaimed. "If that happens to the United States Senate, what do you think will happen to the apology of a Senate we have in this State?

Talks to Vaudeville Crowd.

"I am told by the bosses that I can have everything in my bill, except the abolition of the State convention. I have answered them—there will be no compromise. They want to keep the State convention because they declare that they are the only ones who have brains enough to select a candidate for Governor. In proof of their superior ability, they point to the fact that a convention picked me. Well, it took them a long time to pick me out."

The audience roared. Mr. Sulzer grinned.

"They say they are sorry now," he said, when the laughter had subsided and then there was another explosion. The Governor began to analyze his bill. He said the Bosses were busy misrepresenting his measure.

"You have heard of the cuttle-fish," said he. "He muddies the water; he does it to get away. Well, the Bosses are doing the cuttle-fish act now.

"Who dares to challenge my bill?" he fairly roared. "Any one who does is an enemy of the State, an enemy of the people, an enemy of the hopes of every one. I tried to get the Democratic Legislators to keep their faith with the people. I pleaded with them. What did they do? They dumped the Blauvelt bill on me. I dumped it back on them so fast that it made their heads swim, and with a message so scathing that it burned in under their thick cuticles and is still burning, burning like the fires below."

After his speech at the opera house Gov. Sulzer addressed another big meeting at the Mohawk Theatre. There, too, he was warmly received and renewed his attack on the Bosses.

At the Mohawk Theatre a vaudeville show was in progress, and the Governor's speech was sandwiched between two acts. Half the audience arose when the Governor said. "All those opposed to Senator White will please stand up."

Nominally, this is hostile territory, and Mr. Sulzer came with his war paint on and prepared for fast and furious fighting, but he got a welcome of spontaneous warmth from the moment his motor car reached the city. A large crowd cheered him in front of the Edison Hotel, where he was to have had an informal reception. Mr. Sulzer was a little late, and suggested that this be abandoned.

"Let us fight first and have our fun afterward," said he. Immediately the local non-partisan reception committee sent out and got some automobiles for the Governor and his party. A brass band led the way to the Opera House. Redfire illuminated the way and a multitude lined the streets. The crowd cheered and the Governor bowed and smiled.

The Governor never was in better form. He did not strike an attitude nor pose during his entire speech. His manuscript was referred to only occasionally. Whenever he talked fight there was immediate response, and his homely talk seemed to go right home to the audience, which was composed of high-class mechanics and many business and professional men.

Hits at Senator White.

The Governor lost no time in getting after Senator White, who represents this district in the upper house of the Legislature. Senator White had a talk with the Governor at the capital this afternoon, but neither would divulge the nature of the interview. However, the Governor's warlike attitude at the meeting to-night indicated that it was no mere exchange of pleasantries.

"I have many friends in town," said the Governor. "If it were not for that fact, Mr. White would not be in the Senate to-day. I want the people to have the power to nominate because the power to nominate is the power to control. That is the secret of the control the bosses now exercise over your representatives in the Legislature. Here and there, however, there is a man they nominate whom they cannot control."

This pointed reference to himself caused an outburst of applause which lasted for half a minute. The Governor stood grinning while the crowd applauded.

"I have been in Congress eighteen years," he went on. "In Congress we did not take orders except from our constituents. I thought it would be the same thing in Albany, but I was sadly mistaken. There, with the exception of a few, they never take orders from their constituents. Their orders come to them over the telephone."

"The slogan of Democracy and my slogan is 'The people shall rule, rule, rule.' It should be your slogan, too. It is be-

SON'S VERDICT ON CARUSO.

"Finest Voice I Ever Heard," Says 8-Year-Old—Made Tenor Nervous.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 21.—Caruso's 8-year-old son, Mimi, visited the opera for the first time on the occasion of his father's opening performance at Covent Garden last night. It was also the first time he had heard his father sing in public.

Unknown to any one, the boy, in an Eton jacket with a big lace collar, sat in an upper stage box with his tutor. Afterward he was taken to Caruso's dressing room and was asked by his father what he thought of the performance. He assumed a profoundly critical manner and said: "The finest voice I've ever heard."

Caruso said to-night: "The reason of my nervousness at the opening of the performance was the boy's presence rather than my return to Covent Garden after seven years. I blew him a kiss on my first entrance, and the great uproar made me think he was discovered. Afterward I learned that the gallery gods took the gesture as a tribute to themselves."

Mimi has been in England since he was two years old. He has been educated by English tutors, but speaks Italian fluently. After the performance he wore one of his father's stage caps, parading before a dressing-room mirror. Caruso snatched the cap away, saying: "Here, none of that! You're not going to get my job so soon."

Mimi forced a promise from his father that he would be allowed to attend a future performance, despite Caruso's urgent desire to keep him from publicity as long as possible.

WALKER IN A COMA.

Banker Suffering from Poisoning Not Expected to Last Out the Night.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., May 21.—B. Sanders Walker, the wealthy young banker who a week ago this morning took by mistake a seven-grain bichloride of mercury tablet, is to-night supposed to be dying. He has been unconscious since 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Mrs. Walker has remained at the bedside the entire week, but this afternoon, when her husband failed to recognize her, when his lips refused to respond to her questions, she collapsed. To-night she is under the care of physicians. The brave woman had been kept up by the remarkable strength shown by her husband.

The physician, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, gave out this bulletin:

"Temperature normal; pulse 120, respiration 30; semi-conscious."

The temperature the day before was normal, but the respiration then was 32, and the pulse 128.

A half hour after the bulletin was issued, Mr. Walker became unconscious, and he has remained so since. He is gradually growing weaker. At a late hour to-night, a bulletin from the physicians read to a number of business associates of Mr. Walker's who had assembled at the Walker home showed only a slight change in his condition, but for the worse.

One of the attending physicians made this statement:

"It is my conviction that Mr. Walker is dying to-night. There has been no hopeful sign, nothing of alleviation noted, and he grows steadily weaker. If he is living by daylight, I will be surprised."

Efforts to ascertain the exact treatment Mr. Walker had received were unavailing. The physicians declined to discuss this subject at all. It is understood, however, that they have been in close communication with physicians at the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

All day a steady stream of telegrams poured in, as on every day throughout the week, suggesting treatment and asking as to his condition.

Many persons are waiting up all night outside the Walker home for news from the sick room.

Shortly before he lapsed into semi-consciousness Mr. Walker said:

"If this be dying, then none need fear its terrors."

Mr. Walker made this characteristically cheerful statement after he had begged his nurse in vain to tell him exactly what had been said at a conference of physicians in a corner of his bedchamber.

BANKER IN NIGHT COURT.

There Bishop and Wife's Counsel Withdraw Counter Charges.

James C. Bishop, the banker, who lives at Mount Kisco, N. Y., and against whom his wife has brought suit for divorce, and James W. Osborne, 2d, nephew of James W. Osborne, counsel for Mrs. Bishop in the divorce action, who lives at 214 East Eighteenth Street, appeared last night as complainants against each other in the Men's Night Court with counter-charges of assault. While preparations were being made to draw up their respective complaints, and after a conference between James W. Osborne, the elder, and Sidney Harris, a lawyer, of 96 Broadway, the counter-charges were withdrawn and the case dismissed.

Mrs. Bishop, the wife of the banker and the plaintiff in the divorce suit, was in court, and after James W. Osborne, her counsel, had asked Magistrate Freschi to order Bishop to keep away from her house and to stop annoying her, she rose and hesitatingly indorsed Osborne's request. The court did not rule on this point, however.

The charges of assault which Bishop and the younger Osborne made against each other grew out of a fight in which the two and a brother of Bishop engaged in last night in front of Mrs. Bishop's home at 22 East Sixty-fifth Street. The fight was precipitated in some way, according to James W. Osborne the elder, by Bishop's threat to his wife to assault her lawyer in the divorce suit.

The elder Mr. Osborne said he was at a Bar Association meeting last night when Mrs. Bishop telephoned him that her husband had threatened to kill him. He left at once, he said, and started to Mrs. Bishop's house to learn more of the threat. When he approached the house, he said, he saw James C. Bishop, Bishop's brother, Francis J. Bishop, and his own nephew engaged in a fight in front of Mrs. Bishop's home.

H. W. HUBBARD DIES IN DEPOSIT VAULT

Arranging Missionary Account at the Closing Hour When Stricken in His Chair.

HURRIED TO BE IN TIME

Aged 69, and Haste Is Supposed to Have Affected His Heart — 34 Years Treasurer of Missions.

Henry W. Hubbard of 37 Madison Avenue, for thirty-four years Treasurer of the American Missionary Association, was found dead shortly after 5 o'clock last evening in one of the private booths of the Safety Deposit Company of New York, at 140 Broadway. Mr. Hubbard had hurried in just a few minutes before closing time, and, according to Coroner's Physician Dr. Albert T. Weston, death was probably due to heart failure.

Mr. Hubbard had been almost daily accustomed to visit the office of the Missionary Society at 287 Fourth Avenue to attend to business for it. The society has a deposit vault with the Safety Deposit Company of New York, and all securities and private papers are kept there. Mr. Hubbard had six coupons of the New York Telephone Company and seven coupons of the Colorado & Southern Railroad to deposit. The total value of the coupons was $191.25.

He was detained at the office of the Missionary Society by several little matters until nearly 5 o'clock. He then hurried out of the office and started downtown. He reached the deposit company just before closing time and made haste into one of the little booths which are provided for the convenience of customers who desire privacy in making up their accounts.

At 5 o'clock the front doors of the office were closed and the bookkeepers prepared to close the books for the day. John Mitchell, a clerk, was assigned to wait for Mr. Hubbard. Several minutes passed and Mr. Hubbard did not come out. Mitchell became anxious, but waited until 5:20 before he decided to inquire as to the delay.

He finally decided that something was wrong and told one of the office boys to knock at the door. The boy did as directed and received no response. Mitchell then lifted him to the transom and, with a startled exclamation, the lad jumped to the floor and told Mitchell he thought Mr. Hubbard was dead. He said he was sitting with his head bent forward and his hands hanging. A pass key was found and Mitchell entered the room and tried to arouse the visitor. When he found his efforts were vain he telephoned for an ambulance.

Dr. Crane of the Hudson Street Hospital, after a brief examination, said Mr. Hubbard had been dead several minutes.

Mr. Hubbard was 69 years old, and the excitement of hurrying to the office is thought to have affected him. The body was taken to the Broadway Tabernacle, at 211 West Fifty-sixth Street.

Henry Wright Hubbard was born at Elgin, Ill., on May 17, 1844, the son of William G. and Charlotte (Wright) Hubbard. He was educated at the University of Michigan, from which he received the degree of B. S. in 1866 and that of M. S. in 1872. After attending the Law School of the University of Michigan for one year he was admitted to the Illinois bar and until 1870 practiced law in Chicago and in Denver. During the civil war he was a private in the 134th Illinois Volunteers.

From 1871 until 1873 Mr. Hubbard was Professor of Mathematics and Assistant Treasurer at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn. He then entered the New York office of the American Missionary Association, becoming Assistant Treasurer in 1876 and Treasurer in 1879. He was Treasurer of the Board of Trustees of Talladega College in Alabama, of Straight University in New Orleans, and of Tougaloo University, Mississippi.

Mr. Hubbard was a member of the New England Society and of the Quill, Michigan University, and Congregational Clubs. He was a deacon of the Broadway Tabernacle, a member of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity, and a member of Post 49 of the Grand Army of the Republic.

LANIELS FLIES WITH AIRMAN

Secretary of the Navy Takes an 8-Minute Spin Around Annapolis.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 21.—Secretary Daniels traveled eight miles this afternoon through the air in a flying boat.

"It was delightful; I enjoyed the sensation thoroughly," was the Navy Secretary's reply to an inquirer just after he alighted.

The Secretary went up with Lieut. John H. Towers, senior officer of the Navy Aviation Corps, whose camp is across the river from the Naval Academy. The flight was made in the flying boat C-1 at a height of 500 feet, and started at four minutes to 4 o'clock. Eight minutes later the trip was over.

Mr. Daniels came to Annapolis this morning, and inspected the buildings and grounds at the academy. After dining with Supt. J. H. Gibbons he boarded a navy launch, which carried him to the aviation camp, where the flying boat was quickly launched. Meantime, Mr. Daniels donned an overcoat and stuffed some cotton waste into his ears to drown the noise of the engine during the flight, and signed the official register, where all passengers place their signatures and weights before beginning a trip.

Starting from shore Lieut. Towers kept his craft on the water for about an eighth of a mile, and then sailed gradually upward and toward the mouth of the Severn River and the Chesapeake Bay.

After about two miles of steady climbing in this direction a turn was made, and the flying boat passed over the camp at a height of about 500 feet. As he sailed over, Mr. Daniels waved his hand to the crowd below. A straight flight up the river of about four miles was made, and then Lieut. Towers turned for the trip back and downward, landing just in front of the point from which the start was made.

A four-starred pennant of blue silk, made by the sailors at the camp, which flew from one of the standards of the air craft was presented to Mr. Daniels as a souvenir.

When he had landed the Secretary talked of his sensations, and mentioned the fact that by flying to-day, after having taken a dive in a submarine boat at Norfolk recently, he had gone down and up with the navy.

"I always thought I was a good fellow, but never before knew I had such wings," he said.

SIGNS AWAY SALOON TO HOLD-UP ROBBERS

Harlem Saloon Keeper Receives a Dollar Out of His Own Till for His Resort.

Five Italians entered the saloon of Frank Di Scipio at 2,129 Lexington Avenue last night, and after beating him over the head with the butts of revolvers shoved a bill of sale for the place, made out in legal form, into his hands and made him sign it. Then one of them took a single dollar bill out of the till and handed it to him, saying that this completed the legal formula for the transfer of ownership of the place. This done, they unceremoniously kicked him out into the street and took up the serving of drinks themselves.

The men were strangers to Di Scipio. He admitted last night to the police that he had been paying blackmail money to Black Hand agents for months. They had paid him an earlier visit. He was found yesterday morning unconscious on the floor of his saloon, and when he recovered said he had been blackjacked by three Italians who had come to collect tribute. He said that he had no money, and the visitors hit him over the head and left him lying on the floor of the saloon. He was taken to Harlem Hospital, where sixteen stitches were taken in his scalp.

Detectives Walsh and Dwyer of the East 126th Street Station had been assigned to investigate the morning assault. They went to the hospital early last night to talk to the patient, only to learn that he had insisted on going home. They followed him there, and were surprised to find severe wounds on his face. At first he was uncommunicative, but finally told them those marks were not made in the morning assault.

He said that when he got out of the hospital his first thought was to go to his saloon, which he had left in charge of a bartender. When he arrived there two men were waiting to see him. They told him to come into the back room, as they wished to talk to him. When he got there he found there was nearly ten men in the room. One of them, whom Di Scipio says he does not know, told him that he had run the saloon long enough. He informed the owner of the place that they had found a buyer for him in the person of one Ernesto Caparella of 225 East 111th Street. The latter would pay him $400 in theory, but in fact he would only get $1.

As he hesitated, Di Scipio says, the men all drew revolvers and threatened him. One of them produced a legal-looking document and said that he was a notary public and would witness the signature. Di Scipio later identified this man as Joseph Mayo of 2,165 Second Avenue.

Di Scipio countered with the statement that he could not write. When he said this the men lost patience, he says, and advanced upon him, several of them striking him in the face with the butts of their revolvers. Thereupon he gave up and signed. Caparella then went to the till and handed him a dollar bill.

"Now get out of here," Di Scipio says he then told him, "I own this place and you have no right here."

Thereupon the men escorted him to the door, he says. One of them held it open and the rest got at his back and pitched him out on the street. As he stood there dazed a pair came out after him and brought him back again. It was to warn him that if he told the police what had happened they would kill him, even if it meant death for some of their number.

Di Scipio then went home, undressed, and went to bed. He was suffering from the wounds that had been inflicted upon him, but even more by the loss of his property taken by due process of law. He said he was afraid the men would come after him in his home and torture him further.

When they had heard his story the detectives ordered the man to dress and immediately telephoned to Capt. McElroy, asking for all the available men in the station. The police surrounded the place and made their raid, capturing five prisoners, all the men who were in the place.

At the police station they gave their names as Ernesto Caparella, 37, a saloonkeeper, of 225 East 112th Street; Joseph Bianco, plumber, 19, of 307 East 110th Street; George Sanders, 21, bookkeeper, of 307 East 110th Street; Charles Landi, 21, laborer, of 2,248 First Avenue, and Joseph Posonato, 20, driver, of 233 East 111th Street. All five, after being identified, were arrested on a charge of extortion. Just then Mayo entered the saloon and was also identified and locked up.

BRIDGE VICTORY KILLS HER.

Aged Hartford Widow Dies Laughing Over Playing the Winning Card.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 21.—Overjoyed at unexpectedly playing the winning card of a trick which won a rubber of bridge yesterday, Mrs. Mary Trelkald, a widow, 74 years old, began laughing over her victory and died, still laughing, before physicians could arrive.

She had been deeply interested in card games for years, and was a player who was always anxious to win. She was playing a game with her grandsons, in which it looked, near the end, as if one of her opponents had played the winning card. Mrs. Trelkald held the taking card, however, and when she played it and saw the discomfiture of the other side at losing the trick she laughed herself into hysterics.

BASEBALL KILLS WOMAN.

Mrs. John Hosie Struck in Abdomen and Dies of Hemorrhage.

Sitting on the stoop of her home at 609 Sussex Street, Harrison, N. J., last Saturday afternoon, watching some small boys play baseball in an adjoining lot, Mrs. John Hosie was hit in the abdomen by a batted ball. Mrs. Hosie thought little of the accident until Monday, when she called Dr. Henry Allers. He said she was suffering from internal hemorrhage. Her condition grew steadily worse and yesterday morning she died.

When Mr. Hosie came home he found his two sons, John, Jr., and Joseph, in tears and his wife dead. Mr. Hosie refused to believe that she had died. He grasped her hand and called on her again and again to open her eyes and speak to him, and when Dr. Allers assured him that death had come he protested that it could not be true. At the end of four hours the sorrowing husband was at last convinced.

A LINER BLOWN UP; 200 PERSONS ABOARD

Messageries Maritimes Vessel Senegal Strikes a Mine While Leaving Smyrna.

LONDON, Thursday, May 22.—A telegram to The Daily Mail from Smyrna says:

"The French Messageries Maritimes liner Sénégal was blown up to-day (Wednesday) by a mine as she was leaving the Port of Smyrna. Tugs are leaving to try to save life."

The Daily Mail's Marseilles correspondent says:

"The Sénégal was bound for Constantinople, touching at Smyrna and Beirut. She left here on Thursday last.

"She carried sixty passengers and probably picked up additional passengers at her ports of call. The crew numbered sixty. The Sénégal, an old boat, was shortly to be withdrawn.

"The Manager of the Messageries Maritimes here had heard nothing of the accident at 11 o'clock last night."

MARSEILLES, May 21.—A private message received here says that the liner Sénégal struck a mine as she was leaving Smyrna and was blown up.

It is believed there were 200 persons on board the vessel.

The Sénégal was an iron, screw, bark-rigged steamship of 3,625 tons register, built by the Messageries Maritimes Company at Marseilles in 1872 for the Indo-China trade. She was 390 feet long and had 40 feet beam. She was equipped with triple expansion engines of 398 nominal horse power.

After trading for many years through the Suez Canal to Indo-China, the vessel was used for the East African trade to Madagascar and Mauritius, and later was put into the Mediterranean service.

ASTOR MEETS UNIONISTS.

Taking Great Interest in Studying Important Labor Problems.

Vincent Astor, who is one of the new members of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation, spent two hours yesterday discussing labor problems with officers of National labor organizations who are members of the federation. Mr. Astor has taken a great deal of interest in industrial questions, and is credited with having a good knowledge of the relations between capital and labor. After the conference yesterday a labor leader said that Mr. Astor showed a desire to be fair and took a broad-minded view of matters.

"Mr. Astor has no prejudices," he said, "and seems desirous only of knowing the facts and what is right. If the young men of wealth in this country would all show as broad a sympathy for the wage earner as Mr. Astor does there would be less complaint of injustice."

Another new member of the committee is Ogden L. Mills, who became Chairman yesterday of a committee of the federation that is making a study of the labor problem. The Civic Federation, it was said last evening, is making special efforts to enlist the interest of young men who are at the head or likely to be at the head of large business interests involving the employment of large forces of wage earners.

TO WED UNDER NEW RULE.

First Ceremony in Montclair Under Health Requirement.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 21.—The marriage of Miss Ethel Daniels Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gorham Phillips, of 171 Cooper Avenue, and Aubrey Luther Whittemore of Rodgers' Park, Chicago, Ill., will take place in the Christian Union Congregational Church here on Tuesday evening, June 3. The clergyman will be the Rev. Henry E. Jackson, the pastor of the church, who said recently that hereafter he would require a medical certificate of good health from the bridegroom in all marriage ceremonies that he performed.

The Rev. Edgar S. Wiers, pastor of Unity Church, was last week instructed by his congregation to require a medical certificate from both bridegroom and bride in marriage ceremonies. It is probable that the Whittemore-Phillips wedding will be the first to take place in Montclair under the new eugenics rule.

KEEPS OUT ARGENTINE MEAT

Why Beef Trust Is Not Dissatisfied with New Bill—Packers Not Talking

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, May 21.—If the proposed Meat bill becomes a law it will largely prevent Argentine meat from being shipped to the United States. There are many here who believe that the beef trust is not dissatisfied with the bill on that account.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 21.—The Armours, Swifts, Morrises, and other big Chicago packers decline either individually or through their publicity agents to be drawn into making any statement respecting the reported intention of the Government of Argentina to limit exports of beef by trusts. The packers are keeping unwonted silence these days pending final passage of the Underwood Tariff bill. They are hopeful of obtaining concessions from the Senate.

It is understood generally here that the leading packers of this city have obtained a secure foothold in the Argentine Republic.

MORALS BILL VETOED, POLICE DEFENDED

Mayor Declares Special Board for Gambling and Disorderly Houses Unnecessary.

NOT 50 CORRUPT POLICEMEN

Recent Disclosures Prove Efficiency of the Force, He Says—Evils in the Proposed Legislation.

Mayor Gaynor vetoed yesterday the Wagner bill, providing for a Board of Public Welfare to take from the Police Department control of gambling and disorderly houses in the city. In a memorandum which he sent to Gov. Sulzer with the veto, the Mayor gives four reasons for his action. One was because the bill left the enforcement of the liquor tax law with the police force, and this, the Mayor said, furnished the major part of the corruption money paid to police officials and politicians in the past. He said on this point:

> It was stated on the hearing before me that the enforcement of this law was left with the police for the reason that I have established and carried out a plan which has done away with such corruption under it. While that is true, such corruption may very easily be revived hereafter. We have also during the last few years done away with most of the corruption from the other two sources. That might be alleged as a reason also for not turning the administration of the laws in respect of them over to a separate department. If this thing is to be done at all it should be completely done. That is what the report of the committee of citizens called for. This bill is not in accordance with what the committee asked of the Legislature.

The Mayor's second objection is that the provision for a Department of Public Welfare, to consist of a board of seven Commissioners, removable by the Mayor only for cause after a trial, is contrary to the present scheme or constitution of government in the city. He says:

> The board of seven members would probably result in discord and inefficiency. Our present system of single heads of departments to be appointed and removed by the Mayor at pleasure was brought in for grave cause. I know of no reason to abandon it. It has worked well, and has never been abused. The idea seems to be to divide the responsibility for the enforcemnt of these laws. That weakness is to be deprecated. It is much better to centre the responsibility, and experience has proved that the place to centre it is in the Mayor. The people of this great city ought to be able to elect a Mayor in whom they would have full confidence, and who would neither shrink from nor shirk any responsibility. I think the Mayor of this city can always rest assured that his fellow-citizens will treat him with justice, however malevolent the attacks of petty politicians or corrupt people, or however loud, senseless, or corrupt clamor against him may be.

The Mayor's third criticism is that the bill re-enacts the two sections of the City Charter to the right of the police to enter disorderly and gambling houses, which, he says, have been dead letters since he has been Mayor. No better device for the practice of official extortion and blackmail, he says, could be devised than that afforded by these two sections, and he continues:

> I have forbidden any house to be entered or any search or arrest to be made under them. It is always easy to get a warrant from a Magistrate to enter a house when necessary. If no evidence can be found to lay before a Magistrate on oath, that in itself shows that the house should not be entered.

The Mayor's fourth reason for his veto is that there is no exigency calling for the bill. All unwise legislation as a rule, he says, is passed in time of senseless clamor, and he says that never in thirty years has there been so little corruption in the police force as now.

"And yet some who listen only to public clamor," he says, "instead of thinking for themselves, would have it that corruption is so rife in the police force that we need to humiliate that force by taking away from them certain of their powers." Of the 10,000 men on the force, he says, there are not fifty, and probably not twenty-five, who are corrupt. The Mayor reviews the recent disclosures in the department from Rosenthal down, and asserts that, in place of there being any dereliction on the part of the police in the last three years, "it was the full performance of duty by them which brought about these disclosures." The two Commissioners he appointed, says the Mayor, worked from the beginning to spot the dishonest officers on the force and get rid of them. The Mayor concludes:

> In that way we actually got rid of twelve Inspectors and Captains, and the recent conviction of four Captains raises the number to sixteen. The people of this city are beginning to perceive the truth of this matter. In place of their police force having failed, its efficiency was never at as high a point as it is to-day, or as it has been during the last three years. Nor do the police take the law into their own hands. They proceed against all evil houses as public nuisances. The character of a house is proved by those who frequent it. A house, to which gamblers or prostitutes resort is a public nuisance. The police observe these houses, and then get warrants against them as public nuisances, and proceed against the proprietors, and take possession of the houses and abate the nuisances. This has now been going on for three years, during which scores of such houses have been permanently put out of business. It was bound to bring out disclosures of corruption. I have been surprised that it has not brought out more. When corrupt disclosures are thus brought out the accused officers are indicted and prosecuted.

The Mayor also defended the Police Department yesterday in a letter to Francis J. Sullivan of 49 Wall Street, who wrote to congratulate him on the civic parade last Saturday. The Mayor found fault with some newspapers for not printing his explanation, when he presented the police heroes with medals on Saturday, and said that Thompson, Hussey, Murtha, and Sweeney were not Inspectors when charges were preferred against them, but Captains.

The Mayor added that it took time to work out reforms in the Police Department. "As the Scripture says, 'First the blade, then the ear, and after that the full corn in the ear.'"

$100,000,000 MEXICAN LOAN.

Huerta's Congress Approves Deal with French Bankers.

MEXICO CITY, May 21.—The Mexican Congress late last night gave its sanction to an agreement for a loan of $100,000,000 at 6 per cent. interest. The amount is to be placed at 90, and will run for ten years. It is guaranteed by 38 per cent. of the customs receipts. The Mexican National Bank has been named as the representative of the bankers in the supervision of the disbursements.

The Minister of Finance was charged with failure to take better offers which had been made. He replied that Provisional President Huerta and members of the Mexican Cabinet had urged on him the immediate acceptance of this loan, as the other offers received necessitated more delay.

It still is necessary for Congress to vote on the four articles of the financial measure, but its approval of the general terms of the bill makes it reasonably certain that it also will approve all the details.

The loan has been placed with French bankers, but it is considered certain that British interests are participating. The names of the bankers have not been announced.

MISS BOOTH FEEDS BURGLAR

Prays with Nocturnal Visitor—Shown Out After Promise to Reform.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 22.—Capt. Mary Booth, daughter of Gen. Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, discovered a burglar in her bedroom at 2 o'clock this morning. Instead of calling the police she confronted her visitor and talked seriously to him about his wickedness.

Learning that he was driven to crime by hunger, she promptly took him to her kitchen and gave him a good, square meal. While he ate she continued to talk to him, and when the meal was finished she knelt down and prayed with him. She insisted on the man praying for himself. Then he promised to turn over a new leaf, and, with the counter-promise to be his friend if he would live a better life, she saw her guest off the premises.

PAUL PATTON A CATHOLIC.

Son of Former Head of Princeton University Joins Roman Church.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 21.—It was learned here to-day that Paul Patton, son of the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, who recently resigned as President of Princeton Theological Seminary, had entered the Roman Catholic Church a year ago. It had been suggested in some quarters that Dr. Patton's resignation had been due to his son's conversion, but this was denied by Dr. Patton.

Paul Patton is an engineer on English Government work in Bermuda. It was there he became Catholic. He is now in New York. Dr. Patton did not enter into any explanation of his son's change of faith when interviewed to-day, but admitted that it had occurred about a year ago.

EQUIPS WARSHIP BY 'PHONE.

Lieut. Commander Tardy, in Quarantine, Directs Work on New York.

Lieut. Commander William B. Tardy, who has charge of the building and installing of all the machinery and engines on the superdreadnought New York, now nearing completion in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, is in quarantine at his home, 296 Ryerson Street, Brooklyn, where his four-year-old daughter, Anna, is ill with the measles. This is the second time this year that he has been quarantined, the first time being last February, when his wife and both children had diphtheria.

His brother officers denied yesterday that Lieut. Commander Tardy's being in quarantine would interfere with work on the New York. He is directing the installation of the boiler and steam fixtures and the piping by telephone, and so fine is the organization he has developed, according to his fellow-officers, that the work will proceed with scarcely a hitch.

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—Mrs. Clara Hanger, a society leader, obtained an award of $20,000 damages in the Circuit Court to-day against four neighbors. She testified that her health had been injured by her appearance in the Justice Court a year ago, where she was tried on a chage of threatening the children of Mrs. J. Goode Cabanne. She sued Mrs. Cabanne and three other neighbors for $60,000, the amount being reduced to $30,000.

The other defendants were Monroe Price, Eugene Dryer, and Jules Bingle, all prominent in society.

BRUSSELS, May 21.—Although the three daughters of the late King Leopold failed to win their suit against the state in connection with their claim for the entire Congo property left by their father, valued at nearly $14,000,000, the Government recognizes that they are entitled to some compensation.

An arrangement has been reached between the Minister of Colonies and representatives of the Princesses whereby they are to receive a portion of the estate. The amount has not yet been fixed, but it is understood that it will be approximately $800,000 each—possibly $1,200,000 to Princess Louise, in which case it will take the form of an unattachable life annuity, to avoid seizure by creditors.

With the concentrated strength of the District Attorney's office to prosecute him, and with three lawyers co-operating in his defense, State Senator Stephen J. Stilwell of the Bronx went on trial for bribery yesterday morning in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

After an exhaustive examination of sixty-two talesmen by District Attorney Whitman himself, the jury box was full at 6 o'clock last evening, and when Justice Seabury closed the night session at 10:35 o'clock, the third witness had started on his story. This was Stilwell's chief accuser, George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, of 75 Sixth Avenue. At the adjournment Mr. Stilwell went his way under the continued bail of $5,000, and the twelve jurors were sent off to spend the night under guard in the Murray Hill Hotel.

By all odds, the most interesting development of the evening session came not from the lips of any witness or from any document presented in evidence, but from a remark dropped in a casual manner by Assistant District Attorney Charles C. Nott, who opened the case for the people. He said that the process servers of the prosecution had searched long and vainly for a highly important and much desired witness, one John Popp, Clerk of the Codes Committee of the Senate, of which Senator Stilwell is Chairman.

Popp Lived With Stilwell.

It is not asserted by the prosecutor that this witness is absolutely essential to the people's case. How much Mr. Nott hoped to prove by him was not certain, although already a volume of committee records had been withheld from the jury as incompetent evidence because Mr. Popp was not on hand to identify it. The importance the State attaches to his testimony may be further adduced from the fact that during the past week a process server has been in Albany and one has been in New York devoting their time solely to a search for Mr. Popp.

According to the prosecution, Mr. Popp was appointed to his clerkship through Mr. Stilwell's good offices. Furthermore, they say, he lives with Mr. Stilwell in the Bronx and has worked for him in his city law office. According to the accused Senator, however, Mr. Popp no longer lives with him, and has never been actually in his employ.

"Why," he protested, after court adjourned and the reporters crowded round him, "I have not seen Popp since he left Albany at the end of the session. But," he called out to Mr. Nott, "I will try to have him here to-morrow, and I believe I will succeed."

"Thank you," said Mr. Nott, in a tone in which grimness and incredulity struggled for mastery.

The indictment against Stilwell charges that he demanded $3,500 from Mr. Kendall for a favorable report on a bill lingering in the Codes Committees of the two houses. This bill made it a misdemeanor for the New York Stock Exchange to refuse to accept certificates engraved or printed by Mr. Kendall's and other companies. The bill did not become a law.

Gov. Sulzer Deeply Interested.

It is quite possible that before the trial is over the names of other legislators may be dragged into the unpleasant light of this case's publicity. According to the gossip that persistently circulated in the courtroom yesterday, Gov. Sulzer already has indicated his hope that in the course of the testimony here the names of all men involved would come from the lips of those on the witness stand. It was known that he had expressed the desire of holding an early conference with the District Attorney, and it was guessed in the Criminal Court Building yesterday that he expected the case to provide ammunition for his direct primary campaign.

As far as can be learned Senator Stilwell intends to call only one witness from the Legislature and that will be Assemblyman Patrick J. McGrath, Chairman of the Codes Committee of the Assembly. It was to pave the way for his bill through this committee, according to Kendall, that the $1,500 demand was made.

Nott Outlines the State's Case.

When the evening session began, at 8:10 o'clock, it was not District Attorney Whitman, but his assistant, Charles C. Nott, who took his stand before the jury box to make the opening address for the prosecution. Mr. Nott relies for his forcefulness on an unaffected directness of delivery.

"In the beginning," he said, "I want to emphasize the supreme importance of this case to the people of this State. It involves the question whether members of your Legislature can sell their votes, whether they can be bought, whether legislation can be turned out for money, or whether ours should be honest legislation, passed solely in the interest of the people. If this man is guilty, it is of supreme importance to every citizen of the State that he be so declared.

"When the demand for money was made Kendall made up his mind that he would not be 'shaken down' for the passage of a good measure. But, mind you, he was not sore, not angry. He took the story to the Governor when his bill was still pending and when such action on his part was certain to kill it, as it finally did. He acted not out of revenge, but out of his sense of what was due to himself and to the citizens of the State. He had three alternatives when the demand was made—to pay and see his bill reported out; to refuse to pay, but to hold his tongue, or to refuse and show this man up for what he was, let what might happen to his bill."

Attacks Stilwell's "Alibi."

Mr. Nott said that Mr. Kendall played for time in order to get corroborative evidence, and he promised that the District Attorney would show to the jury an abundance of evidence, both oral and documentary. He sketched briefly Kendall's story of a first bid for $2,000 to settle with four Senators and of the promise by Stilwell to telegraph a figure which would indicate the number of hundreds of dollars needed to get the bill reported out of the Assembly Codes Committee. He went on:

"The telegram which came read: 'Fifteen is the correct number.' That is the most important thing in this case; on it the whole case rests. There is no question that it was sent, for we will show to you the original blank in this defendant's own handwriting. The question is as to what it meant.

"To Kendall it meant that $1,500 was named by Stilwell as the amount needed for the Assembly Committee. Stilwell later wrote explaining that by '15' he had meant to furnish the size of the Assembly Committee and had inadvertently given 15 when he should have said 13. Kendall told him the 'alibi had come too late,' as the threat to expose had already been made."

Mr. Nott then said he would prove there was no need for Stilwell to send any such information and that he (Stilwell) knew there was no such need. He would prove it by showing first that 13 was the fixed and familiar number of the members in an old and standing committee, a number so familiar that Stilwell could not have misstated it and could not have supposed Kendall in need of such information.

Holds Telegram Should Convict.

Fruthermore—and here Mr. Nott was very emphatic—he said that when Kendall and his associate, George S. Fields, visited Stilwell in Albany in February, the Senator gave to Kendall a pamphlet containing not only a directory of both houses of the Legislature, but the number of members constituting each committee of each house. Mr. Nott hammered this in as showing that Kendall not only knew the number of Assemblymen in the Codes Committee, but that Stilwell knew he knew it.

"If by 'Fifteen is the correct number,' Stilwell, in your opinion, referred to the number of men in the committee, then acquit him," said Mr. Nott. "But if you think it did not refer to the membership number, then we will convict this man on documentary evidence in his own handwriting."

The first two witnesses called by the prosecution were Sidney J. Ross, record clerk of the Senate at Albany, and George R. Van Namee, clerk of the Assembly. They came armed with voluminous files and their testimony dealt only with the dates on which the Kendall amendment to the penal law was introduced.

Kendall Produces Committee Lists.

Then, as the third witness, Mr. Nott called the star of the prosecution, George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company. He is in his sixtieth year and is quite bald. On the stand last evening his bearing was placid, his voice plaintive but gentle.

In a manner markedly dispassionate, Mr. Kendall reviewed the whole story of his relations with Stilwell. He began with his visit to Albany on Feb. 13, when he took to the Governor his complaint that the Stock Exchange was maintaining an ancient monopoly to the great hurt and deprivation of those engraving companies not on the "inside." He called it a "public and a private wrong," and he begged for a law penalizing such discrimination. He was referred to Senator Stilwell, Chairman of the Senate Codes Committee.

It was on that visit, Mr. Kendall said, that the Bronx Senator handed to him the little pamphlet directory of the Legislature which Mr. Nott marked as so significant.

"He pulled out a little book," said Mr. Kendall, "with the committees listed in it and the leaf turned down at the Codes Committee page."

The book went into evidence, and was passed curiously from juror to juror while Mr. Kendall went on to cover the matter of the $250 check drawn payable to Mr. Lewis, the revision clerk, to whom, according to the witness, he sent the money at Mr. Stilwell's suggestion. The check, too, went into the record. Shortly after this point was reached and before Mr. Kendall touched upon the bribery phase of the indictment court was adjourned until 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Three Lawyers Defend Senator.

It was at 10:45 o'clock yesterday morning that Justice Seabury went on the bench, and by that time the lawyers on both sides had assembled and every vacant seat in the room was taken by the members of the special jury panel. For the State, District Attorney Whitman himself was in charge, and with him were Assistant District Attorney Charles C. Nott and Deputy Assistant District Attorney Millard Ellison.

On the other side of the long counsel table sat Senator Stilwell. He was trimly dressed in a suit of blue. The light and careless air of confidence which so often marks a man when he faces a jury and which is always the occasion for surprise to unaccustomed court visitors was not once displayed by the accused Bronx Senator. Not once during the three long sessions of the opening day did he smile. It was always with a look of grave and almost sour intensity that he met the eyes of every talesman who stepped into the witness stand.

With him was an impressive array of counsel, whose presence at the trial was not foreshadowed last week, when he pleaded poverty and asked the court to assign a lawyer to defend him. At that time the court assigned Mr. Stilwell's colleague, Senator James D. McClelland, who accordingly appeared in court yesterday, but apparently not in command of the case. This post was left to Robert M. Moore, a lawyer, who has appeared in many big criminal cases, and who had with him as associate counsel William T. Byrne of Albany. Mr. Moore and Mr. Byrne say they have been brought into the case by Mr. Stilwell's friends.

The examination of talesmen lasted from the opening of the session in the morning until 6 o'clock, when court adjourned for dinner. The twelfth man did not take his seat until the panel was almost exhausted. Almost exhausted, too, were the peremptory challenges left to the defendant, for he had only one left, and it was in an effort to save this for an emergency that he permitted Mr. Craft to reach the jury box. Mr. Whitman had four left, and he seemed better satisfied with the general run of the panel than did Mr. Stilwell's lawyers.

Defense Challenged 19 Talesmen.

Of the sixty-two talesmen examined before the box was filled, nineteen were challenged by the defense and sixteen by the State, and fifteen were either excused by consent of both sides or by special permission from Justice Seabury.

It is possible to guess at the broad outlines of the case each side will present by the manner of scrutiny to which the talesmen are subjected. It was easy to see from yesterday's examination that the storm of the Stilwell trial would centre about the motives, record, and character of George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, who is the Bronx Senator's chief accuser. It was apparent that the defense would assail Mr. Kendall bitterly, and that the prosecution would bolster him to the best of its ability.

There was one question asked of every talesman by Mr. Whitman, who did all the examining himself. Here it is:

"If it should appear that a witness presented himself as willing to offer a bribe when actuated by a desire to obtain evidence against the bribe-taker, would that fact prejudice you against his testimony?"

No talesman who answered this question unsatisfactorily got near the jury box. On the other hand, the defense indicated clearly its intention to attack the alleged "bribe-offer" as an "invention of Mr. Kendall's mind," designed to force, compel, and intimidate the Legislature into passing the Stock Exchange amendment he so much desired.

Mr. Whitman seemed to prefer to dodge Bronx citizens, although he allowed two of them to enter the final list of twelve. A friend of Senator Agnew was passed by. The prosecution challenged the clerk of the Hotel Normandie and the leader of the orchestra of the Hotel Prince George. The defense would have none of John M. Siddall of 400 West [illegible] Street, one of the editors of The American Magazine.

NOTE CALMS JAPAN, WASHINGTON HEARS

Friendly Spirit of America's Reply Strikes a Responsive Chord at Tokio.

DROP TREATY CONTENTION

Japanese Understand Difficulties of Federal Government in Dealing with Acts of a State.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Authentic information received by the State Department indicates that the Japanese Government has received in a calm and friendly spirit Secretary Bryan's note in answer to the Japanese protest against the California Alien Land law. It may be going too far to say that the Japanese Government has been impressed with the response made by the United States, but there is evidence that the difficulties of the Wilson Administration in dealing with the situation in California are well understood in Tokio and there seems to be a disposition there to give credit to President Wilson and his advisers for a desire to act with the utmost fairness toward Japan.

An important development of the situation is that Japan will not contend that the treaty rights of her subjects in California have been violated by the enactment of the Alien Land law. The information that comes to THE NEW YORK TIMES'S correspondent is that Japan has "abandoned" this contention, but it is not known definitely whether it ever was brought forward by the Japanese Ambassador. Officers of the Wilson Administration have contended that the Japanese-American treaty had not been violated by the California statute, and it is indicated that Japan has recognized this view, either through not bringing forward a contrary contention or dropping it.

Altogether the situation seems to have improved since the Japanese Government received the American note. This note was handed to Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, by Secretary Bryan on Monday afternoon and its text was cabled to the Tokio Foreign Office by the Japanese Ambassador. Its contents have not been made known to the Japanese people through the press, but the manner of its reception by the Tokio Government has given rise to the hope that the Government's attitude is only a forerunner of the manner in which the subjects of the Emperor will view the controversy after they have read the American communication.

Advices from Japan indicate that many influential men are exerting themselves to prevent any excited outbursts against the United States, and their exertions are meeting with considerable success.

The exchanges that have taken place between representatives of the two Governments toward determining whether it would be advisable to make public the text of the protest and the answer at this time have resulted in an agreement to postpone action in this connection.

President Wilson, who had no small part in the writing of the note, is said to have described in most complimentary terms what he believed to be the real feeling of the majority of the American people toward Japan. The communication, it is said, pointed to California—and only a part of California, too—as having shown a discriminatory disposition, and insisted that the United States as a whole admired the progress that Japan had made in the last half century, respected the achievements of the Japanese people, and was sincerely anxious to show that it regarded Japan on a basis of equality with all other powers and nations.

The note was about 1,000 words long, and dealt chiefly with the spirit of the American people toward Japan, making little reference, it is understood, to the technicalities of the new law or the treaty, but discussing Japan's contention that the California agitation was in reality an act of unfriendliness and discrimination toward the Japanese.

Officials here were not in the least opposed to publication of the document, but decision on that point was left with the Tokio Government.

The constant effort of President Wilson to prevent any occurrence that would give offense to the Japanese was emphasized to-day when the President expressed to Representative Thomas U. Sisson of Mississippi the hope that in the speech on the California Land bill which Mr. Sisson is to deliver on Friday he would say nothing that would tend to excite feeling in Japan or in the United States. Mr. Sisson called at the White House to-day at the request of the President, and while the details of their conversation have not been disclosed, it is known that Mr. Sisson gave assurances to Mr. Wilson that he had no intention of going into the racial issue or indulging in any talk about war. Apparently the President had gained the impression that Mr. Sisson intended to amplify his brief reference to the possibilities of hostility with Japan, made in his previous speech on the constitutional aspects of the alien land question. Mr. Sisson told the President that he would devote himself to an argument upon the constitutional right of a State to enact alien laws, and would avoid anything to which Japan might take exception.

After the interview with the President Mr. Sisson made it plain that he was in hearty accord with the desire of President Wilson that nothing should be said in Congressional debate that might offend the sensibilities of the Japanese.

TOKIO SILENT ON NOTE.

Japanese Public Waiting to Know Its Real Terms.

TOKIO, May 21.—The Japanese Foreign Office has received and is studying the reply of the United States Government to its original protest in regard to the California Alien Land act. It asserts that in agreement with Washington the document will not be made public. The officials make no comment on the subject, and no statement as to whether it is satisfactory or not is obtainable in official circles.

The Japanese public apparently is waiting for information before expressing its opinion on the American reply.

The newspapers agree that the question has entered upon a second and more difficult stage, since it is directly between the Japanese and American Governments. They warn the public against thoughtless agitation, pointing out that this would now be interpreted as being directed against the American Nation and not California alone.

The situation, they aver, demands careful and conscientious treatment on both sides, lest it lead to deplorable consequences. The essence of opinion is that as Washington has gone on record in opposition to the legislation, it is reasonable to expect that the American Government will exert further efforts to nullify it.

The Hochi Shimbun says:

"Should Washington fail to carry out this obligation, the responsibility for any estrangement would lie with that Administration."

Iichiro Tokutomi, chief editor of the Kokumin Shimbun, says in an article to-day:

"The patriotism and loyalty of Japan should join forces with the liberality of America. By this means the Pacific would nobly justify its name."

Much interest is attached to the formation of a new patriotic association by Count Shiganori Uesugi and other scholars for the maintenance of Japanese individuality. The founders say that some of the Japanese are intoxicated with Western civilization to such an extent that they are apt to forget their nationality and introduce dangerous thoughts into the minds of the people and interpret patriotism in a different way from that which prevailed among their ancestors. In some quarters it is alleged that this new organization is a political one masquerading under the guise of patriotism, and that it has been created to fight the battle of the bureaucracy against the incroachments of the growing democracy.

Prof. Masaharu Anesaki of the College of Literature in the Imperial University at Tokio was designated to-day as the first Harvard lecturer on Japanese life and literature.

Daily Mail Says Canada Has Like Interests with California.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, May 22.—The Daily Mail, in an editorial on Japan and the United States, says:

"The situation is clearly one of considerable difficulty and has a close personal interest to ourselves, for it would be distressing to find our American kinsfolk in serious conflict with our Japanese allies and upon an issue in which Americans will command the sympathies of Western Canada and Australia.

"We may take it for granted that Sir Edward Grey, whose peacemaking has been less amateurish than Mr. Bryan's, will use all legitimate British influence to bring the disputants to an understanding."

Knabenshue Says Committee Tried to Buy His Dirigible.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Roy Knabenshue says his big dirigible passenger-carrying balloon is being sought by Japanese. A committee of half a dozen Japanese visited the airship inclosure at Pasadena and, it is said, attempted to open negotiations with Knabenshue. The latter, who built the machine and is now perfecting it for flights, refused to consider any proposition from the Japanese.

"My airship," said he, "is not for sale to Japan. If Uncle Sam gets into a war I will be willing to offer the dirigible for sale to the Government. The Japanese, numbers of whom have visited my place in Pasadena, attempted to get me to set a price on the craft. I refused. I have also been approached by representatives of the Mexican revolutionary junta with attempts to open negotiations for the sale of the airship to them."

JAPANESE SEEK REFERENDUM.

They Will Ask for Vote of State on Arizona Land Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 21.—Officials of the Japanese-American Association in Phoenix are preparing a referendum petition against the Arizona alien land bill now before the Governor.

S. Fukanaga, President of the association, says he has assurances that enough signatures can be obtained to insure a general vote on the bill.

A copy of the Government's reply to Japan's protest has been received here by Fukanaga, but he has declined to make public the contents. He said to-day that Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, had instructed him not to give out anything pertaining to the document.

DON'T WANT CITIZENSHIP.

Few Japanese Born in Hawaii Seek to Become Americans.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—Of fifty Japanese born in Honolulu and eligible to American citizenship only fifteen have availed themselves of the opportunity, according to Gilbert D. Metzger, a Honolulu contractor, who arrived to-day.

"It has been my observation," he said, "that Japanese are absolutely loyal to their own Government and do not care to become American citizens or permanent residents, even when they may."

The Hawaiian Islands have a population of Japanese laborers estimated at 75,000.

SEES NO PERIL OF WAR.

Henry Bullard, Just Back from Japan, Says It's Impossible.

Col. Henry Bullard, International Secretary of the Salvation Army, who recently returned from the Orient, says there can be no conflict between the United States and Japan. Col. Bullard spent about fifteen years in Japan. He speaks the language fluently and, when in the empire, wears the costume of Nippon. He said yesterday:

"No man who has spent any time in Japan and understands in any degree the national character can possibly reach the conclusion that war will result from the present misunderstanding. Absolute necessity alone would cause Japan to appeal to arms. If her existence as an independent nation were threatened, she might contemplate forcible resistance. This was the case when she fought with Russia. At that time she believed that her national life was threatened. The present situation cannot develop any such eventuality."

Colonel Bullard said the excitement in Japan at the present time was largely manufactured.

"The Government of Japan knows exactly how much consideration ought to be given the clamorous mob. It is strong, and will not be moved from its position by any threats of violence. I was in Japan when the settlement was made between Russia and Nippon. At that time riotous demonstrations took place, but these had absolutely no effect on the Government.

"After a long residence in Japan and an intimate acquaintance with its people, language and customs, I can say that there is no feeling in the heart of the responsible Japanese against the people of the United States."

PLANS ARMOR PLANT AT $3,000,000 COST

Secretary Daniels Will Recommend to Congress That Government Make Its Own Plate.

CALLS BIDDING A FARCE

System by Which Companies Now Divide the Business Denounced as Practically a Subsidy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Secretary Daniels has mapped out an extensive inquiry and expects to be able to recommend to Congress in December the erection of an armor plant, which it is estimated can be installed for about $3,000,000.

Mr. Daniels said to-day that the Navy Department had adopted a policy toward the armor plate companies which made competitive bidding a farce. As an illustration, he cited recent bids received for armor plate, and said:

"The Bethlehem Company bid $454.65 and $519.60 per ton on Class A; $497.95 on Class B, and $549.91 on Class C. The Carnegie Company bid $455 and $520 per ton for Class A; $498 for Class B, and $550 for Class C. The Midvalve Company bid $454 and $518 per ton for Class A; $496 for Class B, and $548 for Class C.

"It would be natural to suppose that the lowest bidder would receive the award, but such was not the case. On the theory that all three companies must be encouraged to maintain their armor-plate departments, the contract was arbitrarily divided among them on the basis of the lowest bid."

This has been the established custom of the department. The Secretary said that bids for forgings for 14-inch guns were presented to him for approval. The Midvale and Bethlehem companies bid practically the same figures. The same thing happened as to towers. Secretary Daniels wrote to each company asking for an explanation. He received frank replies from H. M. Deemer, Secretary of the Midvale Company, and E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Company, stating the avowed policy of the department to divide the business. President Grace said in his letter:

"In view of that practice it has come to be understood by every manufacturer that the naming of a lower figure by him would merely lower the price that he and each one of his competitors would receive for a part of the order."

"If we are going to subsidize the Carnegie, Midvale, and Bethlehem companies," said Mr. Daniels, "let us do so honestly and man fashion by statute, without hypocritical evasion of the intent of Congress to force competition."

The Secretary called attention to the fact that the price had been steadily creeping up.

PUTS BAN ON VICE REPORT.

Postal Inspector Says Clergy Shall Not Send It by Mail.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—Ministers of the Protestant Episcopal diocese who recently planned to have 10,000 copies of the report of the Philadelphia Vice Commission printed and distributed, have been bitterly denounced by Chief Postal Inspector James Cortelyou, who announced to-day that he would prevent its being sent through the mails. Cortelyou described the report of the investigators as unprintable filth, and said that the ministers had no right even to contemplate using the mail for its distribution.

The Vice Commission report consists of 165 pages of descriptive matter, and the vice question is dwelt upon plainly, together with many passages quoted from the testimony of inmates of the now quarantined section. At the time the commission presented the report to Mayor Blankenburg it was without sufficient funds to have more than a few copies printed.

At the meeting of the Episcopal diocese it was proposed by Bishop Philip Rhinelander that vice might be more effectively attacked in all sections of the country if the report had a wide circulation. This was unanimously decided upon, and a fund of $700, to which Samuel S. Fels, the Single Tax advocate, and Edward B. Smith are said to have contributed, was immediately raised to be used for printing 10,000 copies of the report.

Inspector Cortelyou was greatly surprised when he learned that the ministers had planned to use the mails in their widespread fight against vice, and said:

"I have read the Vice Commission's report and consider it one of the most filthy affairs that have ever come under my notice in banned mailed matter. I shall certainly nip in the bud any attempt that Bishop Rhinelander or any one else may make to send the book through the United States mail. To my mind it is an outrage to release 10,000 copies of this report, which would probably fall into the hands of children, and not a copy will ever leave this Post Office."

TO DEPORT DOMINGUEZ.

Woman Who Came Here with Mexican Will Be Sent Back to France.

Carlos Dominguez, the young Mexican, who arrived on Tuesday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. from Cherbourg, has been ordered deported by the Board of Special Inquiry at Ellis Island. The French woman who traveled with him as his wife will also be deported.

Thus far Dominguez has not made any appeal to Washington to be allowed to proceed by steamer to Vera Cruz on his way to see his family in Mexico City. His companion will be sent back to France, as her mother cabled from Paris to the French Consul General in New York asking his aid to prevent her daughter continuing the journey to Mexico.

DEFENDS TANGO PICTURES.

Magistrate McAdoo Advises Comstock to Investigate Cafes.

Magistrate McAdoo in the Tombs Court told Anthony Comstock yesterday to go to the cafés if he wanted to stamp out the turkey trot, but not to try to do so by arresting vendors who offered for sale postcards having pictures of these dances.

Mr. Comstock got this advice after he had caused the arrest in Fulton Street of Sol Rosenblum, a seventeen-year-old peddler. Mr. Comstock said that he was attracted by the cry of the defendant. He investigated, and after seeing the pictures, arrested the boy. Magistrate McAdoo looked at the exhibits and said:

"I don't see anything wrong in these pictures. They simply show the new dances, such as the turkey trot and the tango."

Mr. Comstock protested and said he believed that the positions of the dancers in the picture were offensive.

"That's only the way they dance now," the Magistrate replied, "and if you object to such things go to the fashionable cafés and watch the dancing. I do not want to go on record as approving the turkey trot, but I fear that you, in the long years of your experience in vice crusading, have become perhaps a trifle too strict in drawing lines between the objectionable and what is not so meant by law."

Rosenblum was fined $3, however, for peddling without a license.

SHERIDAN CASE GOES OVER.

Magistrate McAdoo Says a Prima Facie Case Has Been Made Out.

Joseph P. Sheridan, the independent ice dealer who is charged with extortion by the Knickerbocker Ice Co., did not improve his defense when the preliminary hearing was resumed yesterday before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. The cross-examination of the chief witness for the prosecution, Charles C. Small, a district superintendent for the ice company, failed to change any material feature of his circumstantial evidence concerning the giving of $1,000 in marked bills to Sheridan.

The Magistrate interrupted the hearing several times to warn the attorney for the defense, Andrew S. Fraser, that he was using dilatory tactics, and ordered him to hasten the taking of testimony. When Fraser asked the witness if he had been shaved on a certain day, Lloyd P. Stryker, of counsel for the ice company, protested.

"Can't I be heard, your Honor?" asked Fraser.

"No; I won't hear you. Proceed!" insisted the Magistrate. Fraser managed to say, however, that the case was going to rest on a question of memory between the witness and the defendant.

"Sheridan told me that the liquor dealers had arranged to give $5,000 to him, with which to conduct a campaign for them for cheaper ice, and if the Knickerbocker Company wanted to call him off he would have to have $1,000," Small testified.

Afterward they got Sheridan to go to the branch office in Flushing, where a dictaphone had been arranged in a room by advice of Assistant District Attorneys Wasservogel and De Ford.

"I gave to Sheridan one $500 bill and five bills of $100 each," said Small. "He offered to break $100 and buy a bottle of wine, but I told him I preferred beer, which I paid for."

According to the witness, they had, in addition to the dictaphone, a bottle of whisky for Sheridan in the Flushing office.

"Why?" asked Attorney Fraser.

"Because I told them 'this fellow likes his booze.'"

Small said Sheridan was sober when he met him that day, but he wasn't so sure about his condition when they parted that night.

Magistrate McAdoo said he believed a prima facie case had been established against the defendant, and that he would advise the District Attorney to take the matter before the Grand Jury. Meantime he adjourned the hearing until May 27.

SOLOMON COHN KILLED.

First Battery, N. G., N. Y., Man Thrown from Horse in Park.

Solomon Cohn of 304 West Seventy-second Street, a member of the First Battery, N. G. N. Y., died in Roosevelt Hospital yesterday as the result of injuries received when he was thrown from his horse in Central Park Tuesday night. He went home without assistance after being thrown, but during the night suffered from severe pains in the head. His condition was such yesterday morning that his brother Charles called a taxicab and hurried him to Roosevelt Hospital. Scarcely had the surgeons there discovered that he was suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries when he died.

$1,200 Job for Some Philatelist.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The National Museum wants a philatelist to overhaul and arrange the collection of stamps now in storage in the Museum, and the Civil Service Commission announces that an open competitive examination to fill the office will be held on June 23. Competitors will not be required to appear for examination, but will be rated on statements of their qualifications contained in blank forms to be furnished to them on application. The position will pay $1,200 a year, but there is no certainty of its permanency. "Practical experience as a postage-stamp dealer is a prerequisite for consideration for this position," says the Civil Service Commission in its notice.

PRESBYTERIAN TILT OVER KENNEDY FUND

Moderator's Gavel Shattered in Rebuking Personalities at Assembly.

DR. ATERBERY ACCUSED

Resolution Against Religious Garb in Government Schools Opposed Without Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, May 21.—The fund of $500,000, known as the John S. Kennedy fund, which the executive commission of the Church wished to add to the loan fund, enlivened to-day's session of the assembly of the Northern Presbyterians and brought about a sharp exchange between Dr. Charles L. Thompson and Dr. Anson Aterbery of New York.

Dr. Thompson charged that the most persistent opposition to the merging of the fund came from the Secretary of the board. This brought Dr. Aterbery to his feet.

"I want to correct the gentleman's unjustifiable, untrue, and unfair charge," exclaimed Moderator Stone, who shattered his gavel in an attempt to restore order, and he told Dr. Thompson and Dr. Aterbery that personalities would not be permitted.

The report was submitted with recommendations that the board exercise great care in granting aid to churches, allowing grants not exceeding $1,000 and loans without interest not exceeding $3,000.

Included in the report was a resolution calling upon President Wilson to forbid teachers in Government schools to wear any badge or uniform distinctive of any religious denomination. Representative Scott of Kansas opposed this resolution on the ground that it would drive the Roman Catholic Sisters from these schools.

All of the members of the Home Mission Board whose terms expired this year were re-elected, with the exception of the Rev. S. J. Nichols. His place was left vacant temporarily.

AUTO SUIT IS SETTLED.

Agreed Judgment of $4,500 for Mrs. Julia L. Smith from J. E. Brulatour.

When the trial of the $25,000 suit brought by Mrs. Julia L. Smith against Jules E. Brulatour for the killing of her husband by the importer's automobile was resumed yesterday Supreme Court Justice Platzek said that an agreement had been reached by the litigants, and instructed the jury to award the plaintiff a verdict of $4,500. Brulatour was not in the automobile when Smith was run down, and Dora Gibson of 412 West 148th Street, who was, testified that she had been using the car for more than a year. She said that she and Mr. Brulatour were good friends, but when asked if she was acquainted with Mrs. Brulatour she said "no."

Brulatour volunteered the information that, although he was not divorced from his wife, Dora Gibson was his fiancée, and that he intended marrying her as soon as his wife obtained her divorce. In making this statement Brulatour addressed himself directly to Justice Platzek, explaining that he wanted to counteract any insinuations which might be made at the trial.

SULZER HITS BOSSES IN WHITE'S DISTRICT

cause I believe in this that in a speech some time ago I told Mr. Murphy to stay in his own political bailiwick. I think I know the Tiger. I think I know the Tiger's place. It should be in a cage, and that's where we will put it before we get through.

"I do not know if Mr. White is here. I hope he is. He ought to be here if he isn't."

The Senator was not there. After the meeting was over he said that he had made a futile attempt to get in.

"From what I have seen on the streets since I got here," said the Governor, "I know that the overwhelming sentiment here is for nominations by the people, not by the bosses. Three years ago I came here one day after Mr. Roosevelt had spoken for an entire afternoon. I spoke an entire afternoon myself. Mr. White told me then that I had swung enough votes to elect him. Last year I came here and said all the good things I could say regarding Senator White. He just squeezed through. Next year, if I come here and tell you what I know about him, and I will do it unless he votes right on this bill, he will not get in at all.

"Webster said that the function of the people's representatives was to represent, and that if they no longer could represent their constituents they should resign. So few of them resign and they are generally so slow in dying that the people have come to clamor wildly for their recall.

"I know that a Governor with twenty months more to serve, and lots to keep him busy at the Capitol, going about asking favors of the voters is a sorry spectacle. But I have got to do it in order to make good, and I am going to make good.

No Compromise, He Says.

"I want you to appoint a committee before this meeting is over to call on Mr. White, and plead with him to vote for you and not for the bosses. If he spurns your pleadings you tell him what you will do to him when election day comes around. My experience is that men who want to stay in public life have a wholesome fear of the people's wrath."

Senator White was found in the street not far from the opera house after the meeting. "I tried to get in, but the place was too crowded," said the Senator in reply to a question.

When told what the Governor had said about him, he said very emphatically: "It will make no difference to me. I will not change my vote."

"If the Governor wants to make trouble let him start something," said a politician who was with the Senator at the time. "If he does we will show him a trick or two which will make him wish he had never tried to start a fight in this county."

Thomas Mott Osborne, Charles F. Rattigan, who aspires to the Wardenship of Auburn Prison; John Mitchell, and Ray W. Forrest, a Progressive Democrat whom Patrick E. McCabe ousted from the Albany County organization for disloyalty, were among the speakers at the meetings to-night. John Mitchell was cheered and applauded when he made his appearance at the opera house.

In Schenectady the Governor is supported by the faction headed by Gerardus Smith, a newspaper publisher, who represents the Schenectady-Schoharie-Montgomery district on the Democratic State Committee. Gerardus Smith, however, is not looked upon as the real leader of this county. The man recognized as such by the organization is James C. McDonald, who was appointed to the Board of Claims by ex-Gov. Dix. The county organization regards him as the controlling power, but of course all that may be changed in the twinkling of an eye should Gov. Sulzer announce his recognition of Gerardus Smith in patronage matters.

The Governor followed that course in the adjoining county of Albany, where he cut off Patrick E. McCabe, the Murphy leader, and announced that all the patronage in the gift of the Governor and such State officials as he controlled would be bestowed upon Daniel J. Dugan, a local rival of McCabe. When the Governor came to Schenectady to-night he brought State Committeeman Dugan of Albany along as an object lesson and a reminder.

Gov. Sulzer spent several hours at the Executive Mansion to-day recuperating from the fatigue of his speechmaking trip. He did not go to the Capitol until late in the afternoon. To newspaper correspondents who met him at the usual hour, the Governor imparted the information that five Assemblymen who had voted against his Direct Nominations bill at the regular session had pledged themselves to vote for it at the extra session. The Governor was pressed for names and particulars, but gave out none. It was reported, however, that one of the five was John Augustus Kelly, a Democrat representing the Second District of Dutchess County.

It was reported to-day that the Governor would lose no time in making good his promise to William J. Conners of Buffalo, who gave Mr. Sulzer to understand that he would not continue to use his influence to further the Governor's campaign unless the axe descended on officeholders who owed their appointments to the influence of William H. Fitzpatrick, the Murphy leader in Western New York.

In this connection it was said to-day that Gov. Sulzer had notified Devoe P. Hodson, a Fitzpatrick man whom Mr. Sulzer appointed to a Public Service Commissionership, that he could not hope to retain his place unless he could induce Mr. Fitzpatrick to whip the Erie legislators of the Democratic faith in line for the Direct Nominations bill. It is not regarded as probable that Mr. Fitzpatrick will yield to threats, since he has failed to yield to promises. The Governor is authorized to remove Public Service Commissioners without the approval of the Senate.

GRIFFIN TO SULZER.

Senator Says He Should Tremble in His Policy of Rule or Ruin.

State Senator Anthony J. Griffin of the Twenty-second District sent Gov. Sulzer an open letter yesterday regarding direct primaries, in which he charges the Governor with trying to wreck his party and in setting up a man of straw. The Senator says that he has always been an advocate of direct nominations and election reform, but he does not see how any good will be accomplished by adopting so stringent a direct primary bill as the Governor recommends. He says he voted against the Sulzer bill with the full consciousness of what he was doing, and that the question was not so much one of keeping party pledges as of "keeping inviolate the fundamental principles of representative government. Says the Senator:

> Your campaign for direct primaries is gratuitous and unnecessary. You have made for yourself a straw man, and I have no doubt that he, being perfectly defenseless, will succumb to your onslaught. Gladiator-like, you have thrown down your gauntlet; but here the simile ends. You do not, like the gladiator of old, look for an antagonist. You assume that there is none, except your straw man aforesaid. You stand in the centre of the arena; you let loose your magic tongue; you pronounce your ipse dixit, and, behold, all men must acclaim your greatness, your wisdom, and your glory.

Elsewhere Senator Griffin refers to the Governor as "Sulzer the First," and "The High Priest of direct primaries with a mission from Heaven to put on the rack all who do not worship at your shrine."

"I am not surprised," he adds, "that you should have the support of every element in the State that is hostile to Democracy. This very fact alone should make you tremble in your headlong policy of rule or ruin."

MAY BE A RIVAL MEETING.

Hearstites Said to be Planning One for the Night of May 28.

When Gov. Sulzer speaks at Carnegie Hall on the night of May 28 in favor of his Direct Primary bill there may be a rival primary reform meeting at Cooper Union, organized by the followers of William R. Hearst, as a result of trouble that has begun in Gov. Sulzer's war board.

Thirteen of the twenty-five members of the Executive Committee of the Board appointed by the Gov. to carry on his primary fight met a week ago Tuesday at the Reform Club to arrange for the Governor's itinerary while in the city. It was decided to have the Governor speak at Carnegie Hall, but the Non-Partisan Direct Primary League, of which Charles H. Duell is chairman and which is made up of Progressives, had already made arrangements to have the Governor speak under their auspices on May 28.

At a subsequent meeting at the Reform Club there was a long argument regarding who the other speakers would be. The rival McAneny, Mitchel and Whitman factions among the Progressives and the Independence Leaguers were suspicious of each other, and each faction tried to further the interests of its own candidate.

To further complicate the situation an entirely new organization for the purpose of fighting for primary reform was started. It is the New York County Committee Direct Primary Campaign, of which County Clerk William F. Schneider is Chairman. At a meeting yesterday of this latter organization this Executive Committee was appointed: William Grant Brown, J. Hampden Dougherty, Collin H. Woodward, John J. Hopper, Dr. A. Kozma, J. L. Manning, and Bert Hansen. The committee will meet to-day at the Reform Club, 90 South William Street, to formulate plans for holding meetings in every Assembly District of Progressive Republicans, Independent Democrats, and Independence Leaguers.

It was said last night that when the Hearst followers learned that the Progressives had obtained Carnegie Hall for May 28 they tried to have the contract broken and to have the Hall leased for that night to them. Failing in this, it was said that they have planned a meeting of their own at Cooper Union, and that an effort would be made to have Mr. McAneny, Mr. Mitchel, Mr. Whitman, Mr. Prendergast, and Mr. Hearst speak there instead of at Carnegie Hall.

LOW FOR DIRECT PRIMARY.

But He Advises Sulzer to Accept Compromise, if Necessary.

ALBANY, May 21.—Seth Low has notified Gov. Sulzer that he will support him in his effort to have a direct primary bill enacted. In the event of the Legislature failing to agree with the Governor on the question of abolishing the State Conventions, Mr. Low urges the Executive to accept a compromise measure.

Mr. Low's letter to the Governor follows:

> Upon reflection, I have determined to support you in your advocacy of your direct primary bill. I should very much prefer the bill if it retained the State Convention, as I have already written to you; but, taking the issue just as it stands, I have concluded that you deserve the support of all men who wish to put an end to what has been called the "invisible Government." If, after the campaign, you find that you can get all of your bill except the abolition of the State Convention, I hope that you will be willing to accept that rather than allow the other meritorious parts of your measure to fall to the ground. Mr. Evarts once said to me that politics was navigation, and not an exact science, and therefore precisely as I am yielding my judgment as to an important detail, in view of the exigencies of the situation, so, I hope, if you can get everything else except the State Convention, that in the end you also will yield to the exigencies of the situation in that regard. I think as I wrote to you the other day that if the State-wide primary is maintained for the United States Senators you can justify this concession as to the State officers.

POPE RECEIVES O'CONNELL.

Speaks to Boston Cardinal of the Church's Progress in America.

ROME, May 21.—The Pope to-day received Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, in private audience. He greeted him most cordially and expressed the greatest satisfaction at his visit.

The Pope discussed with Cardinal O'Connell the Missionary Congress to be held in Boston next October. He said he knew it would give a great impetus to the cause of missions and would be a great success owing to the constant progress of the Catholic Church in America generally and in Boston particularly. He also referred to the loyalty of the clergy and the piety of the faithful in the United States.

Cardinal O'Connell summed up the impression he had received from his interview.

"The Pope," he said, "seemed like a man, who, after a sleep, had awakened fresher, stronger, revitalized."

The Cardinal was accompanied to the Vatican by Mgr. Michael J. Splaine of the Archdiocese of Boston, and Dr. Slattery, Superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston. Mgr. Splaine and Dr. Slattery remained in an antechamber, as it was understood that the Pontiff would receive only Cardinals and Bishops on important business. Nevertheless, the Pope, learning of their presence, asked to have them presented. They excused themselves on the ground that they were not suitably attired, and the Pontiff did not press the invitation.

SHERIFF'S TEXT, OYSTERS.

But He Digresses to Talk About the Flag and Bombs.

Sheriff Julius Harburger attended yesterday's session of the convention of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association at the Park Avenue Hotel. Sheriff Harburger made a speech, in which he said:

"I am a great lover of the mollusk, a bivalve that millions devour. If oyster beds were in New York County, I would drive the thieving vandals into deep water, to be swept into the sea. I am proud of the fact that Boston had a law passed yesterday and signed by the Governor, that none but the American Flag shall be unfurled in the line of parades. This follows the State of Pennsylvania. If I was in chief authority, I would do the same. It would stop conspirators and other revolutionists from insulting the flag. It will come to this, as I will keep on in my agitation until this county or State will put it on the statute book.

"Last night a bomb was near exploding in my neighborhood. If it exploded it might have killed twenty-four families. It is a crying outrage that these incarnate devils are not found out—murderers, detestable cowards, evil in mind and bodies. Their day will come."

Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, told the oystermen that oysterbeds from Cape Cod to Texas were to be examined by the department. When polluted beds were found the department would bar their product from inter-State commerce. An exaggerated fear of the oyster as a source of disease, Dr. Alsberg said, was a factor adding to the high cost of living. He said that the department also would see to it that oysters from wholesome beds were handled in a sanitary manner.

Rosenthal's First Wife Sentenced.

Dora Gilbert, the first wife of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was sentenced to thirty days in the Workhouse yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions for keeping a disorderly house. She was convicted last week, Justice Zeller dissenting from Justices McInerney and Herrman. She persisted yesterday, as she had done through her trial, that she was the victim of a police "frame-up."

FRENCH SOLDIERS ANGRY.

Demonstrate Against Three-Year Term—Malcontents Sent to Africa.

PARIS, May 21.—Some French soldiers are displaying considerable opposition to the decision of the Government to keep them for another year in the service, instead of discharging them at the expiration of their two-year term. There have been demonstrations in a number of garrison towns, and the Government is acting with great energy in suppressing the opposition.

A number of soldiers who took part in a demonstration at Toulon on Sunday were tried by court-martial and sentenced to serve the rest of their terms with the disciplinary battalions in Northern Africa.

At Macon yesterday 100 soldiers assembled in the public square and sang the "International," the Socialist hymn. Speeches were made condemning the introduction of the three-year term of military service.

BELGIAN LOSS BY STRIKE.

State Railways Out $1,000,000, Owing to Suffrage Demonstration.

BRUSSELS, May 21.—The State railways of Belgium suffered a net loss of income of $1,000,000 owing to the ten days' strike for equal suffrage in April. The official statistics, just issued, show that the sum earned in April was $520,000 less than in the same month last year, and to this is added the sum of $480,000, representing the normal annual increase.

The port of Antwerp lost 250,000 tons of trade in April, as compared with the same period last year, 78 fewer vessels calling owing to the difficulties of loading and unloading during the strike.

ALL BERLIN GREETS BRITISH MONARCHS

Kaiser and Kaiserin and Other Royalties at Station to Meet King George and Queen Mary.

A NEW TREATY RUMORED

Belgians Alarmed by Report of an Anglo-German Understanding in Regard to Central Africa.

BERLIN, May 21.—True "Hohenzollern weather"—brilliant sunshine and cloudless skies—has set in for the wedding festivities of Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the German Emperor, and Prince Ernest Augustus of Cumberland, which will take place on Saturday.

The official receptions began this morning with the arrival here of the bridegroom and the State entry into Berlin of King George and Queen Mary of England.

There was no ceremony to greet Prince Ernest Augustus when he reached the station at 8:25 A. M. He drove at once in an automobile to the castle, where he took breakfast with his bride-to-be before returning to the station to meet the British monarchs.

At the station awaiting the arrival of the royal train were the Emperor and the Crown Prince in the uniforms of their British regiments, together with the Empress and Princess Victoria Louise. All the royal personages assembled in Berlin, and a mass of brilliantly uniformed military and naval officers and Ministerial and Court functionaries surrounded them.

King George and Queen Mary, when they alighted from the train were greeted with the customary cordial embraces by the Emperor and Empress and the other members of the imperial family. King George and Emperor William then jointly passed in review the guard of honor drawn up on the platform.

The two monarchs together and the Queen and Empress side by side then drove in open state carriages through the Avenue of Victory and Unter den Linden to the Castle, each carriage being escorted by a squadron of cavalry with pennoned lances. The wide thoroughfares were lined with troops of the Guards regiment, and behind them all Berlin seemed to have gathered.

The dirigible balloons Zeppelin and Hansa, flying the British colors, had accompanied the royal train from Rathenow, about fifty miles away, and hovered over the carriages as they drove toward the castle.

BRUSSELS, May 21.—An article published by the Berlin Post reporting the conclusion of an Anglo-German understanding with respect to Central Africa is causing the Belgian press great alarm.

The opinion is expressed by the newspapers here that the pourparlers preceding the understanding have been the cause of the delay in Great Britain's acknowledgment of Belgian sovereignty in the Congo.

It is recalled that Germany displayed suspicious anxiety to become Belgium's neighbor in Central Africa at the time of the Franco-German treaty regarding Morocco.

Paris Chauffeur Is Drowned as Were Isadora Duncan's Children.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 21.—A chauffeur was drowned in the Seine to-day in circumstances recalling the death of the children of Isadora Duncan.

Several taxicabs were taking some actors to the banks of the Seine to play a scene before a cinematograph camera. One of the cabs in which an actress was sitting skidded on the narrow quay and plunged into the river, which was swollen with the recent rains. The actress, with great presence of mind, opened the door and sprang out the moment the car entered the water. The chauffeur, hampered by the steering wheel and unable to free himself, disappeared in the water. An actor dived four times for him, and two of the crew of a passing tug also plunged in, but without success. The body was not recovered.

STORY OF CAPT. SCOTT RETOLD BY EVANS

His Chief Aid in the Antarctic Describes Expedition's Trials to London Audience.

LADY SCOTT A LISTENER

Lecturer Pays Tribute to Dr. Wilson as the "Solomon of the Party" —Some Narrow Escapes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 21.—Before an immense and distinguished audience in the Royal Albert Hall to-night, Commander Evans delivered his eagerly awaited lecture on the British South Polar Expedition, which cost the lives of Capt. Scott and his companions. Commander Evans was second in command of the expedition.

Lady Scott and the widows of other explorers who perished were present. Lord Curzon of Kedleston presided, and among those who listened to Commander Evans's thrilling narrative were Prince Louis of Battenberg, the Duke of Somerset, Lord Dunraven, Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell, Admiral the Hon Sir Edmund Fremantle, Sir Archibald Hunter, Sir Frederick Lugard, Sir Clements Markham, ex-President of the Royal Geographical Society; Admiral Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Edgar Speyer, and Sir Felix Schuster.

With Commander Evans on the platform were the following members of the Scott expedition: Lieut. Campbell, Lieut. Bruce, Surgeon Atkinson, and Messrs. Drake, Meares, Ponting, Cherry Garrard, Priestley, Gran, and Mather. The occasion was only semi-public, those present consisting of members of the Royal Geographical Society and their friends, but there was not a vacant seat in the great hall, which holds 8,000 persons.

Lord Curzon, in introducing Commander Evans, said the latter was about to tell "a tremendous tale of human adventure." He added that the Scott expedition had resulted in a contribution of the first importance to the world's knowledge of the antarctic continent and seas, and that this would be a better monument to Scott and his men than any sculptured effigy or carved inscription.

Commander Evans's story was told with remarkable modesty and contempt for dramatic effect. The speaker was content for the most part to describe the splendid photographs of the expedition that were thrown on a huge screen. The audience was enthusiastic, and when a picture of Capt. Scott and his party at the pole was displayed there was great applause.

Commander Evans's Lecture.

Commander Evans, after telling the story of the Terra Nova's southward voyage in 1910, described the work of depot laying, which was the first operation after the base station had been established at McMurdo Sound. Here an exciting adventure befell Scott, Meares, Wilson, and Cherry Garrard on a journey with the dogs.

"Scott and Meares," Commander Evans said, "had the misfortune to run along the snow bridge of a crevasse. The bridge gave way, and all the dogs but Osman, the leader, and the two rear animals disappeared down a yawning chasm. With the greatest difficulty the dogs were rescued. Scott and Meares were lowered by Wilson and Cherry Garrard into the crevasse. They found the dogs twisting around, suspended by their harness, fighting, howling, and snapping. One by one they were freed from the traces and hauled up on solid ice. As each animal regained safety he lay down and slept. It was an anxious period for all concerned. Capt. Scott spoke most highly of the behavior of Wilson, Meares, and Cherry Garrard on this occasion."

The Commander next told of the experiences with the ponies so graphically related by Scott in his cabled dispatches, more particularly referring to the narrow escape of Lieut. Bowers's detachment on the sea ice when returning from building up "One Ton" depot. A touch of humor was forthcoming when he said that the three oldest and weakest ponies, whose rightful names were Blossom, Blucher, and James Pigg, and who were in such poor condition that Capt. Oates expected them all to give out on the return march after the depot journey, were named by the seamen "the Baltic fleet." Two of the trio succumbed to the severe weather, but James Pigg was a plucky little animal and he survived.

Some account followed of the time spent by the various depot parties at Hut Point, in the old "Discovery" hut, while waiting for the sea to freeze over and make a return to Cape Evans possible, and the Commander then came to the arrival on March 14 of Griffith-Taylor's party after a geological reconnaissance.

Many Garnets Found.

Taylor and his companions traversed the Ferrar Glacier, and then came down a new glacier, which Scott named after Taylor, into the Dry Valley, so-called because it was entirely free from snow. Their way led over a deep fresh-water lake four miles long, which was only surface frozen and was full of algae. The gravel below a promising region of limestones, rich in garnets, was washed for gold, but only magnetite was found, and the party subsequently went southward to examine the Koettlitz Glacier.

Some striking photographs were here shown of the ice which these explorers had to traverse, the surface in one instance being so bad that two days were occupied in covering six miles. Incidentally Commander Evans paid a high tribute to the work accomplished by H. G. Ponting, the photographer of the expedition, who went everywhere with his camera and cinematograph machine, and "would get seals to pose for him, if he wished, by his persuasive methods."

Another tribute paid by him was to Dr. Wilson, one of Scott's companions in death. "He helped us all," said the Commander when talking of the first Winter in the Far South. "He was our Solomon. To 'Uncle Bill' we all went for sound, practical advice. Wilson was a friend and companion to Capt. Scott, and, indeed, to all in the expedition."

In June, 1911, Dr. Wilson, Bowers, and Cherry Garrard undertook a remarkable journey to Cape Crozier to observe the incubation of Emperor penguins at their rookery. During this journey the temperatures, which were seldom above minus 60 degrees, actually fell to 77 degrees below zero —109 degrees of frost—and when Cape Crozier was reached after a fortnight of hardships only about 100 Emperor penguins could be seen.

The Penguins' Mistake.

Wilson, on his return, said he picked up rounded pieces of ice which the stupid birds had been cherishing, fondly imagining they were eggs. "The maternal instinct of the penguin is very strong," said the lecturer.

A fearful hurricane swept down on this party at Cape Crozier on Wilson's birthday, and they dared not stir out of the meagre shelter afforded by their sleeping bags. "Wilson prayed hard that they might be spared," said the Commander. "His prayer was answered, but, as you know, two of this courageous little band lost their lives later on in their eager thirst for scientific knowledge."

Commander Evans then turned to the tragic story of the southern expedition. He had some things to say at the start about the motor sledges from which Scott hoped so much. The air-cooled engines frequently became overheated, and by the time they were reasonably cooled the carburetor would refuse duty. It often had to be warmed up with a blow lamp. The motors, it was true, advanced the necessities for the southern journey fifty-one miles, but at the expense of the men who had charge of them.

After telling how Scott, delayed at the start by bad weather and by the weakness of his animals, joined the advance party in November, 1911, in latitude 80.32 south, longitude 169.23 east. Commander Evans went on to describe the march toward the pole, remarking that Capt. Scott's plans worked easily and well. Depots, each containing one week's ration for every returning unit, were made every sixty-five miles.

"We were all so happy and full of life on the march over the great ice barrier," he said, "that we would often wrestle and skylark at the end of the day." He touched briefly but vividly on the main incidents of the march already narrated by Scott himself, and gave a graphic account of the four days' blizzard which held up the travelers at the foot of the Beardmore Glacier. Meares and the Russian dog boy Dimitri, he said, traveled further south than their return rations allowed for in order to help the others at this stage, and on their return 450-mile northward march to Cape Evans went short of one meal a day—a dreadful thing on an antarctic sledge journey—rather than deplete the depots.

Shackleton's Work Useful.

The Beardmore Glacier was overcome in fine weather without great difficulty, the party being helped by Shackleton's charts, diaries, and experience. "We often discussed Shackleton's journey," said Commander Evans, "and we were amazed at his fine performance. We always had full rations, which Shackleton's party never enjoyed at this stage."

The third supporting party, consisting of Atkinson, Wright, Cherry Garrard, and Keohane, started on its return on Dec. 22 and reached Cape Evans on Jan. 28, after suffering enteritis and scurvy, through which they were brought safely by Dr. Atkinson's care and medical knowledge.

Soon after leaving the Beardmore, the Southern Party encountered enormous crevasses, described by the lecturer as being "as big as Regent Street." The snow-bridges over them were taken at the rush, and there were no serious falls, though men frequently fell through up to the armpits just after stepping on or leaving the bridges. Lashly celebrated his birthday on Christmas Day by falling into a crevasse eight feet wide. The laden sledge just bridged the chasm, and he was suspended beneath it, spinning around with 80 feet of clear space beneath him. When he was brought to the surface one of the party wished him a happy Christmas and another "Many Happy Returns."

"I won't tell you what Lashly's reply was," said the Commander.

Christmas and the New Year were passed, the former celebrated by a feast which took away all inclination for a bending effort, and then, on Jan. 3, Bowers, who, according to the original plans, would have returned with Commnader Evans and so escaped death, was taken into the polar party, Scott saying he was sure he could reach the pole if the others gave up one man and returned short-handed. On the following day the two parties separated, little suspecting the tragic nature of the parting. Commander Evans thus described the incident:

"We halted, shook hands all around, and said good-bye. Up till then no traces of the successful Norwegians had been seen, and we all fondly imagined that our flag would be the first to fly at the south pole. We gave three huge cheers for the Southern Party as they stepped off, and then turned our sledge and commenced our homeward march of nearly 800 miles. We frequently looked back until we saw the last of Capt. Scott and his four companions, a tiny black speck on the horizon, and little did we think that we were the last to see them alive; that our cheers were the last appreciation they would ever know."

Heroism of Evans's Companions.

The story of Commander Evans's northward march has already been told and retold, but it was with a fresh thrill that the audience listened to his own story of the heroism of his companions, Crean and Lashly, who, when he was taken down by scurvy, stood by him and dragged him on the sledge 73 miles to Hut Point. The fact that they were a man short handicapped them from the start. The lecturer said:

"I did not wish to alarm my seamen companions by telling them at this early stage that we must march longer hours to get home, and so put on the hands of my watch one hour." They therefore turned out an hour earlier each day.

Returning once again to the doings of the Southern Party, Commander Evans said the observations by Amundsen and Scott at the pole differed only by one scale division on the theodolite, which was graduated to half a minute of an arc.

"Lady Scott," he said, "remarked on the magnificent spirit shown by her husband and his four specially selected tent-mates when they knew that Queen Alexandra's little silk Union Jack had been anticipated by the flag of another nation. Scott and his comrades had done their best, and never from one of them came an uncharitable remark."

Commander Evans's account of the polar party's return march was practically identical with that contained in his historic cablegram from New Zealand. Here and there came a fresh touch. For instance, Oates, whose feet and hands were badly frostbitten, constantly appealed to Wilson for advice. What should he do, what could he do?

"Poor, gallant soldier, we thought such worlds of him!" said the Commander. "Wilson could only answer 'Slog on, just slog on.'

Commander Evans, for reasons which everybody present could appreciate, touched but lightly on the final tragedy, breaking off with a suddenness that was itself eloquent, with an expression of the hope that, for Scott's sake and Wilson's, justice would be done to the scientific records of the heroic party.

An account of the adventures of Lieut. Campbell's party formed the concluding portion of Commander Evans's lecture. The Commander, before resuming his seat, also praised the work done by the Terra Nova, whose staff, he said, had been ably assisted by the seamen and stokers, worthy fellows, whose by-word had been, "Play the Game."

NEGRO LEGISLATORS VEXED.

Black Cuban Lawmakers' Families Not Invited to Opera.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 21.—The new Government's first clash on the color question occurred to-day when negro Congressmen became highly indignant because their invitations to a gala performance of the opera this evening read "Personal," whereas those received by the white members included their families.

Owing to the failure of the Conjunctists' majority to agree on legislative questions, Speaker Lanuza of the House resigned to-day for the second time. He offered his resignation several days ago, but the majority asked him to reconsider it and he did so.

The House named to-day three Commissioners to represent it at the Maine ceremonies in New York.

CHINA LOAN A BIG SUCCESS.

Six Times Subscribed in London—In Great Demand in Paris.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 21.—As was generally expected, the Chinese loan was a great success. The subscription lists opened at 10 A. M. and closed at 11:15 A. M. owing to the enormous number of applications.

A conservative estimate in official quarters is that the loan was subscribed more than six times, and this estimate takes no account of the country applications, which will be received until Friday morning. Little fluctuation occurred in the price, which remained in the neighborhood of 1 per cent. premium throughout the day. In Paris the price was as high as 4 per cent. premium. Substantial French subscriptions for London's portion of the loan were received.

BARTLETT IN OTTAWA.

Stefansson's New Captain "Tired of Civilization's Fine Things."

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 21.—Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, the hardy Newfoundlander of 37 years, who has made seven trips into the arctic regions in recent years, four of which were with Peary, and has been chosen by Stefansson to go on a quest for new northern territory, arrived in Ottawa from New York this morning on his way to join his ship at Esquimault, B. C.

Captain "Bob," as he is best known off the Grand Banks, insisted that before saying anything about his projected trip he be allowed to deny the report that, though he was second in command of Peary's successful expedition to seek the north pole, Peary refused to take him to the pole itself.

"It was part of a plan we agreed upon that I did not go," said Capt. Bartlett. "Why, Admiral Peary and I are the best of friends. It was he who thought me all I know about Arctic navigation. Take my word for it, there is nothing in that report. I am here to see the Minister of Marine and Fisheries before I go on through to the Coast. There is no good asking me about the trip, as only Stefansson must talk of that. I am all ready to sail at any time. For the past three years I have been loafing round among all the fine things our advanced civilization affords, and I am tired of them."

M'KENNA, GUARDED, WARNS MILITANTS

Cabinet Members May Refuse to Appear in Public Without Protection.

BOMB IN AN OBSERVATORY

Edinburgh Suffragettes Wreck Astronomical Instruments with Gunpowder.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, May 22.—In consequence of a report that suffragettes were planning to molest him, Home Secretary McKenna was guarded by a crowd of detectives during his visit to Cardiff yesterday. Addressing a Liberal meeting in the evening, Mr. McKenna issued this warning to the militant leaders:

"In the exercise of my office I have become closely acquainted with the inner workings of this organization—an organization which seeks by violence to terrorize and by petty annoyance to frighten and worry the Government into giving the franchise to women, no matter what public sentiment may be with regard to the merits of the question. I can only warn the leaders of this movement that by their action they can bring nothing but discredit upon their cause and punishment upon themselves. Let the leaders of the militant movement prove first that they have a majority behind them—a majority even of women. They have neither reason nor history to justify them now."

A good deal of damage was done to the Royal Observatory in Edinburgh by a suffragette bomb. The ceiling of the room in which it exploded was shattered, and two large windows were blown out and a door forced open. Valuable astronomical instruments were damaged, and a writing desk smashed. A considerable quantity of gunpowder must have been used. A leather bag was found containing papers marked "Votes for Women."

Early this morning a fire in the premises of the Westminster Improved Paving Company at Fulham did damage estimated at $15,000. Suffragette literature was found on the premises.

CARDIFF, May 21.—British Cabinet Ministers are exposed to such risks of being mauled by militants at public meetings that hereafter they are likely to refuse to attend them unless those in charge of the meetings are prepared to guarantee their personal safety.

Because such assurances could not be given him, Home Secretary McKenna did not appear at the Welsh Disestablishment and Free Church conference this afternoon, although he was announced as one of the speakers. It is understood that the authorities learned of a suffragette plot to attack the Secretary at the conference by a method which would not only endanger Mr. McKenna's life, but the lives of the delegates as well.

The Home Secretary, however, addressed a large meeting this evening, a Scotland Yard detective occupying a seat near him on the platform. Elaborate precautions were taken to prevent the admission of suffragettes, and a big force of sturdy stewards was on hand to deal with disturbers. This did not prevent male champions of the suffragettes from getting in, several of whom interrupted the speeches and were roughly ejected.

MORE AMERICANA SOLD.

Volume of Records of the Port Roseway Association Brings $405.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 21.—The manuscripts in to-day's sale at Sotheby's of the Sir Thomas Phillipps collection, consisted chiefly of Americana.

A volume relating to the Loyalists who settled in Nova Scotia brought $405. It consists of the Original Minute Book of the Proceedings of the Port Roseway Association, 1782-83; the Original Muster Book of the Free Black Settlement of Birchtown, Port Roseway, 1784; the Petition of the Overseers of the Poor to the Magistrates of Shelburne, 1789, and "A Sketch of Shelburnian Manners," 1787, in the autograph of District Judge Francis of the Province of New Brunswick. The minutes begin with a list of the associates, who were Loyalists in New York, organized for the purpose of settling at Port Roseway in Nova Scotia in order to remain a part of the British Empire with the immunities of British subjects.

The members were mostly those whose property had been confiscated and lost because they sided with the British Government. Included in these papers is a memorial to Sir Guy Carleton. The Birchtown Muster Book gives the numbers, names, occupations, &c., of the settlers. It is a volume of extreme interest.

A collection of original papers relating to the Government of Virginia, mostly indorsed by William Blathwayt, Commissioner of Trade and Plantations, bound in one volume folio, 1675-1715, sold for $230. Among these papers are the commission of Lord Culpeper as Governor of Virginia, 1675, and the rent roll of the Proprietors of Virginia, 1680-83.

The sale will be continued to-morrow.

S., paid a tribute of admiration to the character of Wilbur Wright, to his brilliant engineering work, and to the scientific method by which he obtained his results.

The invention of Wilbur and Orville Wright, Mr. Darwin said, was not a copy of the flight of birds, for they had never found a biplane bird to copy. If birds knew how to do so, they would copy the Wright brothers' invention.

The property owners are not opposing a city improvement. They recognize the desirability of changing the existing conditions at 34th Street and Park Avenue, and have suggested a plan for carrying out these changes at a MINIMUM EXPENSE and at a MAXIMUM of RESULTS. They oppose the plans of Mr. McAneny, which call for a MAXIMUM EXPENSE and a MINIMUM of RESULTS.

NOTE—Both plans provide for carrying 33d Street across 4th Avenue at grade as a through street, and both plans provide adequate sidewalk and roadway facilities.

The essential difference is that Mr. McAneny's plan provides a grade crossing. The property owners' plan eliminates it.

| DISADVANTAGE OF MR. McANENY'S PLAN. | ADVANTAGE OF THE PROPERTY OWNERS' PLAN. |
|---|---|
| 1. Irreparable injury to private property. | 1. Injures no private property. |
| 2. Excessive cost. About $3,000,000, against $161,000, entailing heavy assessments. | 2. Cost of improvement nominal—about $161,000. |
| 3. Creates a grade crossing where none exists, a distinct retrogression in modern engineering. Increases congestion instead of diminishing it. | 3. Creates an easier grade for north and south bound traffic. |
| 4. Benefits no private property except the Car Barn property (32nd to 33rd Street), now under contract of sale. | 4. Provides good waiting room during inclement weather for those taking the north or south bound 4th Avenue cars. Provides ideal transfer facilities for passengers on both car lines. |
| 5. Establishes an increased grade for north and south bound traffic instead of diminishing such grade. | 5. Does not injure irrevocably one of the finest residential districts in the city. |
| 6. Takes away a park and devotes the space to the New York City Railways. | 6. Takes away no park. |
| 7. Provides for a future Crosstown Subway at first level which the Public Service Commission indicates will never be built. | 7. Provides a dignified approach 120 feet wide at 33rd Street to an avenue 100 feet wide at 32nd Street. |

It should be noted that on May 14th, 1912, Mr. Nelson P. Lewis, Chief Engineer, in reporting on proposed change of grade at 34th Street and Park Avenue, used the following guarded language:

"Assuming that the petitioners for this improvement and other owners of property which would be affected are prepared to pay for the benefit which would accrue to them, it is recommended that the plan be approved after the necessary public hearing."

Is there any evidence that the affected property owners "are prepared to pay for the benefit"?

FAMINE RAVAGES IRISH ISLANDS

Sir Roger Casement Says Connemara Conditions Recall Putumayo.

HE APPEALS FOR RELIEF

Fever Also Afflicts the Primitive Population Described by Synge in His Plays.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 21.—"An Irish Putumayo" is the description applied by Sir Roger Casement to conditions in South Connemara. The islanders are suffering from famine fever. The Irish Independent has opened a subscription to which Sir Roger contributes this letter, written from London:

"I have learned of the appalling state of things in Connemara owing to the absence of anything like civilized government in that part of the world. Were this in truth a United Kingdom the press of its capital would contain some reference to a state of things so near its doors; but I have not seen a single word in any London daily of this dire need of our plague-pestered fellow-subjects in Connemara. I hope very soon to be able to leave London for Ireland, and, if possible, to visit Lettermullen and see whether something lasting cannot be done to remove the stain of this enduring Irish Putumayo from our native land. One thing is clear to me—only Irishmen ad Irishwomen can clear it up."

Sir Roger asks that contributions be placed in the hands of the local priests.

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, yesterday visited the islands with some other Irish officials. They called at the house of John Lee, whose 11-year-old boy died of fever on April 28, and another of whose sons was removed to Oughterard Hospital, thirty miles away. As Mr. Birrell's car drew up the keening of the afflicted mother was heard as she sat outside the door of the hovel rocking herself to and fro.

Mr. Birrell said afterward: "It was the worst dwelling I ever entered." He made a thorough inspection of the islands of Lettermullen and Gorumna, and conversed with one or two peasants in Lee's house, which lies in a rock-bound hollow. The party found the 11-by-8-foot interior reeking with smoke, for which there was no outlet save through the unmortared chinks of the wall. The visitors gave John Lee £2 out of the relief fund.

"How shall you get on when this is gone?" he was asked.

"Musha! I don't know," he replied in Irish. "We must try to live on somehow," and cast his eyes around his two acres of rock. He has a half dozen potatoes in the house.

Sir Roger Casement is well known for his investigation and report of the atrocities perpetrated upon the Indian rubber gatherers in the Putumayo district of Peru.

The Connemara Islands are off the west coast of Galway, in Western Ireland. The two islands mentioned are only about six miles from the largest of the Aran group, made famous by the late J. M. Synge, who drew much of the material for his "Playboy of the Western World" from his Aran experiences.

It is rumored that the subject of the loan and the attitude of the United States toward it were discussed.

PATERSON IN FEAR OF MORE VIOLENCE

Orders for 2,000 Strikers to Picket Price Mills at Opening Hour To-day.

GIRL PICKETS GO TO JAIL

Police Guard Power Plants, but City Is Not In Darkness Despite Lessig's Threat.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., May 21.—The Paterson police fear the worst outbreak of the silk strike to-morrow morning, for at a secret meeting of the strikers held to-night in Willard Park, near Paterson, orders were issued for 2,000 strikers to be at the Price Silk Mills on Broadway early to-morrow morning to prevent the workers from entering the mills.

"Use every effort to do this," said one of the labor leaders, "and see to it that no one gets into the mills, even if the breaking of heads is involved."

The Paterson police did not hear of this meeting until just before midnight to-night, for Willard Park is outside the Paterson jurisdiction. The strikers had gone there because meetings in Paterson had been forbidden. Chief of Police Bimson immediately issued an order for 100 policemen to go to the mills to-morrow morning. He fears that more men may be needed.

Adolph Lessig, the local leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, made the threat some days ago that to-night would see Paterson thrown into darkness because of the failure of the silk mill owners to surrender to the demands of Haywood and other agitators. Paterson, however, is not in darkness. The city, as a matter of fact, never was better lighted than it is to-night. The city authorities have guarded all the power plants, and even if the strikers tried to make good the threats of Lessig it is certain that the police would be able to thwart them.

Some persons in Paterson thought that there merely was a lull in the storm today; some thought that there were signs of the beginning of the end of the great silk strike. The fact is that it was the quietest day since the strike began. There were no riots, no clashes between strikers and police, and for the first time in three days Police Headquarters held no prisoners whose misconduct could be charged to the strike.

Six young girls were sent to jail by Recorder Carroll in the Police Court this morning. The young women were found guilty of obstructing the streets and interfering with the police. As a matter of fact they were strike pickets. They were arrested by Policeman Gannon last night on Ellison Street, near the City Hall.

It was charged that they had followed Laurette Smith and Josephine Stapleton from their place of employment in the Harding Mill on Straight Street to their boarding house, at Paterson and Van Houten Streets. The girls testified that they suspected they were followed, and, fearing trouble, hastened into their boarding house and stayed there. The arrest by Policeman Gannon followed.

A man named Julius Kopp of 35 North Straight Street seemed to be acting in the capacity of adviser to the young women arrested by Gannon. Kopp was sent to jail for sixty days.

The young pickets who were found guilty by Recorder Carroll said they were Perina Branchina of 91 Montgomery Street, Helen Gold, 70 North May Street; Josephine Ruber, 209 Wayne Avnue; Hannah Silberman, 291 Governor Street; Jeanette Silverstein, 43 Auburn Street, and Carrie Carella of 135 Montgomery Street.

Hannah Silberman, who, with Carrie Carella, led the girls on the picket line, said: "Thank you, your Honor." The Recorder, not liking the tone of sarcasm, replied: "You're welcome, sixty days."

The other girls were sentenced to jail for ten days each.

Lawyer Hunziker, counsel for the strikers, was very angry.

"It is a great injustice," he said, "to sentence young girls to prison on the flimsy evidence that has been produced."

When the girls were taken to the jail in the patrol wagon they cheered for the I. W. W. and sang strike songs.

The strikers again assembled at Haledon, the hamlet just outside the limits of Paterson, this afternoon and listened to speeches by Haywood, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Tresca, and Patrick Quinlan. For the first time since the strike started the leaders were restrained in their speeches.

Haledon is tiring of the notoriety that has come to that village because of the strike. A committee of its citizens demanded to-night that no more meetings of the strikers be held in the village. The Mayor, however, is a Socialist, and he says that the meetings will continue so long as there is no disorder.

WANT AN OUTSIDE JURY.

Paterson Strikers Say There Is Bias in Passaic County.

Henry Marelli, of counsel for the Paterson strike leaders, made an application to Justice James F. Minturn, of the New Jersey Supreme Court, last night for an order under which a jury could be selected from outside Passaic County for the trial of the I. W. W. agitators, Quinlan, Haywood, and Miss Flynn.

Mr. Marelli made his application at the home of Justice Minturn at 630 Hudson Street, Hoboken. He said that the people of Passaic County had been prejudiced against the I. W. W. and that the Sheriff would find it impossible to draw an impartial jury from that county.

Michael Dunn, Prosecutor of Passaic County, denied that a Passaic County jury would be biased.

"Eighty-five per cent. of the 20,000 strikers would go back to work to-morrow," he said, "if it were not for the I. W. W."

Justice Minturn said that the drawing of an outside jury need be no reflection on the county.

"If, however, the evidence is strong enough to convict them before a Passaic County jury," he said, "why should it not be strong enough before one from Sussex County?"

To this ex-Prosecutor Dunn replied that he wished to save Passaic County the expense of an outside jury. Mr. Marelli said that a jury drawn from any county except Passaic and Sussex would be acceptable to him. Justice Minturn reserved his decision on the question until 10 o'clock to-night.

GILLEN CALLS FOR TROOPS.

Gov. Fielder Sends Sadler to Make Inquiry at Wharton.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, N. J., May 21.—Sheriff Whitfield B. Gillen of Morristown has made a formal demand upon Gov. Fielder to send troops to Wharton to protect the mine and railroad property of the Empire Steel and Iron Company at Mount Hope. The employes of this company are on strike. The iron mine is idle, and the company has been compelled to suspend operation of the railroad line extending from Mount Hope to Wharton. Gov. Fielder to-morrow will send Adjt. Gen. Sadler to confer with Manager L. H. Brown of the steel company. The company has decided to wait until Monday before it attempts to remove its wrecked locomotive and car from the place within the confines of Wharton where they were wrecked by strikers.

STRIKE PAGEANT IN GARDEN.

Plan for 200 to Walk from Paterson to Appear on the Stage.

The Paterson strike will be made the subject of a three-act pageant at Madison Square Garden on the evening of June 7. As actors in the pageant, according to the plans made by a committee of strike sympathizers, there will appear 200 men, women, and children from the Paterson mills, who will walk here in a body from Paterson to participate.

The strikers will take the stage at the Garden, and will represent a typical I. W. W. audience. They will be addressed, while a moving-picture camera is in operation, by "Big Bill" Haywood, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, and Patrick Quinlan.

"The pageant was arranged," said Mrs. Mabel Dodge of 23 Fifth Avenue, who is one of the general committee in charge, "because the newspapers have never let the people get a fair impression of the I. W. W. The actors in the pageant will bring out the fact that the I. W. W. is made up of the workers themselves and does not consist merely of the group of leaders whom they invited to Paterson."

The first scene will show a mill. The title of the scene will be "Tired workers going to work as human beings who have lost their contact with humanity." After that will come a scene in which the stage settings will depict the death and funeral service of a striker who was struck down in a riot. At the pictured funeral service Haywood and the others will speak. In the third scene the departure of the children from Paterson will be shown.

Mrs. Dodge said that when the list of committeemen in charge was made public it would contain the names of many conservatives as well as radicals.

AQUEDUCT STRIKE OVER.

Five Contractors Sign Agreement After Serious Outbreak at Elmsford.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 21.—The strike among the laborers in the neighborhood of White Plains took a bad turn this afternoon when 300 strikers attempted to drive 400 men employed by the Pittsburgh Construction Company in the construction of the Catskill Aqueduct at Elmsford from their work. When the rioters appeared at the camp of the construction company in the Dobbs Ferry Road the construction company herded the men together and put up a stubborn fight.

Foreman Bogardus sent for Sergt. Spain of the Elmsford Precinct of the Aqueduct Police Department and he ordered out his mounted men. The mounted men, as well as a squad of police on foot, armed with clubs and revolvers, charged the strikers.

The strikers threw stones and endeavored to drive the police back, but were forced to retreat after many heads had been cracked. Eleven of them were arrested on the charge of inciting to riot and are now locked up in the White Plains jail. They will be arraigned before Justice Jacobs at Elmsford to-morrow.

Following the trouble at Elmsford, there was a conference between the strikers' representative, and Col. M. J. Reagan and W. J. Bearin, representing the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, at White Plains, which resulted in five contractors agreeing to give the men on strike $2.00 a day, which they had been fighting for. F. D. Alessandro, representing the workingmen's union, said to-night that although several contractors, representing $2,000,000 in construction work, had not signed the agreement, nevertheless all the strikers would go back to work to-morrow morning.

Wharton Prisoners Stay in Jail.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 21.—Judge Joshua R. Salmon this afternoon refused to release the five men who were arrested at the time of the rioting at Wharton on Thursday night. He decided that the committments were entirely legal. The Judge did, however, reduce the bail from $5,000 to $3,000 in the cases of three of the prisoners. None of the prisoners thus far has been able to obtain bail.

BREEN SAYS ATTEAUX LAID DYNAMITE PLOT

Got $700 from Dyemaker for Planting Lawrence Strike Explosives, Undertaker Swears.

FAILS TO IMPLICATE WOOD

Tells Atteaux's Lawyer, Coakley, That Coakley Himself Offered Him $7,000 to End Damage Suits.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 21.—John J. Breen, the Lawrence undertaker, School Committeeman, and politician, who planted the dynamite in that city in January, 1912, for the purpose of discrediting the striking textile mill workers, and who was fined $500 for that offense, testified to-day in the conspiracy trial growing out of the affair that he was hired to plant the dynamite by Frederick E. Atteaux, a large manufacturer of Boston, and that he received from Atteaux $700 for the job.

Breen mentioned only once the name of William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company, who, with Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins, is being tried on the conspiracy charge. Breen said he asked Atteaux if Wood knew anything about the dynamite matter, and Atteaux replied that he did not.

Breen said that in January 1912, he met Atteaux at the latter's office in response to a telephone request. The call lasted two hours, and the conversation was in regard to the Lawrence strike.

"Atteaux said he was glad to see I was interested," Breen said. "He knew that Commissioner of Public Safety Lynch had said I was interested in keeping the striking element quiet.

"The next time I saw him was on Jan. 19. I went to report strike conditions. I said affairs at the mills were getting pretty hot. I added: 'If I was fighting those fellows I'd fight them by their own methods.'

"'What do you mean,' he said, 'dynamite?'

"'Dynamite or anything else,' I said.

"'Could you get it?' he asked.

"I said 'No.' Then he suggested that perhaps Mr. Pitman might get some."

This was Ernest R. Pitman, a builder, of Andover, who committed suicide the day after he was subpoenaed as a witness before the Grand Jury investigating the dynamite plot.

Atteaux telephoned to Pitman, Breen continued, and an hour later Pitman arrived at Atteaux's office. Said the witness:

"Atteaux said: 'Excuse us, John,' and he took Pitman into the corridor. Pitman returned in about three minutes and said to me: 'Do you think you can do this business?' and I said: 'Yes, Sir.' I am not sure that Atteaux was present at the time.

"Pitman said to me: 'I'll get some. Where can I telephone you?' I told him at Austin's on Court Street.

"Atteaux came in after Pitman left and said to me: 'Well, you can't do this for nothing.' I said: 'No, I will have to hire someone to help me.'

"'How much do you need?' he said. 'Will $500 be enough?'

"I told him that would be enough. Atteaux then asked me about the police, and I told him that Inspector Rooney was a friend of mine and would never suspect me when I should give him the tip about the dynamite. Atteaux said he would meet me at 5 o'clock at Washington and Franklin Streets, when he would have the money to pay me."

Got Money and Dynamite.

Breen told of meeting Collins at a saloon, and of asking Collins to go to Lawrence with him. Leaving the saloon Breen called on Inspector Rooney at Police Headquarters. Later he met Atteaux at Franklin and Washington Streets. Atteaux got out of a taxicab and said: "Follow me, John."

"I followed him," continued Breen, "and he dropped a package. As I picked it up he said: 'Don't say I never gave you anything.' When I opened the package later I found it contained $500."

Breen made a second trip to Washington and Franklin Streets. Collins was with him this time.

"I stood on the corner," said the witness, "and Pitman came up Franklin Street. He introduced me to a Mr. Rice, and said to me: 'Mr. Rice has the package for you.' I took the bundle and said to Mr. Rice: 'What danger is there with this?' He said: 'None; it's frozen solid.'

"I carried the bundle to where Collins was waiting in a doorway. I said to him: 'Here's the dynamite. Be careful.'"

Breen then told of going to Lawrence with Collins, and of planting the dynamite among the strikers. On the stand yesterday Collins denied that he knew the packages contained dynamite. He said that Breen told him only that it was "juice."

"Collins knew what I was going to do," said Breen, "because I had told him at the saloon in Boston that we were going to place dynamite around Lawrence."

Breen told how he had notified the Lawrence police that he had "located" dynamite among the strikers. His part in the conspiracy was discovered and last May he was convicted and fined. Breen testified that he met Atteaux in April at Clark's Hotel in Boston.

"I told him," said Breen, "that I neded more money; that my expenses had been pretty heavy. No sum was mentioned, but a few days later I received by special delivery an envelope containing four $50-bills."

Refused $7,000 from Coakley.

Cross-examined by Daniel H. Coakley, counsel for Atteaux, the witness declared that he never had conspired with Wood, Atteaux, or Pitman to injure any person or property.

Asked about his activities during the strike, Breen said that he went among the foreigners advising them not to commit violence. It was because of his pride in his city that he showed so great activity in behalf of industrial peace, he said. He was unable to tell of any specific payments made by him from the money he claimed to have received from Atteaux, with the exception of the $50 given to Collins and the carfares between Boston and Lawrence. He said he had disbursed between $200 and $300, but he kept no account of his expenditures, though he understood that Atteaux was to reimburse him.

Breen said he had been sued by eight persons arrested in Lawrence as the result of the dynamite planting, and had been told by his attorney that a settlement might b made for $12,000. Later he learned that possibly a settlement might be made for $7,000.

After he heard that a settlement might be made for $12,000 the witness went to see Atteaux. He denied that he was trying to get $13,000 from Atteaux when he knew that he could settle the suits at a much lower figure.

In answer to further questions by Attorney Coakley Breen said he had refused an offer of $7,000 from Coakley himself because he would not agree to the terms. Asked by Coakley what the terms were, Breen replied:

"You told me to put most of it in my pocket and settle with the poor slobs as cheap as I could. I did not want that kind of money, and I rejected the offer."

The cross-examination of Breen will be continued to-morrow.

Walter Wedgett, an expert on explosives, testified regarding the dynamite found at Lawrence. Dynamite that was thoroughly frozen, he said, was hard to discharge, but partially frozen dynamite was apt to be discharged most unexpectedly and was more dangerous than any other form of the explosive. Wedgett said that the temperature of an ordinary railway passenger car in Winter would thaw out frozen dynamite in half or three-quarters of an hour.

NEW GIBSON WITNESS.

Woman Said to Have Seen Greenwood Lake Tragedy.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, May 21.—As a result of information he obtained to-day, County Detective Moore is following a clue which may solve the mystery of the death of Mrs. Szabo, in connection with which Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer, is about to go on trial for his life for the second time. Detective Moore believes he is on the track of a witness, a woman, who is said to have witnessed the entire affair on Greenwood Lake.

Henry Kohl performed his first act in court as attorney for Gibson this morning, when the prisoner was brought before Justice Tompkins at the opening of the Supreme Court term. Mr. Kohl moved that the case be adjourned until Friday morning. This was agreed to last night when Kohl was appointed, with Robert S. Elder as assistant, to defend the alleged murderer of Mrs. Szabo. The adjournment was granted.

Mrs. Gibson remained with her husband for an hour and then left for New York. Mr. Kohl says she went to meet Mr. Elder in order to get the record of the first trial.

TWO WORKMEN FALL 155 FEET AND LIVE

Drop Into Hollow Abutment of Astoria Viaduct When Tower Collapses.

RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Hoisted on Stretchers to Top of the Abutment and Then Lowered to the Ground.

Workmen on the Ninth Avenue arch of the Astoria Viaduct of the New York Connecting Railroad were startled yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock when a wire cable whipped about their heads. It was caused by the snapping of one of the guy wires, which held in place a slender wooden tower, 155 feet high, at Ninth and Potter Avenues, Astoria. The tower stood beside one of the great abutments of the Astoria Viaduct. Buckets of concrete were being hoisted from the concrete mixer to the top of the tower, where it was poured into a sluice. It flowed down the sluice to a nozzle, which the workmen could move about, directing the stream of concrete where it was needed.

The report that was heard when the first guy wire snapped was followed by several others. The frail tower swayed a moment, and, with a crash of splintering timber, snapped in two, almost exactly half way between top and bottom. The upper half fell across the six-foot thick concrete wall and dropped into the interior of the abutment, a hollow surrounded by four walls fifty-two feet in height.

When the tower fell two men, who were at work on its top, fell with it, a distance of 155 feet, and landed on the earth floor of the interior of the abutment. Almost a score of workmen were busy on the wall of the abutment, and four were bruised by broken parts of the tower.

There were no men on the inside of the abutment where the two injured men lay, and there was no way to reach them except by letting down ladders from the top of the concrete walls.

When Dr. G. C. Biondi arrived from St. John's Hospital, firemen from Hook and Ladder Company 66, whose firehouse is within sight of the broken tower, were on their way to the wall of the abutment with fire ladders. Dr. Biondi scaled the wall and directed operations from the top, while several firemen and workkmen descended the inside of the abutment. At his suggestion they improvised a stretcher by nailing six boards together. Ropes were fastened at each end, and the injured men were lifted on this, one at a time, to the top of the wall by ten workmen. Then in the same manner they were lowered to the ground on the other side. One of the firemen made the trip up and down on the stretcher each time to keep the injured man from rolling off in mid-air, and to prevent the stretcher from scraping against the wall.

A crowd of several hundred people, attracted by the crash when the tower broke, stood on Ninth Avenue outside the abutment and cheered each time the stretcher was lowered to the earth. The reserves from the Astoria Police Station were kept busy driving the crowd back from the vicinity of the broken cable, which had fallen across high-power electric and telephone wires.

The two men recovered consciousness at St. John's Hospital. They were Joseph Dower, 21 years old, 371 Potter Avenue, Astoria, and William Farrell, 23 years old, 428 Potter Avenue. Dower was found to be suffering from a fractured elbow, fractured ribs, and possible internal injuries. Dr. Biondi thought he might recover. The plight of Farrell is more serious. He has a fracture of the base of the skull, a broken jawbone, and a number of minor injuries.

Dr. Biondi did not believe the men could have lived for a minute afterward if they had fallen the full 155 feet from the top of the tower. When he questioned them, they were unable to say whether they had clung to the falling tower or had been thrown into the air when it toppled. There were iron bars stretched across the inside of the abutment, and their fall, Dr. Biondi thought, might have been broken by striking these.

The four men hit by splinters from the tower were John Hill, Samuel Caprola, Grant Kenney, and Ole Oleson, all employes of the T. A. Gillespie Company, which is building the abutment. They were only slightly hurt and did not require hospital treatment.

TO RIVAL DR. FRIEDMANN.

Physicians Plan to Use Turtle Vaccine in Woods Sanitarium.

Dr. A. C. H. Friedmann, a brother of the German physician who has been exploiting the turtle vaccine as a cure for tuberculosis, is one of several physicians who are planning to open a rival institution for the treatment of tuberculosis. They say that they will use a vaccine similar to Dr. Friedmann's turtle culture, or an identical culture.

Dr. John Vandewater Sheppey, an Albany physician, will be at the head of the new enterprise. Associated with him, besides Dr. A. C. H. Friedmann, will be Dr. Harry Benjamin, who came to this country as assistant to Dr. F. F. Friedmann. They will use a hotel in the Adirondacks as a sanitarium.

FRIEDMANN PATIENT DIES.

Morris Rosenthal of Gloversville Was Treated Five Weeks Ago.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., May 21.—Five weeks after an injection of Dr. Freidmann's turtle vaccine Morris Rosenthal, a local groceryman, died at 5 o'clock this morning of tuberculosis. He was treated at Providence at a clinic, and returned here feeling improved. For three weeks he reported better health, then relapsed and for the last two weeks had failed rapidly. Dr. W. J. Peddie, a local physician, claims the tissues of the body were in bad condition at death.

Rosenthal had great faith in the Freidmann treatment, and up to three days before his death refused to call a physician. Dr. Peddie, the attending physician, says death was due to tuberculosis alone, and that no other causes entered in the case.

BOY JUDGES GET POINTS.

Public School Jurists Go to a Real Court and Watch Proceedings.

The officers of the so-called police court of Public School 114, at Oak and James Streets, paid a visit to the Men's Night Court last night and sat among the spectators for two hours. The boys, who range from 13 to 15 years of age, were invited to the court by Magistrate Freschi, who had heard what they have been doing since last Easter.

The boys admitted that they learned something about court procedure. Arthur Ourrora, chief justice of the boys' court, was sure that when the next case of crap shooting came before him he would admit only evidence that would be admitted in a regular court of law. Paul Elkins and Patrick Tomasulo, the other boy judges, concurred with their learned friend. Dionysius Ehrospe, the boy district attorney, said that he got some points about the work of a prosecuting officer.

One Year for I. W. W. Rioter Legre.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., May 21.—Benjamin L. Legre of Bridgeport, Conn,, an organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, was sentenced to Auburn prison to-day for one year at hard labor, for rioting during the recent textile strike in this city. When called for sentence he delivered a fiery denunciation of the "capitalistic class" and declared his innocence.

WAR SECRETARY TESTIFIES.

Suing Brokers for Accounting for Stock Given Them to Sell.

Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison was a witness yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Davis in a suit brought by himself and other stockholders of the St. Gabriel Lumber Company against the brokerage house of W. C. Sheldon & Co. His share in the St. Gabriel Lumber Company was valued at $6,500 at par. His stock was delivered to Sheldon & Co. and sold. Mr. Garrison and his fellow-plaintiffs sue for an accounting of the proceeds. From remarks of attorneys in cross-examination yesterday, it was indicated that an attempt would be made to show that the transaction resulted in a loss to Sheldon & Co., because it assumed the debts of the St. Gabriel Lumber Company.

Secretary Garrison, who was formerly Vice Chancellor of New Jersey, took delight in fencing with the various lawyers who examined him, and his answers, frequently not desired by his questioners, were sustained by Justice Davis, to whom the lawyers appealed to strike them out of the records.

Dinner to Dr. Talcott Williams.

Students of the Columbia School of Journalism will give a dinner in the Café Boulevard to-morrow evening to Dr. Talcott Williams, Director of the school. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of the university; John L. Heaton of The World, and John W. Cunliffe, associate director, will speak. This dinner will mark the close of the first year of the school. On June 4 eleven men will be graduated.

BRICKYARD OWNERS IN THE NIGHT COURT

Twenty-three Directors of the Greater New York Company Under Technical Arrest.

PAROLED UNTIL JUNE 11

Magistrate Freschi Issues Warrants Charging Violation of the Donnelly Anti-Trust Law.

Routine cases of disorderly conduct, intoxication, and assault gave way last night in the Men's Night Court to an unprecedented proceeding for that court in which twenty-three defendants, all Directors of the Greater New York Brick Company, a corporation which has been charged with violation of the Donnelly Anti-Trust law, lined up before the bar and surrendered themselves on warrants issued by Magistrate Freschi. Ex-State Senator John B. Rose, President of the brick corporation, headed the delegation, and appeared amused to find himself surrounded by court attendants, detectives and policemen. A curious crowd in the court room watched the brick makers in their unusual role.

There was no sign of nervousness anywhere among the twenty-three men, who had come from various brick manufacturing centres on either side of the Hudson River from Westchester to Albany County. The men were ordered into court by Magistrate Freschi last week, and warrants were formally issued last night to the whole group, in accordance with an arrangement made with the court by Frank L. Patterson, attorney for the brick company.

Paroled Until June 11.

After the proceeding the men were paroled in Mr. Patterson's custody with the stipulation that they present themselves for examination in the Westchester Court at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, June 11. Magistrate Freschi will be sitting in that court at that time.

With ex-Senator Rose, who lives in Newburg, there were Robert Main and George W. Washburn of Saugerties, N. Y.; Alva S. Staples, Harry R. Brigham, Frederick P. Luther, David Terry, and George Hutton, Kingston; Everett Fowler, Denton Fowler, Jr., John F. Shankey, John E. Lynch, and William Malley, Haverstraw; William N. Cary, Mechanicsville; William A. Nicholson and Aaron E. Aldridge, Fishkill Landing; George S. Allison and Lucien H. Washburn, Stony Point; Percival Goldkin and William W. Rider, Catskill; Matthew Hayden, New Windsor; Hiram Merritt, Newburg, and Clarence L. Beakley, Verplanck.

Affidavits were presented to show that Conrad F. Suderley of Coeymans, N. Y., who was named as the twenty-fourth defendant in the case, was ill and unable to appear in court. The twenty-fifth defendant, Alonzo Rose, died since the proceedings against the Greater New York Brick Company were begun in March, 1912. All of the defendants in the case are said to own brickyards along the Hudson. They became stockholders and Directors in the Greater New York Brick Company when that corporation was formed by Senator Rose in June, 1911.

The case was the first on the calendar last night. John De Witt Warner appeared for the complainant in the case, F. H. Weeks, a builder. Assistant District Attorney Ellison, who conducted the ex parte proceedings before Magistrate Freschi last year, was represented by Deputy Assistant District Attorney Platt.

Under the law the brick manufacturers may insist on an examination before Magistrate Freschi or waive for the Grand Jury. Mr. Patterson was not decided last night what he would do and asked for the adjournment until June 11. Mr. Warner was opposed to this, saying that he feared the two-year Statute of Limitation might affect the case if further delay were permitted. The alleged illegal action of which the Directors of the company stand accused, he pointed out, began on June 10, 1910. Magistrate Freschi ruled, however, that the acts, if they were illegal, continued indefinitely after that date, and that the Statute of Limitations did not apply.

Only a Misdemeanor.

Mr. Patterson intimated that he would try to persuade his clients to waive examination. Although the charge is only a misdemeanor, Magistrate Freschi said that in view of the importance of the case he would hold the defendants for the Grand Jury, if examination were waived, on June 11. If the defense should insist on an examination, the hearing might last three or four months, Mr. Patterson thought. The fifty witnesses whom the complainants called in the ex parte proceedings, he said, would have to be recalled for cross-examination, and additional witnesses would also have to be called. There seems little doubt that examination will be waived.

"Of course," added the Magistrate, "it must not be forgotten that I will sit in this case only as a Magistrate. This is a case for a trial jury. First you will have the privilege of being heard before a Grand Jury and then, if justifiable, before a petit jury. It will really be taking two bites off the same cherry."

"I should call it a lemon," retorted the lawyer for the brick corporation, and the Court laughed.

The proceedings lasted half an hour and before the 23 defendants filed out ex-Senator Rose was served with a summons for the corporation.

It was said last night that the case against the Brick Company is the second case that has come up under the Donnelly Anti-Trust act. The other was that of the "poultry trust," in which a conviction was secured over a year and a half ago. The defendants in the poultry case were granted a certificate of reasonable doubt immediately after their conviction. The Court of Appeals, it was pointed out, had never ruled on a case under the Donnelly act.

RUNAWAY HITS PAINE AUTO.

Mrs. H. C. Paine Has Narrow Escape When Shafts Pierce Tonneau.

A runaway horse with a delivery wagon swaying behind it went galloping down Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon, and at Thirty-third Street came up with a crush of traffic that made it impossible to clear the way for it. The rear vehicle was a touring car, in the back seat of which sat the wife of Col. Henry C. Paine, who lives at the Hotel Plaza. At full speed the runaway crashed into the machine. The sharp shafts of the wagon in an instant had pierced through the back, and the struggling horse was caught with its head hanging over the door of the tonneau. It kicked itself clear of the wagon and most of its harness, and would have been off again if several witnesses had not captured it.

Meanwhile Mrs. Paine was assisted out of her automobile. It was found that she had had a narrow escape as the ends of the heavy shafts had gone through the back of the automobile near where she sat, pierced the heavy upholstering and bulged out the leather of the back seat. She was removed in another automobile to her apartments in the Plaza, suffering from shock.

The runaway was attached to a delivery wagon of Fenuken & Ryan's livery stable at 156 West Seventy-eighth Street. Patrick Fennerty was driving it down Fifth Avenue when it took fright and bolted at top speed. The animal was injured in the collision and was taken to a veterinary.

PLAN CHINESE WEDDING.

Chin Chee to Wed En Gun Loo on Sunday at Central Christ Church.

Chin Chee, a Chinese tea and coffee merchant of Chinatown, who said he lived at 315 West 118th Street, accompanied by a young Chinese woman, En Gun Loo of 312 Harrison Avenue, Harrison, N. J., went to the City Hall yesterday afternoon and got a marriage license. He said he had arranged to be married on Sunday afternoon, probably at Central Christ Church in West Eighty-first Street. Following the ceremony, to which 600 guests have been invited, they will celebrate with a dinner at one of the Chinatown restaurants.

When Miss Loo and her fiancé, accompanied by the young woman's mother, brother, and a friend, appeared in the City Hall her Oriental costume won much admiration. She was attired in an elaborately embroidered silk kimono of lilac hue, only partially concealing a kind of bifurcated skirt. Her feet were encased in dainty satin slippers set upon high blocked heels and soles.

Her fiancé, Chin Chee, wore a dark sack suit, and over it a raincoat, while the young Chinese woman's mother, who said her name was Chin Ho, wore a dark violet kimono and a heavily figured silk skirt. The other two members of the bridal party were dressed after the American fashion.

SHOWS UP 'TYING' OF SHOE MACHINES

Government Attorney Attacks Alleged Trust Methods in Dissolution Suit.

QUOTES COERCIVE LEASES

Judge Comments on the Linking of One Little Machine to All the Others Sold.

BOSTON, May 21.—An extension of the system which required shoe manufacturers to use certain groups of shoe machinery together was alleged by the Government to-day to have followed the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company against which dissolution proceedings are pending in the United States District Court. By presenting over forty different forms of leases in use before and after the organization of the company, the Government aimed to show an extension of the leasing system from three separate groups of machines, none of which was "tied" or required to be used with others, to nine separate groups, eight of which were tied to one or more other groups.

James A. Fowler, assistant to the United States Attorney-General, who is associated as counsel, informed the court that the leases were changed after the organization of the company and that the provisions were made more stringent.

"The Government objects," said he, "to every provision that ties one machine to another."

Charles F. Choate, Jr., counsel to the defense, contended that the "tying" system formed a feature of the leases before the organization of the company and that whatever changes were made were designed to meet the growing needs of the trade, and were not in pursuance of a plan to effect a monopoly of the shoe machinery business in this country, as charged by the Government.

Mr. Choate stated that on making the initial payment the manufacturer was free to use the leased machine with any other machines he desired, provided the other machines did not do the same kind of work.

"That is all right," Judge Putnam said, "[illegible] when it comes to tying one little [illegible] to every one turned out of the [illegible] that is another thing."

Harold G. Donham of Medford, Secretary of the company, after identifying certified copies of the articles of incorporation dated February, 1899, and of the holding company, the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, dated May 1905, both of which were offered as exhibits by the Government, presented the leases used before the consolidation. New leases were drawn by the three principal companies that united to form the alleged trust—the Goodyear Shoe Machinery Company, McKay Shoe Machinery Company, and Consolidated and McKay Lasting Machine Company.

The witness testified that the entire business of the Goodyear Company was conducted by leases. The issued capital was $3,000,000. The company manufactured two principal machines for attaching the sole to the upper on welt shoes and sixteen auxiliary machines that prepared the leather for the principal machines and finished the shoes after they were stitched. It also made a special lasting machine.

Each of the companies had several different leases, each lease relating to one or two of the principal machines, which were leased on a royalty ranging from a half cent to 2 cents a pair. The lease, which might be terminated at any time on written notice to the company, extended over seventeen years, covering the life of the patent involved in the manufacture of the machine.

Mr. Fowler pointed out the "tying" clauses to which the Government objected. In a lease of a lasting machine, one of the clauses provided that the leased machinery should not be used in the manufacture of any shoes which had been welted or stitched by the aid of any machinery not held under lease from the United Shoe Machinery Company. Another clause in the same lease provided that if at any time the manufacturer should cease to use exclusively lasting machinery leased to him by the United, the company might terminate any or all of the leases of lasting machinery.

By a subsequent clause any default in the conditions of the lease gave the right to the company to terminate all leases, not only of lasting machinery, but also of all other machinery. A further clause required a payment of $150 for each lasting machine at the termination of the lease, as a partial reimbursement to the company for deterioration, installation, and instruction.

Mr. Fowler also caled the attention of the court to an alternative lease under which a manufacturer on making an initial payment of $300 for the use of a lasting machine was freed from the provisions of the "tying" clause.

To Auction Kesner Stock.

The offer of the Twenty-third Street Stores Corporation to purchase the stock of J. L. Kesner & Co. having been refused, Judge Mayer signed yesterday in the Federal District Court an order directing the receivers, Leo A. Price and Abraham S. Gilbert, to dispose of the stock at public auction. No date has been fixed for the sale, but five days' notice of it must be given. Charles Shongood will be the auctioneer.

VOTE DOWN DIOCESAN HALL.

Garden City Episcopal Convention Opposes Bishop Burgess's Project.

The annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, which is in session at Garden City, gave a cold shoulder yesterday to the favorite project of Bishop Frederick Burgess to erect a diocesan hall in that town. Bishop Burgess has advocated this for three years and has been bitterly opposed by the Brooklyn rectors. For the past year a special committee has had the proposal under consideration, and yesterday morning the convention showed its hostility to it by voting to dismiss the committee.

Supreme Court Justice Scudder of Brooklyn, one of the lay delegates, was successful in saving the committee through a compromise motion to continue it in power, but depriving it of the right to solicit contributions.

The Rev. Howard Mellish, rector of Trinity Church, Brooklyn, was the chief opponent of the hall. He said that the Italian and negro churches that were started in Brooklyn needed all the money that could be raised. He spoke of one negro clergyman whom he had seen working with his own hands to erect his church. Better such churches, he said, than a diocesan hall. To this the Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers retorted that if the music cost of Dr. Mellish's church was cut down only 10 per cent. that church would have more money to aid the projects the rector so lavishly praised.

Miss Thompson's Gifts to Charity.

The will of Miss Ellen Thompson, who died on April 10, was filed for probate yesterday. With the exception of $900 bequeathed to friends, the estate passes to charitable institutions. The bequests are $800 to the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, $500 each to the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor and the Sisters of the Poor of St. Francis's Hospital, $300 to St. Joseph's Home for the Aged, and the residuary estate, amounting at least to $6,800, to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

CAT'S BITE KILLS BOY.

Adrian Palmer's Case Diagnosed as Genuine Rabies.

Adrian Palmer, 9 years old, of 297 Sanford Avenue, died yesterday in the City Hospital in Newark from what the doctors believe was rabies. The boy was bitten by a cat two months ago. He went to a neighbor's house, and as he mounted the steps he saw a cat lying on the stoop. He stooped to stroke its fur, and the cat sprang at him, and bit the thumb of his right hand.

His mother cleansed the wound with peroxide, and the following day Dr. B. H. Voelbel of 15 Salem Street, Newark, cauterized the wound. Last Saturday young Palmer was taken ill while playing ball. He was assisted to his home, and his mother called a doctor, who diagnosed the case as indigestion. On Tuesday the boy's condition became so serious that he was removed to the hospital.

One-third reduction, however, is not the whole story. Oriental Rugs at Macy's are merchandise. Macy's will not carry merchandise from season to season. Many of these wonderful Rugs are antiques, and are conspicuous for the rare beauty of their undoctored and unwashed colorings and designs.

Macy's maintains a headquarters the year 'round in Constantinople, where our resident representatives bide their time in securing only the cream of the market. The Indestructo Trunk Is Imitated

Deceptive Appearance Gained at the Expense of Weakness.

Almost every trunk manufacturer in the country has at one time or another during the past seven years, attempted to imitate the Indestructo. No success has attended their efforts because "Indestructo" is a principle by which trunks are made without a joint. In a great many cases, very similar appearance to the Indestructo has been secured.

But if you stop to analyze the construction of such a trunk you will find that it presents far more weakness than the more familiar type of square construction.

Instead of eliminating the joints, as is done in the Indestructo, they have doubled the chance for trouble—two joints at every corner and every edge. 32 places for ends to give way, or loose nails to be shaken out by jars and jolts of steady travel.

However, to such we say—"Thank You."

Because, they have acknowledged to the trade that even though they themselves may not duplicate its strength and endurance, they recognize the Indestructo trunk as highest in construction and appearance.

PLAN TO EQUALIZE FOODSTUFFS TARIFF

Meat and Flour to Carry Duty, if Livestock and Grains Do, Senate Committee Says.

HEARINGS TO BE HASTENED

Will End by Next Tuesday, but Senate May Not Get Bill Before June 16.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee took steps this morning to hasten the dilatory hearings on the tariff bill. Senator Simmons announced that all the hearings before the Finance Committee would be concluded next Tuesday, and all witnesses were requested to appear before that day. Briefs may be filed afterward, but it was explained that the sub-committees in charge of particular schedules would have short time to consider them.

While this decision of the full majority membership of the committee will shorten the plans of most of the sub-committees, it is admitted that much time will still elapse before the bill reaches the Senate. The sub-committees are not expcted to be ready to report their schedules to the full majority membership before the end of the week or the beginning of next week, so that the Democratic caucus cannot begin consideration of the complete measure before the first week in June. It is hardly probable the Senate will get the bill before June 16, and that estimate is considered optimistic in some quarters.

The sub-committee, headed by Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, has practically decided on important amendments affecting meats and agricultural items. Where the House bill puts a duty on the raw products, like oats, wheat, and cattle, leaving the finished products, oatmeal, flour, and meat, on the free list, the sub-committee will recommend a readjustment which the full committee is expcted to accept.

It is still uncertain whether this readjustment will take the form of putting oats, wheat, cattle, and the like on the free list, or of giving their finished products a compensatory duty. The committee feels that to tax the raw products of an unprotected industry is an unjustifiable hardship. They recall, also, that in the debates on Canadian reciprocity the Democrats supported the contention of President Taft that duties on products of the American farm carried no favors to American farmers, as they controlled the home market and made heavy shipments abroad.

Whatever course the sub-committee takes is expected to meet with the approval of the Finance Committee majority. It was learned to-day that Senator Walsh of Montana plans to introduce an amndment in the Senate to put cattle on the free list if the bill is presented without such a change.

Many Changes, Simmons Admits.

That there are to be a great many changes in the bill in the Senate was admitted to-day by Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Another problem confronting the Democratic leaders is the anti-dumping clause in the Underwood bill, which makes no provision for articles on the free list. This clause would assess an additional duty, not to exceed 15 per cent., on imports sold in this country for less than the foreign price, but it is not made to apply to the free list, and some Democrats insist that the free list should be included.

Mr. Williams's sub-committee heard at great length to-day the pleas of the Louisiana sugar men against free sugar, but gave no indication of the committee's action.

Henry Pharr, representing a Louisiana cane association, repeated statements already made that President Wilson at one time opposed free sugar. He said the President positively refused in the campaign to declare himself in favor of free sugar when interrogated by the Collector of the Port of New Orleans.

As a matter of fact, it has been generally known all along that the President's final decision on free sugar and free wool was not reached until just before the Ways and Means Committee made public its draft of the tariff bill.

The resolution directing the publication of briefs of manufacturers filed with the Finance Committee, which Chairman Simmons opposed on the floor of the Senate yesterday, was practically adopted by the committee to-day without serious opposition. In a short session, attended by both Republicans and Democrats, it was ordered that the briefs should be printed for public use under the direction of the chair.

NEW ATTACK UPON WILEY.

Patent Medicine Man Says He Schemes to Head Health Board.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—An attack on the plan for a Federal Department of Public Health as recently outlined by Dr. George H. Simmons of the American Medical Association and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, was made here to-day before the convention of the Proprietary Association of America by Orient O. Pinckney of New York, Secretary and Treasurer of the organization. The association is composed principally of proprietary medicine manufacturers. The speaker disclaimed any opposition to the general idea of a Federal Department of Health, and said that the association had no place in its membership for "quacks or purveyors of fraud," and that it was in thorough accord with the Pure Food and Drug law.

In the course of his speech, speaking of the personnel of a committee which recently called upon President Wilson to urge the creation of the proposed department, Mr. Pinckney directly assailed Drs. Simmons and Wiley in these words:

"There was Dr. George H. Simmons, the Czar of the American Medical Association, who, if the department is created, can see himself dictating the policies of the Government in all matters of public health, as he has been wont to dictate the policies of the American Medical Association. He would scheme to turn over the Bureau of Chemistry to the new department and resume a conduct of it which for injustice, ignorance and un-American methods would make the Wiley régime seem tame.

"Then there was Wiley. Defeated and rebuked in his candidacy for the Agricultural portfolio, Dr. Wiley's motive in currying favor with the new Administration is not far to seek. He is getting in line early for a popular demand that he be placed at the head of the Government's Department of Health."

FIGHT FOR BIXBY'S PLACE.

Sibert and Gaillard Contend with Goethals for Engineer Chief.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A spirited contest was begun to-day over the selection of a successor to Brig. Gen. W. H. Bixby, Chief of Engineers, U. S. A., who will retire Dec. 27. Senators Johnston of Alabama and Ransdell of Louisiana called on President Wilson to urge the appointment of Lieut. Col. William L. Sibert, who has been in charge of the Atlantic division of the Panama Canal since the construction was intrusted to the army engineers.

It was the purpose of President Taft to make Col. G. W. Goethals the first civil Governor of the Canal Zone and then to appoint him Chief of Engineers to succeed Gen. Bixby. The attitude of Democratic Senators toward his plan forced President Taft to abandon it and leave to President Wilson the disposition of the matter.

For a year visitors to Panama have brought home accounts of jealousies among the engineer officers. It was asserted that Col. Sibert and Col. Gaillard, who has charge of the Pacific division, were not receiving the credit they deserved, while Col. Goethals was being lionized.

The appointment of either Col. Sibert or Col. Gaillard would mean that thirteen Colonels, among them Col. Goethals, would be jumped.

WILKIE TAKES RAILWAY JOB.

McAdoo Sorry to Lose ex-Secret Service and Customs Agents' Chief.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—John E. Wilkie, chief of the customs agents, whose resignation was announced a few days ago, will become assistant to Henry A. Blair, Chairman of the Board of the Chicago Railways Company, and will take up his duties some time next month. Secretary McAdoo accepted Mr. Wilkie's resignation to-day and wrote him:

"I regret your determination to quit the service, as I had looked forward to a continuance of your work in the department. But I can readily understand your desire to take advantage of the business offer which you tell me is the occasion for your resignation."

Mr. Wilkie before taking charge of the customs agents was Chief of the Secret Service.

Wilson Frees Consumptive Convict.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Compassion for a prisoner said to be in the last stages of tuberculosis, and the fear that his presence in the Magoffin County jail in Kentucky might endanger the health of other inmates, caused President Wilson to-day to commute, to expire at once, the six months' sentence imposed on Bryant Combs, at Covington, Ky., for working in an illicit distillery.

NEW MONEY BILL GUARDS OLD BONDS

Banks Holding Government 2 Per Cents Protected in the Completed Measure.

REFUNDING PLAN PROPOSED

One for Exchanging Twos for Threes —Bond-Secured Circulation May Be Permanently Retained.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The monetary reform bill under preparation by Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, who will be the Chairman of the new House Banking and Currency Committee, has been completed by him. Its provisions probably will be made public the first week in June after the announcement of the personnel of that committee. Slight changes—about two only—will be made in the measure before it is submitted to the committee. President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo are acquainted with the bill's provisions, but their character will be withheld from publication for the present.

The bill will fully protect all holders of 2 per cent. United States bonds, as it contains provision for a permissible refunding of twos into threes, extending over a period of twenty years, and placing a limitation upon the aggregate amount of bonds that may be refunded in any one year. Bankers who gave testimony at the hearings by the Glass Committee expressed the belief that the natural investment business of the country would easily absorb the proposed 3 per cent. bonds within the limitations now fixed by the Glass bill.

Mr. Glass told THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent that an alternative proposition was under consideration not to retire the bond-secured circulation, but to retain it as a permanent feature of the banking and currency system, simply supplementing it by an issue of reserve currency based upon commercial transactions.

The 2 per cent. bonds are selling at par, and it was reported here to-night that the National banks which sold these bonds feared that the new currency law would not properly protect holders of the twos if there should be a substitution of some other form of currency for National bank circulation.

Mr. Glass authorized the further statement that the banks would have fair treatment in this and all other matters.

Senator Robert L. Owen, Chairman of the new Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, also gave assurances that the banks and the holders of these 2 per cent. bonds would be protected.

"Any readjustment will take care of those bonds properly, so that they will not be allowed to go below par," he said:

Senator Owen repudiated a newspaper report crediting him with stating that Senate and House leaders had agreed on a plan for the "mobilization of the currency by means of a system of regional banks."

"What I did say," he explained, "was that there was a general belief in the country that the reserves in the country should be mobilized and that there should be elasticity of currency provided."

No Rein on Alaska Goverr.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Secretary Lane of the Interior will not attempt to interfere with appointments to be made by the new Governor of Alaska, Major J. F. A. Strong. In a letter he addressed to-day to a resident of the Territory, who asked for an appointment to an important position, Mr. Lane wrote that the position sought was under the Governor, who "should be an independent citizen not dictated to from Washington."

Woman Has the Real Panacea.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Surgeon General Stokes of the Navy has received a letter from a woman whose name was withheld, in which she informed him that she had a weed which would "cure bubonic plague, also snake bites, all kinds of poison insect stings, and has been said to have cured hydrophobia. It is quite probable that it will cure the bubonic flea bite. It won't do any harm, if it don't do any good." She asks the Surgeon General to communicate with her.

O'HARA IS EXONERATED.

Lieut. Governor Not Guilty of Immorality—Accusers Face Charges.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 21.—Lieut. Gov. O'Hara was exonerated from blame, and Miss Maud Robinson and Sam Davis, of Springfield, are charged with attempting to obstruct the work of the Senate White Slave Commission, by the report of the special Senatorial committee appointed to investigate charges of immorality against O'Hara. The report, which was submitted to the Senate to-day, says:

"Your committee finds that said Sam Davis, one of said witnesses, procured said Maude Alberta Robinson to sign and swear to said affidavit, which was skillfully framed and adroitly designed to convey the impression that Barratt O'Hara, President of the Senate, who is Chairman of said committee, had been guilty of improper conduct with said Maude Robinson; that this affidavit was procured by Davis with the idea of using it for the purpose of hampering the said commission in its investigation of vice conditions in Springfield; and that Davis was moved to do this by what he regarded as unfair and abusive methods in the examination of certain witnesses; that had the witness complained of improper examination he had a proper legal remedy recognized in legislative inquiries and courts of law, and should have invoked the same, instead of resorting to the objectionable practice adopted by him."

The report was unanimously adopted by a viva voce vote.

PREFERS TENNIS TO POMP.

British Prince Gives Up State Reception for a Game.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 21.—Prince Albert, second son of England's King, chose tennis to-day in preference to a visit to the Government House, where he was to have been received in state by the Lieutenant Governor of this province.

The streets were decorated for the occasion, and hundreds had massed the sidewalks hoping to catch a glimpse of the young Prince. At the last moment he decided he would rather play tennis with cadets of the training ship Cumberland, of whose crew he is "an ordinary" member.

AGAINST FILTRATION PLANT.

City Club Committee Tells Estimate Board It Isn't Needed.

The Committee on Water Supply of the City Club, through its Chairman, Lincoln Cromwell, wrote to the Board of Estimate yesterday, advising against the adoption of the plan to build a filtration plant for Croton water at the Jerome Park Reservoir. The proposal will come up in the board to-day.

"In spite of the fact that four of the engineers advise that the proposed filtration plant should be authorized at once and that only one of the engineers is opposed to such action," wrote Chairman Cromwell, "we hope that the Board of Estimate will not put the city to the expense of this filtration plant at the present time. We believe that it is impossible to secure at all times for any city an absolutely pure supply of water, using the word pure in all of its stricter applications, but we think it is beyond question that the Croton water supply of New York City is exceptionally satisfactory.

"The death rate of New York City has steadily decreased, and is now at the lowest point in the city's history. We know of no demand for filtration coming from the Board of Health, medical societies, or city organizations, and even the majority report says that filtration of the Croton water supply is not imperative and could not be counted upon to make any certain decrease in the death rate."

TRINITY TO TAKE THE CITY'S $128,400

No Indication That It Will Waive Rights to Award for Subway Easements.

$500,000 IN TAX EXEMPTIONS

Bureau of Municipal Research Thinks in Light of This the Other Payment Should Be Remitted.

It was said in behalf of the Corporation of Trinity Church yesterday that there was little likelihood that the corporation would waive the technical rights it has to the award of $128,400 granted by the city as an easement for allowing the new Brooklyn Rapid Transit Subway to run under the western end of St. Paul's churchyard, along Church and Fulton Streets. This announcement was made in reply to an open letter which the Bureau of Municipal Research sent to the Public Service Commission suggesting that it was the moral duty of the church corporation, despite technical rights, to waive accepting the award from the city, in view of the fact that Trinity Corporation holds some $28,000,000 of property untaxed by the city, the taxes of which are thus virtually being paid by other property holders of New York. It would be unjust, the letter urged, for the corporation to make these property holders and taxpayers pay, in addition to some $500,000 saved to Trinity by tax exemptions this year, $128,400 for a right of way under St. Paul's churchyard in ground for which the corporation has no present or prospective use.

In its letter to the Public Service Commission, the Bureau of Municipal Research said:

"Over $7,000,000 is this year's exemption in taxes of properties similar to Trinity Corporation held for educational, belevolent, and religious purposes.

"The proposed payment is not for damages, but in addition to any damages that may result.

"The proposed payment will not take from Trinity Corporation one foot of ground that it has the slightest intention of using, and if ever the city ceases to use this tunnel for a subway, the property again becomes the property of the Trinity Corporation.

"Every dollar's worth of $400,000,000 worth of such properties exempted and every dollar's worth of Trinity Corporation's $28,000,000 of untaxed property will be increased in value by the subway. Shall these exempted properties nevertheless accept the taxpayers' dollars just as if they were not exempted?

"In view of the present and past exemptions to vastly more than the commercialized value of the easement, will your commission consider the equity and public policy of submitting to Trinity Corporation and other exempted properties that may be involved in the building of the subway tunnel, or of other public utilities, reason for waiving any previously technical right to payment for such easements?"

Dr. William H. Allen, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, said yesterday that the bureau's letter was intended to bring about action and not merely discussion.

"We made the suggestion," he said, "in the hope that both the city's agents and Trinity Corporation would act upon it. How can a tax-exempt agency, receiving over $500,000 in effect this year from New York's taxpayers, turn around and tax those same wage earners and property holders another $128,400 for the privilege of using property so far below ground that Trinity Corporation will never know anything has happened until it begins to receive increased rents because of that same easement?

"By refusing to accept payment for the easement, it would set an example and proclaim a civic purpose which, if followed by other exempted properties, held for like purposes, would fight mightily against wrongdoing, personal and political. The only justification for denying the public the benefits that could be derived in parks, health, school teachers, and tax reduction, from the money now lost to the city in such tax exemptions, is that the exempted agencies are themselves doing a public work for the whole public. That justification is jeopardized when a private agency which is given a free pass worth $500,000 a year, charges its co-laborer with $128,400 for a privilege worth nothing to itself."

Herman H. Cammann, Controller of the Corporation of Trinity Church, said yesterday that there was practically no chance whatever of the corporation's waiving the award which has been made to it for the easement under its property. The matter, he said, was settled between the city and Trinity Corporation, and he saw no reason why it should be reopened or why the corporation should be asked to waive its rights to the award.

"Trinity's exemption from certain taxes," he said, "is not a matter of gift of those taxes by the public, but rather the return for certain very real public services rendered by Trinity in the properties so exempt—the public usefulness of its churches and charitable and educational properties, the use of its churchyards as breathing spaces for the public in crowded localities, and similar advantages to the public. It must be remembered that Trinity pays taxes on all of its property from which it derives any income, and that only its properties used for religious purposes, churches, cemeteries, schools and the like, are tax exempt. At present it is paying about $200,000 annually in taxes. Yes, it is true that the tax exemptions it enjoys at present amount to about $500,000 a year.

"The corporation is legally entitled to the award made for the subway easement, and I see no reason why it is morally obliged to waive this any more than is any other property holder whose property is so affected."

Mr. Cammann said he thought there was little likelihood of a meeting of the corporation being called to discuss the point raised in the letter of the Bureau of Municipal Research.

At the office of Jay & Cander, 48 Wall Street, attorneys for the Corporation of Trinity Church, it was said that Col. William Jay, who is also Clerk of Trinity Corporation, would not be at his office until to-day, when he might give out a statement in reply to the letter of the Bureau of Municipal Research. It was said, however, that the $128,400 granted by the city as an award to Trinity was not for the mere right of way under the churchyard of St. Paul's, but rather for damages to the building containing the offices of Trinity Corporation, at the west end of the graveyard. In view of the nearness of the subway to the street level—fourteen feet—it would be impossible, it was urged, for the Corporation in the future to deepen the basement of the building in case it ever decided to raze the old and erect a new building there, or to increase the height of the present building. There would, also, it was said, be a certain amount of damage to the building through vibration caused by passing subway trains.

It was admitted that the city had guaranteed that it would leave the present building in as good condition as it now is, and that it agreed also to underpin the building. Additional charges, however, that are covered in the award, it was said, included the use of the basement of the building by the subway contractors, who would take possession thereof for eighteen months, and the temporary loss occasioned to the Corporation in the meantime by transferring its records from the basement to other safe deposit vaults. The various items of damage which it was sought to cover in the award granted by the city, it was said, might be made public in a statement by Col. Jay to-day.

SERVANT WANTS $6,360.

Files Bankruptcy Petition Against Mrs. White—$1,360 Wage Claim.

Sarah Carr, a servant in the employ of Mary A. White, who conducted a boarding house at 130 West Eighty-fifth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy against Mrs. White, alleging that she is a creditor for $6,360. Of this, $1,360 is for balance of wages unpaid and $5,000 for breach of contract on the part of Mrs. White for failure to keep her promise to support the petitioner during her life.

On April 30 Sheriff Harburger received an attachment against Mrs. White in favor of Sarah Carr. The latter asserts that Mrs. White had given a bill of sale of part of her personal property to George M. Clemmitt and authorized him to sell it at auction. The receipts from the sale of this property, it is asserted, amount to $1,645, which was deposited in the Lincoln National Bank in a special account of Daniel R. Kennedy, the auctioneer. Sheriff Harburger served the attachment on Mr. Kennedy.

According to the Carr woman, Mrs. White has not been at her home for the past fortnight, and it is alleged that she has left the State. She gave up the boarding house on April 1. She is 76 years old and is in poor health.

Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Morton C. Fitch receiver of Mrs. White's assets on the application of George C. Herrel, another creditor.

Divorce for Hotel Clerk Whose Actress Wife Scorned Him.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 21.—Special Master Frederick Weigel has recommended to the Court of Chancery that a divorce be granted to Harry S. Bibbins of this city, whose wife deserted him when she found out that he was a hotel clerk and not a Princeton student and son of a millionaire she believed.

Several years ago the young woman, who was Miss Edna Carrie Chandler, appeared at a vaudeville theatre here. She met Bibbins in a café. They had a wine supper, after which they were married by a Justice of the Peace. The following day she asked Bibbins if his father was a millionaire. The young husband told the bride the truth and she refused to live with him.

PARK AVENUE PLAN WILL GO TO COURTS

COLLIS SCHEME INJURIOUS

Would Render Their Homes Valueless as Residences, and They Are Restricted Against Business.

Residents and property owners on Park Avenue are determined to oppose in court, if necessary the consummation of the city's plan for the alternation of grades on Thirty-fourth Street at the point where the Fourth Avenue cars enter the tunnel. This statement was made yesterday afternoon by Robert Bacon of 1 Park Avenue, former Ambassador to France, who said that he spoke for 200 property owners in the Murray Hill residential district. Incidentally Mr. Bacon criticised an editorial article which appeared in THE TIMES yesterday morning.

"I do not think that the editorial was quite fair," said Mr. Bacon, "inasmuch as it created the impression that the opposition to the proposed change of grade was merely selfish obstruction of a necessary public improvement by one or two individuals. There is much to be said on the other hand, and I want to explain, in justice to the property owners, that we have not yet had an opportunity for fully presenting our side of the case.

"There are several inaccuracies in THE TIMES's editorial. One of the most important of these is in the final paragraph, where it is stated that the 'Lloyd Collis plan is simply to move the mouth of the tunnel a block further north.' The editorial continues:

> The street is twenty feet wider there, and the length of the ramp is prolonged by the distance the face of the tunnel is shifted northward. Thus the grades are eased, two roadways are provided instead of one, there are better sidewalk arrangements, and the street transfers are at grade, the stairway being unnecessary.

"This is a misunderstanding of the plan on the part of the writer. As a matter of fact, the proposed change of grade contemplates the abolition of the existing ramp and the construction of two new ones on either side of the street, beginning at Thirty-fourth Street, to the entrance to the tunnel at Thirty-fifth Street. The mouth of the tunnel is shifted one block north, but this does not extend the approaches or ease the grade.

"It is also pointed out that the present ramp is situated in a block where the roadway narrows by twenty feet, but no attention is paid to the fact that Fourth Avenue just below the point where Park Avenue begins is even narrower. We recognize the fact that improved transit facilities are necessary for the traffic pouring north and south, but Park Avenue cannot be expected to conduct a heavier line of traffic than Fourth Avenue supplies.

"The editorial makes no mention of the fact that an alternate plan has been suggested by William Barclay Parsons, the eminent engineer. This plan would provide for a ramp on the east side of Park Avenue, just south of Thirty-fourth Street, parallel with the one now in existence, and the narrowing by nine feet of the street area occupied by the street-car tracks. There would be twenty-five feet of roadway on each side for the traffic north and south and nine feet of sidewalk space.

"True, it would be necessary to use stairways to the Fourth Avenue cars, but this is a merit rather than a defect in the plan. Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street is not a commercial or shopping centre, and it is the unanimous opinion of most engineers to-day that grade crossings are to be avoided in street railway construction whenever possible. The cost of construction for Mr. Parsons's plan is estimated to be the same as for that under consideration by the city authorities. Both schemes would necessitate the expenditure of $150,000 for construction, but in addition to this sum the city will have to pay heavy damages to abutting property owners amounting to more than $1,000,000 if the present scheme is put into operation.

"I do not like to be represented as obstructing any necessary scheme of public improvement, but I conscientiously feel that Mr. Parsons's plan is much the better of the two. It achieves exactly what the authorities desire to accomplish, and at the same time it leaves unscathed the beautiful parkway which is one of the city's most valuable breathing places, and avoids a grade crossing of street car lines.

"If the proposed changes of grade are made they will leave our homes perched on top of huge rocks, and will destroy the value of the property for residential purposes. The property was all purchased from 75 to 100 years ago under the Murray Hill restriction, and we feel that we have certain vested rights. Under the terms by which the property owners obtained title it was agreed that the neighborhood should remain strictly residential, and we have no right to sell our property for business purposes. If the value of these houses is destroyed so far as residential purposes are concerned, we are placed between the devil and the deep sea.

"If necessary we will fight the matter in the courts, and will seek to enjoin the city from destroying our vested interests by adopting the proposed method of regrading the avenue."

Property owners on Park Avenue caused the insertion in this morning's papers of an advertisement setting forth the merits of their plan and expressing criticism of Borough President McAneny's project. The advertisement calls attention to the fact that both plans provide for carrying Thirty-third Street across Fourth Avenue at grade as a through street.

Goodrich Tires
All Styles—
Only One Kind

Different cars, different wheels and different purposes require different styles of tires. You have always been able to secure whatever style of tire you need in the Goodrich line. But no matter what the difference in size or style, they are all the same kind of tire.

Experience does away with experiment.

Each Goodrich Tire, because of forty-three years of experience, is made from the beginning as a unit.

The layers of rubber-impregnated fabric, strips of pure rubber, and thick, tough rubber tread, are so placed and arranged as to meet and resist road wear, strains, shocks, and jars.

The single curing, or vulcanization, converts the whole tire into one integral structure—a unit.

By looking at a cross section of any Goodrich Tire at your dealer's you will see exactly what this means. You simply cannot detect any layers in the tire.

All this is very important, but there is even greater value to you as a tire user in the right compounding of the rubber.

There is nothing in Goodrich Advertising that isn't in Goodrich Goods

Only the most capable rubber experts in the country can properly compound rubber so that it will possess durability and life. The thick, tough tread of a Goodrich Tire has all this wear put into it in the compounding, and then because of Unit Molding, it becomes actually a part of the tire and does not peel or strip.

We made the first American clincher—and still make it. In our line you also find the Goodrich Quick Detachable, Goodrich Straight Bead, Goodrich Safety Tread, Goodrich Bailey Tread, Goodrich Metal Stud, Goodrich Cord Tire for electrics, and so forth.

HUMOR

is an elusive and difficult quality to secure in short stories, but in the June Number of Harper's Magazine three out of the eight notable stories are pervaded by a delightful element of unusual fun. Howard Pyle illustrates his own story.

Cayenne—"The Dry Guillotine"
More dreaded than the guillotine of French Revolution days is the exile and penal servitude endured by convicts to-day under the blistering sun and tropic dangers of French Guiana. Charles Wellington Furlong has visited this shunned and little-known quarter of the world, and he gives in text and picture a graphic portrayal of the incredible life of the men condemned to end their days there.

The Equity in a Job
John L. Mathews has made an interesting study of the National Labor Exchanges recently established by the English Government—a vast clearing-house system covering the whole of England, which annually brings together thousands of jobs and thousands of laborers, regardless of the distances that separate them.

Exploring the Atom
No recent scientific achievement is more incredible to the average man than experiments with atoms of matter. So infinitely small that they are far beyond the detection of the most powerful microscope, scientists are to-day analyzing, weighing, and counting atoms as if they were so many base-balls. Dr. Henry Smith Williams describes these astounding experiments and the wonderful apparatus which has made them possible.

A Famous Turkish Shrine
The Mosque of Eyoub is a quaint and interesting shrine where unbelievers were for centuries rigidly denied all entrance. Sydney Adamson recounts the romantic tradition of its origin, and accompanies his text with a series of beautiful paintings made actually within the forbidden portals.

The Ways of Some English Words
Professor Thomas R. Lounsbury makes clear the long-established tendency of English words to change from one part of speech to another, and shows how instances of this natural evolution in language have been wrongfully condemned as "Americanisms."

Mr. Howells in Seville
A charming description of one of the most ancient Spanish cities, its Roman and Moorish origins, and its multicolored and picturesque life to-day. With sketches in tint by Norman Irving Black.

SCHWAB CORRECTS DATE IN EVIDENCE

It Was in November, 1900, Not in 1899, That He Talked Steel Trust to J. P. Morgan.

POINT HELPS PROSECUTION

Carnegie Menaced Morgan Interests, and Witness Says He Was Both Eager and Reluctant to Sell.

Charles M. Schwab reported yesterday at the hearing in the suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation that he had ascertained that the date of the dinner at which he outlined the advantages of such a combination was Dec. 12, 1900, instead of some time in November, 1899, as he had thought.

The significance of this is in its bearing on the purposes that actuated the late J. P. Morgan and others concerned in its organization. This is really the chief point in the suit, as the Government contends that it was formed to suppress competition, while the defendants maintain that the object was to effect economies and cheapen production and distribution, and to build up a foreign trade.

These were the advantages pointed out by Mr. Schwab at the dinner given to him by J. Edward Simmons and Charles Stewart Smith, personal friends of Andrew Carnegie. He had told how Mr. Morgan, who sat next to him, had been intensely interested and discussed the matter with him during the evening, afterward calling him to New York and opening the negotiations which resulted in the combination.

The date first given put the inception of the Steel Trust a year back of the time when Mr. Morgan had become "much alarmed," as Mr. Schwab told his fellow-Directors in the Carnegie Steel Company, over Andrew Carnegie's announced intention of building a great tube plant at Conneaut in competition with the National Tube Company, a combination Mr. Morgan had just organized.

The correction in the date of the dinner which Mr. Schwab made yesterday put it a month subsequent to his visit to the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., when Charles Steele, one of the partners, told him of their alarm, thus supporting the Government's contention that the negotiations had their genesis in the warfare Mr. Carnegie was openly preparing to wage on the Morgan interests.

Carnegie Both Eager and Reluctant.

Previous testimony had shown that when Mr. Carnegie's announcement was made he was anxious to sell out his entire business. Henry C. Frick had had options on it for two or three years and had made unsuccessful efforts to sell it to H. H. Rogers, who was a Director in the Federal Steel Company, a Morgan concern, and to W. H. Moore, head of the American Sheet and Tinplate Company and the National Steel Company. Mr. Schwab said yesterday that during the events that led up to the formation of the Steel Corporation Mr. Carnegie was "eager" to sell out, and reconciled this with his testimony before the Stanley Committee that Mr. Carnegie sold reluctantly by saying that his reluctance was due to his pride in the business. He was both eager and reluctant, said Mr. Schwab.

It was just at this time that the moves of the Carnegie Steel Company to build a tube plant at Conneaut were in progress, and it was after the projected combination had been discussed that Mr. Schwab, in January, 1901, made an official announcement of the plan for a great tube mill.

Mr. Schwab had promised on Tuesday to look up the date of the dinner, and when he said yesterday that it was Dec. 12, 1900, Judge Dickinson, the Government counsel, had him confirm the fact that this showed that his interview with Mr. Steele was prior to the dinner.

"And at that time the question had come up about the interest manifested by the Morgan people in the possible competition you were going to establish at Conneaut?" asked Judge Dickinson.

"Yes."

"Did Mr. Carnegie have anything to do with getting up this dinner?"

"Not so far as I know."

"Was he at the dinner?"

"For a few moments only. He had some other engagement for the evening, but came in and remained twenty minutes or half an hour."

Schwab Suggested Deal to Morgan.

"Who first proposed to you the sale of the Carnegie works, Mr. Morgan or Mr. Carnegie?"

"I talked about it with Mr. Morgan before I went to Mr. Carnegie at this special time. I went to Mr. Carnegie to get a price for it after my talk with Mr. Morgan."

"Had Mr. Carnegie at that time ever asked you to sell it to Mr. Morgan?"

"No."

"Had Mr. Morgan been identified with the Federal Steel Company?"

"And Mr. Bacon, and Judge Gary?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Morgan had formed the American Bridge Company, too?"

"To the best of my knowledge, he had."

"He was also in the National Tube Company?"

"Yes."

"You talked with him about putting these things together?"

"I did."

"Which were known as the Moore concerns?"

"National Steel and American Sheet and Tinplate."

"What were known as the Rockefeller concerns?"

"That was the ore."

"What was Mr. Rogers's connection?"

"Principally Standard Oil, I believe."

The Interests in Combination.

"So you combined the interests of Morgan & Co., the Carnegie Company, the Rockefeller interests, the Standard Oil Company, and the Moore interests?"

"Well, if you so express it."

"Can you mention anybody outside those interests at that time in the United States that was comparable in strength financially to them, individually or collectively?"

"My opinion on that subject would not be of any value at all," said Mr. Schwab, but on being pressed by Judge Dickinson he admitted that he could name nobody else in the same class. He said it was not so much a combination of these interests as the sale of their properties to a new company, but Judge Dickinson insisted that what they received for the properties were stock and bonds of the Steel Corporation.

On redirect examination later Mr. Schwab said that in his talk with Mr. Morgan, preliminary to the combination, the tube project of the Carnegie Company had not been discussed, to the best of his recollection.

"That was not the theory I expounded to Mr. Morgan," he said. "I talked on the economic advantages to be obtained."

"Was the tube project mentioned at your conference with Mr. Morgan, John W. Gates, and Robert Bacon?" asked R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the Steel Corporation.

"I think not."

"Or with Judge Gary when he came into the negotiations?"

"No."

Judge Dickinson examined Mr. Schwab in regard to a mass of statistics showing that before the Steel Corporation was formed the Carnegie Company and others had exported steel, and indicating that at least for a time after its formation the Steel Corporation exported less than they had as bearing on the contention that the Steel Corporation was formed largely to make exports possible.

He also took up the advantages accruing to the Steel Corporation through the ownership of railroads for the transportation of its ore, and while Mr. Schwab took the view that the economy was offset by the capital investment in the roads he admitted that no other steel manufacturer had his own transportation facilities.

Judge Dickinson also went extensively into the control of the bulk of the ore in the Northwest by the Steel Corporation, quoting earlier statements by Mr. Schwab, but the witness said that the importance of these ore holdings had steadily diminished through the availability of other supplies.

"I only want to say," he added earnestly, "that if I live and have money enough the Bethlehem Steel Company will ultimately make every product that the Steel Corporation makes."

Judge Dickinson inquired whether Mr. Schwab was a Director of any of the subsidiaries of the Steel Corporation after he resigned as President of the main company. Mr. Schwab wasn't sure.

"I may have been on some of the Directorates," he said, "but I have not attended any of the meetings."

"Which companies?" asked Judge Dickinson.

"I don't know which ones, but I think I was a Director in some of the minor ones, and probably am even now."

"How about the Carnegie Steel Company?"

"I don't remember whether I was a Director there or not after I resigned from the Steel Corporation."

"You think you are probably a Director now in some?"

"Probably. If so, I have taken no active interest or participation."

One of the questions Mr. Lindabury asked on redirect examination was whether, in Mr. Schwab's judgment, the capitalization of the Steel Corporation exceeded the value of the properties, and he said it did not.

The cross-examination of James A. Farrell, President of the Steel Corporation, which was deferred because Mr. Schwab wanted to testify in time to start on a European trip, will begin this morning. The present programme is for Judge Gary to follow Mr. Farrell on the stand.

GUARDSMEN ON THE RIVER.

Permit Given 22d Engineers N. G. N. Y. for a House on Hudson.

Col. Walter B. Hotchkin, commanding the Twenty-second Engineers, N. G. N. Y., has obtained a permit from the Dock Department for the use of the west water front from 169th Street to about 173d Street and about ten minutes' walk from the armory on Fort Washington Avenue and 168th Street. This water front cannot be used for piers, as the ground is so high to Riverside Drive that cartage would be impossible, even if a street were cut through.

It is proposed to erect a suitable house, where the regiment can store its property for engineering work on the water, and accomplish practical results.

There will be poontoon and trestle bridges erected and taken down, pontoons put together and anchored, mining work, &c. There are also a number of skilled oarsmen in the regiment, and boat races will take place. Rowing and swimming are a part of the engineers' instruction.

CITY'S NEW 41-2S AS LOW AS 99 7-8

SELLING BY SPECULATORS

Presumably Disappointed When Immediate Rise Didn't Come—Exchange Explains Attitude.

An anti-climax to the city's successful flotation of a $45,000,000 bond issue was witnessed on the Stock Exchange yesterday, when temporary certificates for the new issue sold in large volume below the lowest price at which any of the bonds will be awarded to the bidders. There were transactions on the Exchange amounting to $12,000 at 99⅞, $1,376,000 at 100, and $14,000 at 100⅛. The lowest price which will be paid by any of the bidders is 100.005.

Yesterday's selling was attributed to disappointed speculators who had hoped to get their bonds below the average price received for the entire issue. In previous years the new bonds have generally shown an accession of strength within twenty-four hours after a sale, making it possible for successful bidders to make a quick profit. When it was learned Tuesday that the average price was but little above par, the quotation on the outside market was immediately revised downward. At the opening of the Stock Exchange yesterday many bidders who had expected to make a quarter of a point by selling their bonds before the time for taking them up decided to accept a loss. The city allows bidders five days in which to complete payments upon the amount awarded them.

Despite the weakness in the new bonds, bankers maintained yesterday that the sale had been a great success. It was said that the very fact that New York City had been able to get bids for more than $75,000,000 for an issue of $45,000,000 of bonds in a market such as now prevails was the highest kind of a tribute to the city's financial position. San Francisco recently awarded a loan on a 5 per cent. basis, and the best bid received by Cook County, Illinois, for an issue of $3,300,000 4s offered this week was on a 4.90 per cent. basis. Albany and other cities have been able to sell small blocks of bonds on slightly better terms than New York, but it is said that no other city in the United States could provide for any large financing needs at this time on terms as favorable as those received by New York in Tuesday's sale.

Following its custom, the Stock Exchange arranged yesterday for dealings in temporary certificates for the new issue. These will be traded in until the bonds are issued in exchange. If the engraving is done by a company whose work is acceptable to the Exchange, the actual bonds will then be admitted to list. The Exchange issued this statement in explanation of its position yesterday:

"This action is in line with the policy of the Exchange in all recent bond issues by the city. 'When, as, and if issued' contracts and temporary receipts have been admitted regardless of the ultimate award of the engraving contract. The committee feels that the interim before the final issue of the engraved bonds is the period when the facilities of the Exchange are most required by the city, because this is the period when the new bonds are finding their way into the hands of investors. The Stock Exchange thus becomes useful to the city at the time when its usefulness is most wanted, and minor considerations as to the ultimate award of engraving contracts are not permitted to interfere with this fact.

"Subsequently, the now bonds having found their way into investors' strong boxes, many of the transactions are confined to the over-the-counter business and to private arrangements, so that should the Exchange find it necessary to exclude the work of the final engraver no real harm is done the city's credit."

DYNAMITE IN COURT HOUSE.

Poughkeepsie Prisoners Find Sticks Behind a Radiator.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 21.—Two sticks of dynamite were discovered behind a radiator in the corridor of the Dutchess County Court House to-day, with caps attached and a fuse leading outside the building. The discovery was made by two prisoners from the jail, who as trusties were working in the Court House. The sticks were fastened together and capped carefully.

The dynamite was close to the door of the County Treasurer's office. The janitor said there was nothing under the radiator when he cleaned the corridor yesterday afternoon.

The Age of the Motor Truck

There is an old saying that "What was good enough for father is good enough for me." Suppose everyone in the past had acted upon that saying. We would still be carrying loads on our heads—just as our forefathers did in the Stone Age. Every generation tries to be more progressive than the one that went before. We are today doing not only all our father did, but more. We have a much better chance than our fathers.

Father did not have electricity or electrical power. He rode to business on a horse car. His goods were hauled in a horse and wagon. He could not reach persons quickly by telephone as we can today. He used the telegraph only as a last resort.

Today we annihilate time and shrink distances in many ways. We haul our goods to customers by motor trucks in one-half the time. We extend our area of business more than three-fold by using the motor truck. We haul larger and heavier loads. We load our motor trucks quickly and unload them quickly. We do not waste the time at either end of the line that father used to waste. We save time and save money.

This is the spirit of the business generation of today. It is a motor trucking generation. There are 40,000 using motor trucks.

Many of these are Alco trucks. Among the larger business houses the preference is for the Alco—due to a considerable degree to the fact that it is built by a large and responsible company. Of the Alcos now serving 62 per cent were purchased on reorders. That is the expression of judgment of those who have tried Alco trucks. The reasons why you should select an Alco truck are perfectly expressed in this way:

Experience—movers of the world's goods since 1835—78 years.

Capital—$50,000,000.

Sales—increase in one year 205 per cent.

Agencies—increase in one year 364 per cent.

Engineering—line includes 6½ ton, 5 ton, 3½ ton, 2 ton trucks.

Transportation Cost Bureau supplies expert transportation engineering advice to prospects and customers.

Send for the new 112-page book about the Alco. It is illustrated with 204 views. It is one of the most valuable documents ever issued on road transportation.

Two-base hits—Merkle, Murray. Sacrifice hits—Mowrey, Magee, Wilson, Murray, Tesreau. Stolen bases—Whitted, (2,) Higgins, Konetchy, Merkle, Burns, Herzog, (2,) Murray. Left on bases—St. Louis, 5; New York, 8. First base on errors—St. Louis, 1; New York, 1. Bases on balls—Off Sallee, 2; off Tesreau, 6. Struck out—By Sallee, 2; by Tesreau, 6. Umpires—Messrs. Rigler and Byron. Time of game—One hour and forty-five minutes.

Chief Meyers neglected to get the recipe from Harold McCormick when he drew the pinch-hit assignment in the eighth inning of yesterday's game at the Polo Grounds, and a golden opportunity to pick up another victory slid into oblivion. McCormick was ineligible, as he bats from the off-side of the plate, and Slim Sallee sorts out his slants from the off-side, too. So Chief got the call with the bases crowded to capacity, two Giants on the shelf and only a hit needed to win the game. A high fly to Jimmy Sheckard in left field was the best that Meyers could do for the dying cause, and the St. Louis Cardinals took their second game from the Polo Grounders, 4 to 3. As a result McGraw's men are again threatened with a berth in the second division.

It was one of those dull, cloudy days when a speedy pitcher is supposed to exert so much extra influence over opposing batsmen, so Jeff Tesreau was the logical choice for mound duty. Yesterday the darkness dimmed Jeff's eyes when he tried to locate the plate as much as it affected the Cardinals in getting a line on the bear hunter's speed, and Tesreau's passes kept the visitors in the game up to the eighth inning, when some solid hitting, following a miscue by Doyle, sealed the verdict. The first two runs chalked up by the Cards were the result of passes to the first batsmen to face Jeff in the first and fifth innings. When the big fellow finished his Santa Claus specialty Larry Doyle took up the work and paved the way for the two runs which came in the eighth inning.

Poor judgment on the bases was costly to the Giants in the seventh inning just before the Cardinals picked up the two runs which gave them the lead and eventually decided the game. Herzog opened this inning with a scorching drive between Mowrey and Whitted and followed by stealing second. Miller Huggins suggested to Umpire Byron that his judgment on the play at second was badly warped and for these few words the midget manager was promptly chased to the club house. Tesreau's bunt advanced Herzog to third base with one out and the front end of the New York batting order ready to face Sallee. When Burns grounded to Konetchy, Herzog converted an ordinarily easy out into one of those Cincinnati base hits by making a fake dash for the plate and turning back to third base when Konetchy let Burns escape in order to check a run. Herzog got back to third safely and Burns reached first but that was not sufficient for Utica George. While the ball was being thrown around by the Cardinals George made a dash for second, drawing Herzog away from third and the latter was run down between the bases before Burns could pass second.

But the big failure to grasp an opportunity was reserved for the next inning after the Cardinals had forged to the front. Fletcher and Doyle were easy outs and then Merkle tore off a scorching double along the left field foul line. This brought up Red Murray, who had nicked off a double, a single and a sacrifice hit in his three previous encounters with Mr. Sallee. Ed. Konetchy, acting manager after Huggins's exile, decided to take no chances with Red and he ordered Sallee to let Murray stroll. The compliment was appreciated and Murray walked. This was Sallee's first pass, but he had difficulty getting back the control which he had momentarily abandoned and Arthur Wilson got a pass, too, filling the bases. Herzog had landed on Sallee for solid smashes in the fourth and seventh innings, but McGraw decided to sidetrack the canteloupe king in favor of Meyers. Chief ended the suspense and the inning, too, with a high fly to Sheckard.

The Cardinals picked up a run in the first inning without a hit. Tesreau filled the bases with successive passes to Huggins, Magee, and Sheckard, and Huggins counted while Herzog was throwing Mike Mowrey out at first on a bunt.

The first New York run was pushed across in the second inning, when Merkle beat out a bunt to Mowrey, stole second, got an extra base on Wingo's bad throw, and scored on Murray's double to left centre. After Wilson sacrificed Red to third Herzog hit to Mowrey, and Murray was run down between the bases.

Three errors, a steal, and a single gave the Giants the lead and their last two runs in the fourth inning Merkle bunted and reached second when Sallee threw poorly to Konetchy. On Murray's sacrifice Merkle reached third, and he scored while Whitted was throwing Wilson out at first after fumbling his grounder. Herzog singled to left, stole second, got an extra base when Wingo's throw rolled to the outfield and made the plate safely when Mowrey's throw bounded off his shoulder.

The Cardinals won in the eighth, a high throw by Doyle on Evans's grounder starting the trouble. Magee sacrificed Evans to second and Sheckard singled to left. Burns's sharp throw held Evans on third. Mowrey flied to Shafer and Evans was again held on third, Sheckard moving up on Shafer's throw home. Konetchy's sharp single over second base scored Evans and Sheckard with the tying and winning runs.

Crandall and Snodgrass were sent in as substitute batsmen in the ninth inning, but neither could start a rally, the Giants going out in order.

KLEM BANISHES PLAYERS.

Umpire Disciplines Superbas—Fans in Misery as Pirates Win.

About 2,500 baseball fans at Ebbets Field yesterday made Umpire Klem's life miserable for nearly two hours, because he had the courage to enforce the rules of the game. Umpire Klem was officiating at the plate in the second contest between the Pirates and Superbas, and banished Daubert, Miller, and Cutshaw for using improper language. The Brooklyn first baseman took exception to being called out on strikes in the first inning. Of course, the spectators sided with him and began a verbal attack on Klem, which was kept up unremittingly until the umpire was escorted off the field. Miller was the next offender. He began by disputing Klem's decisions in Pittsburgh's half of the sixth inning and wound up by warming the bench. Cutshaw hurled an epithet at Klem and was put off the field. Meanwhile the Pirates went about their business in an orderly manner and captured the second game of the series, 5 to 2.

Wagner is still one of the most dangerous batsmen in the game. For the second time in the series he came through with a timely single which won the game. The Dutchman's wallop added fuel to the fire, and the fans, who are beginning to have visions of a championship pennant floating at their new park, left the grounds in an unhappy frame of mind.

Pittsburgh won the game in the eighth inning with two hits, both singles, a brace of errors by Ragan and Smith respectively, which netted three runs. The teams were tied at 2 to 2 up to this stage of the contest. Babe Adams and Pat Ragan engaged in a pitching duel throughout, the former holding the whip hand at the finish. There were several clever plays, but the feature was Moran's great throw from the right field fence to the plate which nailed Simon, who tried to score on the heave. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 21.—The New York Americans could not make it three in a row off the Browns to-day, and dropped the third game by the score of 5 to 0. Pitcher Ford was touched up for nine hits, while Earl Hamilton, who performed on the mound for St. Louis, allowed only one hit, a Texas Leaguer that fell back of the line, between first and second bases. The New Yorkers were favored by free transportation four times, while Ford issued three passes.

Cree, who has proved a stumbling block to the St. Louisans, was the visitor who was able to connect with Hamilton's delivery. Up to the seventh inning not a hit had been made, but in that inning Cree made the only one charged against the St. Louisan.

St. Louis started the scoring, making two runs in the opening inning on a base on balls to Shotton, the first man up, a sacrifice by Johnston, Williams's triple, a base on balls to Pratt, and Brief's single.

Two more runs were added in the sixth inning, on a double by Shotton, singles by Johnston and Pratt, and Williams's sacrifice. The last run of the game came in the seventh inning, when three St. Louisans connected safely, namely, Austin, Agnew, and Hamilton.

New York made its best effort to win in the seventh inning, when Wolter got a base on balls, his second of the game; Hartzell struck out, and Cree singled to right, putting Wolter on second. The hit was too short to go further. Then Chase could not come through with a hit that would have meant a run, and Cree was unlucky enough to get nabbed on an attempted double steal. Chase's fly went to Williams for an easy catch.

Seton Hall Player to Join Detroit.

Joe Peploski, Captain and star player of the Seton Hall 'Varsity baseball team, upon his graduation next month will take up professional baseball, having agreed to sign a contract with the Detroit American League team. Since he pitched a few sensational games for Seton Hall last season, Peploski has received offers from big league magnates, but he waited until he was about to graduate before he made his decision. He will receive his degree at Seton Hall on June 12, and will join the Tigers in New York a few days later. Peploski is an all-around good ball player, his batting and base running recommending him even more than his twirling as an asset for fast company. He is 21 years old. His home is in Bayonne, N. J.

HARVARD CREWS OFF.

'Varsity and Freshmen Eights Start for Ithaca for Cornell Races.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, May 21.—After a short practice on the Charles River this afternoon Harvard's 'Varsity and freshmen eight-oared crews, which will row the two Cornell crews at Lake Cayuga Saturday afternoon, started for Ithaca. They will arrive to-morrow in time for practice on the course, and will have all day Friday to put the finishing touches on their stroke.

The 'Varsity crew, which has been shaken up considerably since losing the triangular race to Princeton, has made some progress in the last ten days, but hardly enough, it is thought here, to beat the Ithacans.

The Crimson freshmen, however, have been rowing very well, and their chances of beating the Cornell youngsters are believed to be good. About twenty-five oarsmen went to Ithaca.

The 'Varsity crew will use its new Ward shell against the Ithacans. The make-up of the two Harvard crews will be as follows:

'Varsity—Harwood, stroke; Meyer, 7; Goodale, 6; Curtis, 5; McVicar, 4; Murray, 3; Trumbull, 2; Reynolds, bow; Capt. Abeles, coxswain.

Freshmen—Chichester, stroke; Soucy, 7; Gilman, 6; Schall, 5; Parsons, 4; Potter, 3; Capt. Morgan, 2; Herrick, bow; Kreger, coxswain.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 21.—The Cornell 'Varsity crew to-day rowed its first and only time trial over the course to be followed on Saturday in the races with Harvard. While Coach Courtney refused to give out the time made by the crew, he said Harvard will have to show the best crew it ever sent to Cayuga Lake to defeat Cornell on Saturday.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 21.—Yale, playing a fine up-hill game, defeated Brown in an exciting contest to-day, 6 to 4, making the sixteenth consecutive victory for the Blue and the second win over Brown this season. Eayres came home when Cornish threw wild to the plate in an attempt to catch Eayres, and Reilly scored from second on Tewhill's hit. In the second Burdette scored two for Yale by a slashing double to left field. In the fifth, with two down, Capt. Blossom sent in two runs, tieing the score with a drive over second. Riddell drove a liner to right, sending in two runs, ending the scoring. Gile, after the first inning, pitched winning ball, holding the visitors safe at all times and fanning nine men. Seven of these were in the first three innings. The score:

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 21.—The Harvard 'Varsity nine to-day batted out a victory against the Pilgrims, a team composed of old Harvard 'Varsity men and including three former Captains, McLaughlin, Potter, and Dexter. Trafford Hicks, Harvard's pitcher three years ago, held the 'Varsity down until the Pilgrims had secured a 4 to 1 lead. Then the college boys began to hit, and in the last three innings made nine runs, hitting Hicks safely five times and then putting in four hard hits against McLaughlin. The score:

ENGLISH IN FAST POLO.

Another American Team Gives Visitors Strong Battle at Piping Rock.

Surprises were in store for the polo enthusiasts who journeyed to the Piping Rock Club at Locust Valley, Long Island, yesterday, to see the pick of England's polo players line up for their second practice game with an American team. On Monday the Britishers, by scoring 21 to 0, made one of the largest scores ever seen on an American polo field. Playing a faster game to-day, they won out by but one and a quarter goals. The score was: England, 5¾ goals; Piping Rock, 4½ goals.

The English team lined up with: 1, Leslie St. G. Cheape; 2, Capt. Noel Edwards; 3, Capt. R. G. Ritson; backs, Capt. Vivian Lockett and Capt. E. D. Miller.

Piping Rock lined up with: 1, C. Perry Beadleston; 2, F. S. Von Stade; 3, F. M. Freake; back, R. L. Agassiz.

Mr. Freake, who is one of the substitutes for the challenge team, was a tower of strength for the Long Island team. Mr. Agassiz, who is a member of the Myopia (Mass.) Club, with a polo handicap of eight goals, played with fully as much aggressiveness as any of the British players, and on five different occasions saved his goal by well-placed back strokes after Capts. Edwards and Cheape had worked the sphere well down to their goal posts by a series of clever and fast combinations plays. The most spectacular goal of the eight periods was made by Freake in the last period.

The English team caught the ball on the throw-in, and by play to the boards had it within fifty feet of their post when Agassiz knocked it back to Von Stade, who made a fast run for a hundred yards and then, overriding Freake, took the ball onward and with a lofter sent the sphere between the posts fully 200 feet from the line.

Each team scored a goal in the first period, and Cheape for the Britishers made the only goal in the second chapter. No goals were made by either team in the third period, and at half time Edwards made a fast goal for the English. Capt. Miller succeeded Capt. Lockett in the fifth period, when Freake scored again for Piping Rock, while the opposing team hit two goals.

Honors went to Piping Rock in the sixth period when two goals were scored. Capt. Erwards hit the only goal of the seventh period, and in the last chapter Long Island had the ball and made the only tally after four minutes of play.

Piping Rock lost a half goal penalty when Beadleston crossed Capt. Edwards in the second period, and the English team lost a quarter goal for a safety made by Capt. Cheape in the fourth period.

DAVIS CUP TEAM WINS.

Hackett and Little Take Four Sets on West Side Courts.

Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little, who will represent the United States in the doubles match against Australia in the Davis Cup trials, resumed their practice yesterday on the West Side Tennis Club courts when they defeated Charles E. Haggett, the English professional, at the club, and E. D. Leonard in four straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2, 8—6.

The international pair again showed improved form and devoted their efforts to combination play. They made a number of excellent returns and covered the court in good style. Their opponents played a hard game and kept Hackett and Little constantly on the move, forcing them at times to their limit, although there were very few deuce sets.

The improvement of the Davis Cup representatives was apparent at the start of the match, and was sustained throughout, although in the fourth set they tired, but rallied in time to win out after a hard struggle, 8—6.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the National lawn tennis champion in both singles and doubles, is expected to arrive in this city late to-night. Robert D. Wrenn, the Chairman of the International Committee, and Julian S. Myrick of the West Side Tennis Club, have arranged for McLoughlin to begin his practice for the Davis Cup matches to-morrow afternoon. At singles he will make his beginning against Haggett, the English professional, who is to act as coach of the American team, and Gustave F. Touchard. On Saturday afternoon McLoughlin is to be paired in a doubles match in which Hackett and Little will also participate.

Hall Plays Good Tennis.

Showing the best form he has displayed during the tournament, W. M. Hall, the Seventh Regiment champion, reached the semi-final round in the Bronx men's singles championship yesterday on the Bedford Park Tennis Club courts. Hall defeated Paul Mead in two straight sets, 6—3, 6—3. The second match in the singles went to J. S. Condon, who won from Ingo Hartman two sets in three by the scores of 8—6, 1—6, 6—0. Hartman led 5—3 in the first set, but was unable to maintain the pace, and lost after deuce was called, Condon taking the three last games in succession. Two matches were decided in the doubles. The summary:

Bronx Men's Singles, Championship.—W. M. Hall defeated Paul Mead, 6—3, 6—3; J. S. Condon defeated Ingo Hartman, 8—6, 1—6, 6—0.

Men's Doubles.—First Round.—B. M. Phillips and J. G. Smith defeated R. L. Baggs and Allan Tobey, 6—4, 6—3; Lesly Robinson and partner defeated Paul Goold and H. Manchester, by default.

Amherst Best for Tennis Title.

BOSTON, Mass., May 21.—A clean sweep by Amherst of all the points in the annual New England intercollegiate tennis championships for the second year is a possibility as a result of the success of Amherst players. C. L. Johnstone, the singles champion, and F. Cady, both of Amherst, are the finalists in singles, and are paired in the finals for the doubles. They won the only doubles matches of the day from Victor and Cutler of Williams in straight sets, and will meet Richards and Bacon of Wesleyan for the title to-morrow. The summary:

Championship singles: Semi-final round—F. Cady, Amherst, won from H. W. Webber, Dartmouth, 8—6, 6—1; C. L. Johnstone, Amherst, won from C. F. Cutler, Williams, 7-5, 6-2.

Doubles, Semi-final—Johnstone and Cady, Amherst, defeated Victor and Cutler, Williams, 7-5, 6-2.

Michigan Beats Navy Tennis Team.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 21.—University of Michigan's tennis players to-day administered the first defeat to the Navy team that they have suffered this season. The visitors took three of the four sets of singles and one of the two strings of doubles. The doubles were closely contested. Parmlee, Navy's crack player, fell an easy victim to Reindel.

Two New Lehigh Track Records.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., May 21.—Burke made two new Lehigh records in the Lehigh-Swarthmore track meet here to-day, when he won the half-mile race in 2:00 and the 440 yards in 0:52 1-5. Lehigh won the meet by a score of 72 to 40. Gowdy was the star of the Swarthmore team, winning four firsts, the 120 hurdles, the 220 hurdles, the broad jump, and the pole vault.

TRAVERS QUALIFIES BEST IN 'MET' GOLF

Veteran Travis Fails to Get a Place Among Championship Set at Fox Hills.

With rounds of 73 and 78 for a total of 151 Jerome D. Travers of Upper Montclair, the titleholder, led a field of ninety amateurs in the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the fifteenth annual championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association over the Fox Hills links on Staten Island yesterday. The 73, which equaled the competitive record of the course, was also made in the early hours by H. V. Gaines of Wykagyl.

Most surprising was the showing of Walter J. Travis, an erstwhile National and metropolitan champion, who had rounds of 86 and 84 for a total of 170, which placed him in a tie at the bottom of the first thirty-two. On the play-off Travis lost on the first hole, thereby making the first time in his long career as a golfer that he had failed to qualify in a championship.

Considering the quality of the field, the wonder is that more low scores were not returned. Throughout the morning cards showing totals in the seventies were scarce, and this was explained by the fact that the course had been greatly increased in length. It now covers a playing length of 6,300 yards.

There was a wide margin between Travers and the second man, Gaines, who returned 158 for the double round. That meant that Gaines took 85 in the afternoon, quite a difference from his earlier effort of 73. T. V. Bermingham, another Wykagyl golfer, got third place with 159, while A. F. Kammer, the Staten Island champion, making a 77 in the afternoon, slipped into fourth place with 160. The scores:

GOLF TOURNEY IN STORE.

Mrs. J. E. Boldt and M. D. Rae Winners at Gimbels'.

A crowd of more than 300 enthusiastic golfers cheered Mrs. J. E. Boldt as she won the Gimbel golf tournament yesterday on the indoor links on the fourth floor of Gimbel Brothers' store. Mrs. F. R. Downs, Jr., was the runner-up in the thirty-six hole finals, her opponent winning by 3 to 2.

Following the women's finals in this novel tournament that has been running since May 15, the men's finals were played off with M. D. Rae, the winner, 5 and 3, and Frank Gould, the runner-up.

Mrs. Boldt, who is an ardent suffragette, and was on the "hike" to Washington, received a handsome silver tidbit server as her prize. Mrs. Downs got a folding kodak.

The men's prizes were a gilt Colonial clock and a Circassion walnut humidor.

The course over which the tournament was held is unique. It is 100 feet long by 30 feet wide; the floor is covered with a heavy deep pile Axminster carpet of grass color. There are numerous hazards and bunkers. The pillars of the building, dressed as trees, made the play more difficult.

Pekingese Show Dogs Arrive.

Among twenty-three pet dogs which arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic from Southampton were fifteen prize Pekingese dogs which are the property of Mrs. W. H. Herbert, Mrs. Sealy Clark, and Lady Ebury. They came over in charge of Miss Elizabeth Ashford of London, and are to be exhibited here. The prize winners are Teddie, Queenie, and Psyche.

PERILOUS HARMONY.

It is reported from Washington that the President is inclined, for the sake of party harmony, to sign the Appropriation bill to which has been added a rider forbidding the Department of Justice to use the money voted for its business in prosecuting certain classes of offenders against the Anti-trust bill. It is said that the President will, at the same time, submit a statement of reasons why he thinks the rider should not have been put upon the bill.

This course would not be very courageous, and it would be extremely foolish. Mr. WILSON can give no reason for not putting the rider on the bill which would not equally be a sound reason for vetoing the bill with the rider on it. The notion that the party harmony secured by signing the bill would be of any political value is a delusion. The party would be a great deal stronger if the President vetoed the bill and put on Congress the responsibility of passing it over his veto. In that case the country would know that if the Representatives in Congress of the party were weak and cowardly enough to sustain this absurd piece of class legislation, at least its President was brave and strong enough to do all he could to prevent it. The people would have more confidence in a party which, though its Congressmen went wrong, had a President who would go right than it could have in a party in which the Congressmen went wrong and the President dared not stop them. It is also reported that the President is inclined to overlook the shameful favoritism of the provision because it does not change the anti-trust law and remains in force for only one year. That reasoning comes dangerously near pettifogging. The provision of the bill is vicious because it is an attempt to coerce the President, and because it is pernicious in itself. On either of these points it ought to be killed. For the sake of the country, the party, and for the sake of the President himself we hope that he will kill it.

FIGHTING THE TARIFF.

It is not likely that the Republicans will gain much politically by the plan of petty delays they are following in the Senate. It certainly is not businesslike or patriotic. The most they can hope to attain was brutally explained by Senator PENROSE when he predicted that Mr. SIMMONS might have to do what Mr. GORMAN did in 1893. The Senator from Pennsylvania does not seem to remember that what Mr. GORMAN did was quite as harmful to the Republicans as it was to the "Senators from Havemeyer" who joined him in doing it. It was the perfidy of that year that fixed in the public mind the corrupting tendency of tariff class legislation and helped to raise the sentiment which finally overthrew the Republican supremacy in the Government. If the Republicans are looking for reaction next year, on the basis of Democratic tariff legislation, they would do well to keep their hands as clean as conveniently they can. They would certainly do well not to raise the memory of one of the most disagreeable chapters in our political history.

All dilatory and peddling opposition to the tariff, with the hope to encourage Democratic dissension, is unwise and risky. The great body of the business men of the country who are likely to be affected by the tariff are anxious that the measure shall be disposed of promptly. They look forward to the months of agitation and uncertainty which the Republican tactics threaten with deep concern. They feel that if the bill were once passed and went into immediate effect they would "know where they were," would be able in great degree to adjust their plans and their operations to the new conditions, and would reduce their risks and their losses to the lowest level. It is not as if this legislation were a novel and unexpected thing, sprung upon them without warning. It is more than five years now since the Republicans themselves proclaimed that a change in the policy of the Government was necessary and was impending, and undertook to begin it. The fact that they did not live up to their pledges did not remove the necessity which they had announced. It only compelled the calling in of the Democratic Party to make the change.

The business men of the country, and especially the wisest and most capable of them, have not ignored this warning. They have made their plans in contemplation of it. Now what they want is the quickest possible settlement of the matter. The "lobbyists" at Washington, who are encouraging the Republicans in their scheme of delay, do not represent the efficient portion of the business community, even the efficient portion of those who have benefited by the tariff in the past. They do not deserve the attention they receive from the opposition leaders. The conservative element in business longs for a decision as soon as it can be reached.

THE RESUMPTION OF RACING.

The Westchester Racing Association has offered to advance to the Sheriff of Nassau County the money necessary to pay the Deputy Sheriffs who will enforce the laws against race-track gambling when racing is resumed at Belmont Park on Memorial Day. The association has also asked District Attorney WISONG to "give the Sheriff such legal advice as "may be necessary to enable him intelligently and properly to enforce "the law against gambling while "these races are being conducted."

It is eminently proper for the District Attorney to advise the Sheriff, as requested by the racing association, and to accept its aid in law enforcement. The Directors of race tracks are responsible for organized gambling within their inclosures, although the opinion in the Shane case clearly indicated that private betting might be permitted. But it would be improper for the Sheriff to depend on money furnished by the racing association to police the stands and track. The Deputy Sheriffs should receive payment for their services from the authorities of Nassau County. There should be no confusion in their minds as to who are and who are not their employers.

THE CITY'S CREDIT.

The city's moral credit never stood higher than at the moment that it is paying more for financial accommodation than at any time when business conditions were equally near normal. There is no doubt that the bonds which sold yesterday below par will be redeemed according to their tenor. In that sense the city's credit is not in question, and is removed from any discussion of the general conditions of which the bond sale is only an incident. In that sense the sale attests the height of the city's credit, for the bond issue was more successful than many which have been floated almost concurrently in many parts of the world. It was not necessary even to underwrite it. The free market took it all, and would have taken more by half, whereas in London recent offerings of $135,000,000 of Government and city bonds resulted in the taking of only $13,000,000. The unsold $122,000,000 overhangs the market, but there is no such immediate depressing influence on the market for New York bonds. In this country scores of city loans have failed altogether, and the cities concerned are hard put to it for their necessities. This city is supplied with all the funds it needs for months, perhaps for a full year.

Nevertheless it is to be remarked that Controller PRENDERGAST sounds a note of caution and restraint rather than exuberance. He thinks the facts show that the city's credit is in a class by itself, but that New York is in the same class with many cities which rival it in spending more money than available credit justifies. The Controller thinks that citizens must be made to understand that they cannot maintain recent rates of expenditure, because the money market cannot assimilate the applications. The warning is timely considering the city's commitments for the dual subway and the aqueduct. Borrowing for those purposes is postponed, but it must come, and under conditions which modify the calculations on which those enterprises were undertaken. The existing Subway would not have been built under present conditions of credit. The estimates of profit for the dual subway must be revised. That is not to say that they should be reconsidered. They neither can nor should be, for there are other and more compelling considerations than the cost of money and profit in cash.

The situation may be complimentary to the city's credit, but it is cautionary regarding the light-hearted assumption of obligations. Bank officers sometimes shudder at the free and easy way in which borrowers sign promissory notes, and give well-meant warnings to customers whom they accommodate. The city has received such a warning in the necessity to raise its rates of interest. It is a favored applicant for funds, but its applications conflict with those of many others. All cannot be accommodated because there does not exist the capital which is wanted. Selections must be made, and investors representing the traditional "widows and orphans" have favored New York. The great merchants of credit underbid these smaller takers, and reserved their funds for those in inferior credit, whose needs are so pressing that they must pay more to those willing to take the risks involved.

The list of the city's creditors is in the hundreds merely, but they are mostly ultimate consumers, and to a total larger than the figures indicate. They have not trusted New York in vain, and the city should appreciate the responsibility of the trust imposed. Economy and efficiency should be the watchwords, and dollars spent should represent values received. It is a pleasure to acknowledge the efforts of the Finance Department as an installment on account, but there remains room for even greater progress along the lines laid down by this administration. The Controller's soberness is becoming to the situation, and is more wholesome than the easy optimism which refuses precautions until too late.

"JERSEY JUSTICE."

The letter to THE TIMES from Gov. FIELDER of New Jersey, printed yesterday, shed light upon the contest in the Legislature at Trenton over the power of Sheriffs to draw grand and petty juries. New Jersey's State Government is composed of few elected officers, the Governor having the appointing power of some 260 subordinates, and when he is himself not under the thumb of a boss New Jersey reaps in full the benefits of the short ballot. But the Sheriffs of the counties are elective, not appointive, officers; to them is given the exclusive control over the Grand Jury and petty jury lists. Despite the restraining influences of the Geran law, Gov. FIELDER says the Sheriffs are still appointed to their candidacies by the machine, and favoritism rules in their selection of the juries. Thus lawless men who have a "pull" with the machine find a friend in the Sheriff and in his appointees against indictments and convictions.

Gov. FIELDER says that the people are so familiar with the frequent discharge of Grand Juries by the courts of New Jersey for failure to perform their duties that the occurrence now excites but passing comment. The only remedy for the evil is to prevent any one man from exercising complete power over the selection of juries, and to lodge it largely with the courts. The drawing of juries is essentially a part of the administration of justice. The Supreme Court Justices of New Jersey are appointed by the Governor, they have always been composed of men of the highest character. They take no part in political contests, they are far removed from the reach of "influence." Several jury reform bills have been introduced during the session. The one which Gov. FIELDER favors is that introduced this week, providing that the Sheriffs' lists for grand and petty juries shall be submitted to the Supreme Court Justices for their revision. The Sheriffs are relieved of much responsibility and of some work; besides, their annual salaries remain the same. They may have political reasons for opposing the Governor's bill, but their appeal to right and logic will be futile.

THE COMMERCE COURT.

The Merchants' Association has passed a formal protest against the abolition of the Commerce Court, whose activities will cease with the financial year unless provision is made for its expenses. This is another case of sneak legislation. A court once created lives until its existence is lawfully ended. The Commerce Court is not disestablished, but the payment of its bills is stopped, and this is done by a "rider." The costs of the court are not large, and the reason for providing them is thus stated by the Merchants' Association:

> The Commerce Court is a necessary part of our judicial system, not only for the reason that it expedites contested cases, but as best serving the interests of the shipping public in the securing of a uniformity of decisions applicable throughout the country in lieu of the conflicting decisions and delays experienced under former jurisdiction in the various district courts.

The appeal is made in the interest of the shippers, who have no other means of relief from a negative or adverse decision of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The interest of the railways is the same as of the shippers, for no party to a litigation benefits or has a right to benefit by impediments to decisions of disputes on the merits. Doubts and delays rival injustice in embarrassing business. The Commerce Court has done what was expected of it in simplifying and hastening procedure. Its abolition would benefit no deserving interest. And the manner of its abolition is an insult to all courts, any of which may stand next in line for similar starvation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Exploration Is Now Scientific. Scientific exploration, as distinguished from the exploration of adventure, will be illustrated in its extreme and most modern form by the Stefansson expedition into the arctic regions. Discovery, instead of being the main object of the party, will be reduced to an incidental purpose, the attainment of which will be held highly interesting indeed, but not of real importance or as in any sense determining success or failure.

If it should turn out that the hypothetical Crocker's Land is a reality, the members of the expedition are quite human enough to experience the emotions felt by the simpler travelers of an earlier day, but if they find only frozen sea over a shoal—which would also account for the observed movements of arctic currents—they would still have their reward and would return content. Provided with all scientific instruments and with experts to use them, the results of the journey, unless it be overwhelmed by a disaster hardly to be counted among the probabilities, will be material contributions to a dozen branches of learning, including geography, meteorology, and the most comprehensive of them all, biology, which covers everything alive on land and sea, from men down to monads.

All recent expeditions have partaken more or less of this character, for it is many a year since anybody deemed it a claim to a highly desirable kind of glory to be able merely to say that he has been where men never went before. Indeed, nowadays, expeditions that start out poorly equipped for making records of scientific value are viewed with distinct disapproval as a waste of energy and money as well as of life, and the big societies will have nothing to do with them. This will be literally true now that both poles have been attained. It will be observed that neither STEFANSSON nor AMUNDSEN says anything at all in the announcements of plans about special efforts to reach the point that was once the object of a haunting desire. A single visit took away practically all of its special interest.

That polar travel still has its dangers has been proved only too often and terribly of late, but after all its mortality has not been larger than, if as large as, that which has marked exploration in tropical regions comparatively well known.

Eugenists Taking Courage. Slowly but very surely the doctrines and proposals of the eugenists are gaining, the one acceptance and the other application in the conduct of exactly that phase of human activity whence not so long ago it was considered almost or quite commendable to banish reason and to leave all to chance and to sentiment as the opposite of reason. More and more people are coming to realize the necessity of taking before entering into the most important of social relations certain precautions once unthought of—precautions which, when the eugenists first suggested them, were either denounced as disgraceful or impious or ridiculed as absurd or unnecessary.

It is a notable fact that clergymen are the leaders in proving sincere belief in the principles which have developed from the observations of the Galton school and the more definite and accurate deductions of the Mendelians. Hardly a week passes that the news does not include the announcement of some minister that he will solemnize no more marriages the would-be parties to which do not present assurances from competent authority of their fitness to assume the responsibilities hitherto always, and still usually, undertaken in lightness and ignorance.

It is, of course, as showing a tendency, rather than as accomplishing results, that these announcements are important and significant. Whoever will can still get married, anywhere, regardless of the consequences to themselves and others, and the ending of this dangerous facility seems remote, but progress is really making, and the leaders of it are of a quality to vindicate the innovation from the charges formerly supposed to be a sufficient answer to its advocates.

At any rate, not much more will be heard about the imagined and assumed extension of "stock farm methods" to human beings. That phrase has been as effective, and with as little reason, against the eugenists as was the refusal to believe that men are descended from monkeys—which no Darwinian ever asserted—against the evolutionists. Well as it is that clergymen should accept and heed eugenic truths, and better still as it will be when the State acts upon them, as it must, sooner or later, best of all would be such a wide spreading of information and intelligence among the public that no compulsion of any kind would be necessary. For that the millennium will probably have to be awaited. Yet, without any laws to forbid, the unfitness of certain marriages once common has become obvious to so many that they are almost unknown.

Myths and Real Evidence. Presumably the Western editor who charged Col. ROOSEVELT with overindulgence in intoxicants believed what he printed. Such stories have long been in circulation, and there is hardly anybody who has not met anywhere from six to a dozen people who knew or knew of somebody that with his or her own eyes had seen the Colonel take much of strong waters and show their effects plainly.

Of first-hand evidence to this effect there has been, indeed, a mysterious scarcity, considering the amount of the other kind, but many things gain wide credence with no better support, and readiness to believe is a wonderful help toward certainty. If there was one newspaper man, however, who trusted these fast and far flying yarns, there is many another member of the journalistic guild who is able to prove, not, of course, a universal negative, for nobody can do that, but to swear or asseverate, with any required solemnity, that the Colonel's relations to alcohol are just enough to prevent him from claiming to be a rigid teetotaler. They have seen him, for weeks at a time, subjected to all the temptations created by campaign excitements and wearinesses—than which, probably, none can be greater—and they confirm the Colonel's own declaration that, as drinkers, he and Dr. LYMAN ABBOTT are open to the same degree of condemnation.

This is the unvarying testimony of THE TIMES's political reporters, and, naturally, we consider it better than the hearsay tales of contrary purpore.

Stray Cats a Nuisance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can nothing be done about the number of stray cats that wander through the streets of New York City at night? In West Fiftieth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, the number is so great that it seriously disturbs the sleep of the residents of that block.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says that it can do nothing to stop this nuisance. M. K.

YALE SOCIETY EVILS.

An Alumnus Deprecates Their Discussion in the Public Press.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed with regret an article in your editorial page recently entitled "Senior Societies Scored" by H. B. Hinckley. Since the advent of the much-discussed "Stover at Yale" it seems to my mind that there has been enough criticism and mud slinging at the Yale senior society system, and the basis of my protest is not, "Are the senior societies to be condemned or justified?" but rather, "Should a Yale graduate take the opportunity of using the editorial page of THE NEW YORK TIMES as a medium for washing what he evidently considers some of the soiled 'linen' of that great family of which Yale is the Alma Mater?"

May I take this opportunity of advising Mr. Hinckley that the columns of The Yale Alumni Weekly are always ready and willing to print his views, and where he may in a succeeding issue find his opinions answered and discussed to the satisfaction of all parties?

The reformation of the Yale senior society system is now going on. It must be threshed out by the undergraduates and upon its merits alone stand or fall. And I fail to see what possible benefit can come from discussing in a great National newspaper what applies alone to the family life of Yale. MILES CARRINGTON HANNAH.

NO LAUREL WREATH TO BECK.

In Background of Bernhardt Picture, but There Are Compensations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The newspapers have reported the presentation of a golden laurel wreath to Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, in recognition of her distinguished career on the stage. I have heard no mention, however, of the courage of Martin Beck, who persuaded the divine Sarah, against the advice of her friends, to come to America and to appear at the Palace and other theatres of his circuit, and agreed to pay her $1,000 a day and all her expenses to make the tour. Next Wednesday, at the conclusion of her engagement, Mr. Beck will have handed Sarah Bernhardt $170,000 in payment of her salary for the 340 performances in which she has appeared. In addition to that, the payment of necessary expenses aggregated $50,000, which makes an investment of $220,000 which Mr. Beck has made.

The engagement, however, was a very prosperous one, and it is estimated that Mr. Beck's profits are very large, so that the probability is that as a result of her latest and probably last American tour Sarah Bernhardt has caused the American theatregoing public to expend about $500,000. Last week's receipts at the Palace Theatre were $27,000.

Martin Beck, who is now in Europe, has sent a cable message to Sarah Bernhardt, expressing his gratification with the result of her tour, and has added that he thinks her visit has done more to stimulate interest in vaudeville entertainment than any other single event. X. Y. Z.

THE CAUSE OF BALDNESS.

Are Whiskers, or Too Frequent Haircuts, to Blame?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is one more thing I would like to say on "the cause of baldness," or, rather, in relationship to it, if THE TIMES will afford me a little bare spot on its editorial page in which to express myself. It is this: My observation, covering a period of many years, leaves me convinced that the more heavily bearded a man is the more likely he is to become bald. Perhaps that is the reason why women are not so commonly afflicted—with baldness, I mean.

Take a man whose whiskers grow early and luxuriantly, and what does time discover? A thinning of the hair of the head and a coarsening of the whiskers! Whereas, a sparsely whiskered man will almost invariably retain his full head crop, even unto a state of silvery whiteness.

Who can explain that? J. W. E.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The theory that men are bald because they cut the hair too often is probably correct, but an important part of the explanation is overlooked. "Women let their hair grow as it will," but they also let it stop when it will. There is a certain natural length to which hair grows in each person; with some women to the shoulders, with most of us about to the waist, with a few to the knees. When it reaches that length it stops and remains so for years. But if it is cut short it starts growing again until it reaches the former length, and then stops.

It appears to be the cutting that starts it, and as men cut the hair so often it must be kept in a constant state of growth, making a great strain on the roots and whatever nourishes them. Many hairs give up the struggle and fall out, and the remainder illustrate the survival of the fittest. We shall never know what the normal length of men's hair is except in the case of Indians.

ARTIFICIAL ICE.

Taste and Color May Be Due to Imperfect Distillation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of this morning one of your correspondents inquired, evidently in good faith, on the subject of manufactured ice, as to why some cakes of such ice have a bitter taste when used in the making of ice water, and also why some cakes are opaque while others are transparent.

Artificial ice is made by freezing either distilled water or natural water. In the process of distillation a minute quantity of oil used in the machinery, or a trace of iron rust from the pipes condensed from the steam, although probably harmless, is apt to give an unpleasant taste to that portion of the cake of ice taken from near the centre. Ice made from distilled water is beautifully clear, with the exception of a small part near the centre of the cake.

Artificial ice made from natural water taken from the mains, and not condensed from steam, is always white in appearance.

Barber Strike Unwise.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to the cause and reasonableness of the present strike in the barber trade, I think the unions have acted with very bad judgment in demanding shorter hours and Sunday off.

On account of a few leaders not acquainted with the trade, the good men have been compelled to quit or be pulled from their work without notice to the boss barbers. The men will suffer the consequences, especially the majority of the journeymen barbers. They know their demands are entirely unreasonable and will revert against their own interest. But just the same they went out to avoid trouble.

As a very few, if any, of the journeymen barbers have any income while on strike, I hope they will soon consider their own interests more carefully and return to work at once. BENJAMIN MILONE.

Ice Prices Increased.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Last year I paid 35 cents a week for my cooler's supply; this year they want 50 cents, and make me feel at that that it's charity on their part. Personally, I should call it greed, extortion, or anything you want, only not charity or good business morals.

The newspapers would oblige me and thousands of others by publishing a list of ice dealers or manufacturers who would supply ice at a cost of 35 cents per week per cooler to downtown offices, where they can leave the ice at the door. I will swear allegiance to them now and forever, through hot and cold Winters and Summers, and so, I am sure, will the thousands of other sufferers.

CLASSES IN PRUSSIA.

Forces of Reaction Now Rally About a Bad Voting System.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"The most wretched of all electoral systems" was Bismarck's description of the Prussian method of choosing members of the local Legislature. This body, known as the Abgeordnetenhaus, or House of Representatives, for which a new election is now in progress, consists of 443 members, and is elected for a term of five years. Every bad feature known to political science characterizes the Prussian electoral system. The ballot is not secret, but public; the voting is not direct, but indirect, and the suffrage is not equal, but unequal.

According to the law, a representative to the Abgeordnetenhaus is chosen by an electoral college composed of delegates selected according to the well-known three-class system. Every constituency is subdivided into districts called Urwahlbezirke, and to each of the latter one elector or Wahlmann is allotted for every 250 inhabitants. These electors are chosen in the following manner: The voters are divided into three groups—first, the wealthy, who pay one-third of the direct taxes in the district; then the moderately well-to-do, who pay the second third, and finally the great mass of people, who pay the remaining third. Each group then chooses one-third of the electors in the district. The purpose of this complicated arrangement is plainly to overwhelm the mass of voters with a mass of property. To weigh, not to count, votes is the guiding principle of the Prussian system.

It is estimated that about 3 per cent. of the voters belong to the first class, 9½ per cent. to the second, and 87½ per cent. to the third. In many districts the first class consists of only one or two persons. In the last election of 1908 the Socialists cast about 600,000 votes and elected seven members to the House, while the Conservatives, receiving only about 420,000 votes, elected 212 members. Moreover, the last reapportionment took place in 1858, with the result that many places are now greatly over-represented, and many others greatly under-represented. Voting is public, not secret. The reason for this is obvious; it is to make sure that the little power the lower classes have shall not be used against those in authority. The landlords coerce their tenants, the employers their workmen, and the Government its employes. Recently the Socialists have instituted a terrorism of their own; they boycott every shopkeeper who does not vote for Socialist electors. The Prussian system thus presents a trinity of electoral evils: Rotten boroughs, political coercion, and property suffrage.

It is keenly realized by all the conservative elements in Germany that the political structure of Prussia, with its monarchical Government, aristocratic traditions and disciplined life, is best fitted to act as a breakwater to the rising tide of Social Democracy. Reactionary Prussia must balance the democratically chosen Reichstag; otherwise power would slip from the landed aristocracy to the middle and lower classes. And for this reason Conservatives throughout the Empire have rallied to the defense of the three-class system. "Just because a democratic franchise is the basis of the German Empire," remarked the conservative Allgemeine Zeitung of Munich, "the dangerous significance of which Bismarck so sadly under-rated, there is needed a conservative counterpoise which will constantly bolster up the sinking figure of Germania; and this conservative counterpoise is called Prussia."

So long as Prussia dominates the Government of the Empire—and there are no signs that her supremacy is at all challenged—the great problem of democracy in Germany centres around the Prussian method of voting. Let that fall and many other reforms would speedily follow. Hence the forces of reaction and reform have concentrated on the three-class system, which is the issue in the campaign for the election of a new House.

As a result of a great manifestation on the part of the Socialists, the Government introduced on Feb. 13, 1910, a bill modifying the present method. It was strongly opposed by the Socialists as not being radical enough, and by the Conservatives as being too radical, with the result that the bill was withdrawn. It then became evident that no real change would take place in Prussia unless pressure was brought from the outside. The Socialists introduced on Feb. 12 last a motion in the Reichstag or Imperial Parliament, viz.:

> In each State of the Empire, representation to the local Legislature shall be based on equal, direct, and secret suffrage. The right to vote shall be granted to all citizens over twenty years of age. All laws must have the consent of the Legislature.

This resolution not only aimed to abolish the three-class system, but included woman suffrage as well. The Socialists boldly threw down the gauntlet to test who really favored complete democracy. That was magnificent, but it was not politics, for they soon found themselves alone with their principles, as all the other parties combined to defeat the motion. Nearly all the speakers denounced it as a violation of State's rights. One conservative member declared that the resolution violated the constitutional right of each State in the Empire to regulate its own electoral affairs, and that, if passed, it would destroy the federal character of the Empire, and so realize the hope of the Socialists to bring about a centralized Government on a democratic basis. Another Conservative frankly said that if Bismarck were now alive and beheld 110 Socialists in the Reichstag he would change his opinion of the three-class system, which, at least, has kept Socialists out of the Abgeordnetenhaus.

The Socialist, Radical and Liberal parties are as a unit in their demand for a democratized franchise. The Centre, or Catholic, Party takes a midway position; it favors the abolition of public and indirect voting, but wishes to maintain the three-class arrangement. Its support, therefore, is thrown to the Conservatives. The latter heartily indorse the present system in its entirety; they even go so far as to say that if the Prussian ballot is made more democratic they will demand a restricted suffrage for the Reichstag.

It is the great hope of the Conservatives to use the tense military situation in Europe to shelve electoral reform, just as the French politicians did in the case of proportional representation. Nothing comes so handy to the European reactionary as "strained relations" between countries, for then the voice of patriotism can always be depended upon to drown the cries for reform. It remains to be seen whether the German workingmen are prepared to use that newly forged weapon, the political strike, to accomplish the long-wished-for abolition of "the most wretched of all electoral systems."

CUTS TELEPHONE RATES.

Public Service Board Extends Five-Cent Area to Coney Island.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 21.—A decision by the Public Service Commission extends the five-cent territory for telephone toll rates from Manhattan to the ocean. The charge was made by the South Side Board of Trade, Flatbush Property Owners' Association and others that the New York Telephone Company was charging unreasonable tolls, and to-day the commission entered an order reducing to five cents the toll rate between Zone 1, Manhattan, and Bay Ridge, Bath Beach, Midwood, Coney Island and Canarsie. The rate between the same localities and upper Manhattan and the Bronx, including Melrose and Tremont, comprising what is known as Zone 2, is reduced from fifteen to ten cents. The rates are to become effective on June 1.

The commission also orders that the exchange areas known as Bay Ridge, Bath Beach, Midwood, Coney Island and Carnarsie shall have the same local service privileges as are now accorded to other exchanges in the Borough of Brooklyn. This permits telephone communication between the complaining sections and Astoria and Hunter's Point, known as the Telephone Company's Zone 5, on the same conditions as now prevail from other parts of the Borough of Brooklyn.

The commission has decided upon a general investigation of toll rates between all points in the City of New York, and will have a hearing in the Metropolitan Building, New York, on May 27, when a general readjustment of telephone rates will be considered.

BUYS PAPER FOR HIS SONS.

Mr. Roberts May Also Boom Folk for President in St. Louis Star.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—To establish a congenial business for his two sons, now in college, one of them at Princeton, John C. Roberts, Vice President of the International Shoe Company, has bought The St. Louis Star from Nathan Frank.

While Mr. Roberts declined to discuss his purpose in buying the newspaper, his friends, among them Edward S. Lewis, who has been made President and Manager of The Star-Chronicle Publishing Company, said that one of his primary objects was to provide a calling for his sons.

A politician high in the councils of the Democratic Party credited Mr. Roberts with a desire to project himself into National politics as the backer of ex-Gov. Joseph W. Folk for President in 1916. According to this authority, the spirit of the Democratic platform of 1912, which declared for one term for Presidents, would preclude the candidacy of President Wilson for renomination, even if he should desire to run, and William J. Bryan's present ambition, the politician says, stops short of the White House.

SHERIFF'S FORCE GROWS.

Harburger Swears In 26 Deputies and Defends His Course.

Sheriff Julius Harburger stood by the side of his desk yesterday morning for more than an hour while applicants for the office of Deputy Sheriff filed past and were sworn "to support the Constitution and laws of the State and city." Among the twenty-six men thus sworn into office were E. E. Olcott, President of the Hudson River Navigation Company, and his son, Alfred V. S. Olcott; Carl Berger, former proprietor of the Hotel Gotham, and his son, Carl Berger, Jr., and Abraham Levy, manager of Hammerstein's.

"I have been criticised for the number of Deputies I have made," said Sheriff Harburger in his speech to the new members of his staff, "but I believe that they are a great force for good in the county. No matter how remotely a man is connected with his Government, he is going to be more interested in its maintenance than one who has no connection. My special Deputies cost the county nothing. The greater the number of persons directly interested in the Government the more nearly will that Government approach the ideal of true democracy."

Insanitary Habits of Salesmen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I bought a slice of cheese in a delicatessen shop. The proprietor himself waited on me, and after slicing off the cheese applied a finger to his tongue, picked up a sheet of paper, laid it on the counter, passed the cheese to the same hand and applied the face of the same finger to it. I told him in very forceful English what I thought of him and went my way.

A week or two ago I went into a bakery to buy a loaf of bread and saw a young lady go through a similar performance in waiting on three people who were ahead of me at the counter, so I went to another bakery.

Suppose that some of these salesmen or "salesladies" should be infected with some spreadable disease. What better course could they possibly adopt to pass it along than this reprehensible practice?

You can see this filthy habit in daily use in almost any food store you go into, and it certainly is high time that the Health Department should issue a drastic order against it and enforce it to the letter. J. D.

OUR SECRETARY OF STATE.

Where is our wandering boy to-night,
Wandering Willie?
Whither flits he in continuous flight,
Wandering Willie?
We go to his room and pound on his door;
No answer comes back though we pound till we're sore,
We never can find him at home any more,
Wandering Willie.

Where is our wandering boy to-day,
Wandering Willie?
Why is he always going away,
Wandering Willie?
Is he seeking the Demon Grape Juice now?
Is he out on the sea at his Fellowship's prow?
Wherever he is, he's not home, anyhow,
Wandering Willie.

SETS FORTH FUSION PLAN OF BATTLE

Committee Summons Citizens to Join in Fight "to Own Their Own City."

THE TICKET TO UNITE ALL

McAneny, Whitman, and Mitchel Considered for Mayoralty—Some Talk of a "Dark Horse."

The Citizens' Municipal Committee, Norman Hapgood, Chairman, which is arranging for a fusion campaign against Tammany this fall, met in the Fifth Avenue Building yesterday and discussed its plan of battle. A formal statement was issued setting forth the necessity for nominating a non-partisan ticket for municipal offices. There was no talk about candidates. The statement says that the crisis in the police department alone makes a citizens' movement imperative. Regarding the work which the committee must perform it says:

> National parties divide on national issues which do not affect city affairs. A municipal contest between national parties becomes a mere struggle for patronage. Municipal problems demand the election to responsible city offices of men of sound business judgment and constructive ability who are shackled by no debt of gratitude to any political organization. Experience proves that this can be achieved only by united action, independent of party lines and without regard to party advantage.
> In selecting candidates the committee will confer with and welcome suggestions from citizens in all walks of life and representatives of civic and political organizations in sympathy with this movement. It will, so far as possible, have its ticket placed on the primary ballots under the designation of party committees, and also, by petition, name its candidates under a separate column on the ballot for election day.

Tells of "Chaos of Incompetence."

This is what the committee says regarding the police situation:

> A chaos of administrative incompetence has been revealed. The protection of the city and the defense of the good name of the honest members of the force alike demand an immediate purification of the whole department from the corrupting influence of commercialized vice. A larger measure of home rule we should have, more liberal laws we should have, but above all we must have a thoroughgoing administrative reorganization. The Mayor and Police Commissioner, on whom this task will fall, must be men of practical judgment and executive force, and must not, at the city's peril, be under obligations to any political organization.

Other constructive work, no less important, must be done during the next four years, says the committee, and it continues:

> The problems to be met are difficult and complex. In solving them and in the efficient conduct of the vast routine of the city's business there is no room for the payment of party obligations. The far-sighted development of outlying boroughs, the improvement and extension of transit facilities, the relief of congested districts, and the establishment of more playgrounds, the enlargement of port and dock facilities, the protection of wage-earners from fire, the extension of school facilities to provide vocational training, the wider use of school buildings, the establishment of municipal markets and other similar operations which may be found feasible to reduce the cost of living—these and many other tasks, all vitally affecting human welfare, can be undertaken and pushed to completion only at great expense.
>
> The burden of taxation in which we all share, whether directly through taxes or indirectly through rents and increased cost of living, is already excessive; only by the adoption of a scientific fiscal policy combining the most improved standards of business efficiency and the observance of the most strict economy can such work be accomplished.
>
> It has been proved possible, by concerted and self-sacrificing effort, to secure devoted and able city officials who will not use their offices to favor private interests or to build up a political machine. The citizens' movement four years ago gave us as members of the Board of Estimate faithful public servants who have set standards of efficiency and economy in administration which must be maintained and improved upon, and a District Attorney who has rendered unequaled service in uncovering and punishing graft in the police.
>
> Only through a citizens' movement this year can similar results be achieved.

Election Issues Set Forth.

The principle of non-partisanship in city affairs, says the committee, has been accepted by Republicans, Progressives and many Democrats, although it is bitterly opposed by the group of bosses who control Tammany Hall, and the election this November will determine whether "ours shall be an efficient and progressive government or a government by secret forces for selfish ends."

Regarding the question of candidates the committee says:

> The committee is primarily interested in securing the nomination and election of members of the Board of Estimate, (Mayor, Controller, and President of the Board of Aldermen, and Borough Presidents,) and of the District Attorney of the County of New York. It hopes to name a ticket which will be composed of men of such standing and ability that those party organizations in which devotion to the city's good predominates over selfish interests will, without thought of trade or dicker, unite in its support. The committee will also, in the same spirit, seek to bring about non-partisan nominations for other municipal and county offices.
> To acomplish the purposes herein outlined united and vigorous action is imperative. The Citizens' Municipal Committee summons the citizens of New York to join in the fight to own their city and keep it worthy of the Nation's metropolis.

There is considerable sentiment among the members of the committee in favor of Borough President McAneny, District Attorney Whitman, and John Purroy Mitchel for Mayor. Some, however, prefer a "dark horse." The McAneny sentiment, it is said, predominates.

URGES NEED OF ECONOMY.

Robinson Tells Taxpayers That City Should Change Its Policy.

The Committee of Taxpayers, which is composed of leading real estate men of the city who believe that the paramount issue in the coming municipal campaign should be overtaxation, effected a permanent organization at its first meeting yesterday. The meeting was held in the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation at 203 Broadway. William H. Chesebrough was elected Chairman, Louis B. Bright Treasurer, and Frank S. Tyler Secretary.

Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, spoke against the project to build a filtration plant at Jerome Park Reservoir. Other speakers condemned the Board of Estimate for favoring unnecessary projects which necessitate the spending of millions of dollars.

"It will cost the city something like $26,000,000 to pay off the bonds and interest on the proposed $8,000,000 filtration plant," said Mr. Robinson. "Only Croton water is to be filtered, and it is a peculiar thing that the Presidents of the only two boroughs, Manhattan and the Bronx, which use Croton opposed the scheme. There is some reason for all this kind of thing.

"It is time that we impressed on their minds that it has got to stop. The time has come to talk economy. The plain people of New York appreciate that better than efficiency talk. In these days of the high cost of living economy is as necessary for the Government as for the individual."

The following Vice Presidents were chosen: Manhattan—Morgan J. O'Brien, Clarence H. Kelsey, Robert E. Dowling, Allan Robinson, Dr. Abram Korn, and Alfred E. Marlin. Brooklyn—Remsen Johnson, Howard Pyle, William G. Morrisey, Frank Bailey, Dr. George Brush, and Frederick B. Pratt. Bronx—E. B. Boynton and James F. Meehan. Queens—William H. Williams, Joel Fowler, and Stuart McKnight. Richmond—J. Fred Smith, William S. Van Clief, and J. G. Timolat.

MISS THORNE WEDS IN OLD TRINITY

Daughter of Gilbert G. Thorne Becomes the Bride of Alden S. Blodget.

SIMPLE CEREMONY USED

Dr. W. T. Manning Performs the Service—The Wedding Party and the Guests.

Old Trinity Church, on lower Broadway, was filled yesterday with guests for the wedding of Alden S. Blodget and Miss Frances G. Thorne, a daughter of Gilbert G. Thorne. Weddings at old Trinity are red letter days, and instead of the distance downtown being a bar, the rarity of nuptial services there is an additional attraction to wedding guests. Yesterday the chancel and altar were decorated with palms, marguerites, and other white Spring flowers.

The ceremony took place at 3:30 o'clock, and was performed by the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity.

The bridal procession was led by the ushers, who were J. Norris Thorne, a brother of the bride; W. Strother Jones, Jr., Goelet Gallatin, Reginald Saunders, Ridgeley Nicholas, Reginald Willis, and Charles A. Dana.

They were followed by the bridesmaids, who were Miss Zoe Hannah, whose marriage to J. Norris Thorne will take place on June 18, and the Misses Emily Coe, Agnes and Florence Gayley, Eleanor Townsend, and Pauline Davis of Boston.

They were gowned in pale apple-green taffeta, the round skirts being veiled with white shadow lace, and over these came pannier draperies of the green taffeta. Girdles of the taffeta formed the lower half of the bodices, the upper half being white lace over white chiffon. Their hats were dull pink straw, trimmed with pink taffeta ribbon, arranged in flat bows across the top, with the ends coming out over the ears, being carried around to the back and hanging in knotted streamers to the waist line. Lying on the straw brims were brim-shaped pieces of embroidery, showing fruit designs in quaint, old-time tints—apples, grapes, and other fruits—an altogether novel touch. All of the bridesmaids carried pink sweet peas and daisies.

She wore an ankle-length white lace frock having a pannier overdress of Nell rose taffeta draped about the bodice, with white lace about the cut-out neck and lace frills at the sleeves. Her round hat with its mushroom brim had pale green taffeta ribbon arranged in bows and long-looped streamers at the back. Her bouquet was a large old-time nosegay of lilies of the valley, sweet peas, and red roses tied with ribbons.

The bride, who walked with her father, Mr. Thorne, who gave her in marriage, wore a gown of oyster white satin. The long, square train came out at the waist line from under a cross drapery of satin and a deep overjupe effect. The draped effect also showed in the front, and the low cut bodice and elbow sleeves were of the most delicate point lace over tulle and chiffon. Her voluminous tulle veil was held by a Juliet cap of old point lace, caught by a bunch of orange blossoms. She carried a large round shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The ceremony was a simple one. There was no choral service, and the organ played the customary wedding marches for the processional and recessional.

Henry L. Bogert, Jr., was Mr. Blodget's best man.

A reception for the relatives and intimate friends followed at the residence of Mr. Thorne, 44 West Fifty-first Street, which was decorated with Marguerites and other Spring flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Blodget will on their return to town next Autumn make their home in New York.

The guests asked to the church included, among others, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Delafield, Gen. Howard Carroll, Mrs. Carroll, Miss Carroll, Mrs. J. Miss Mildred Banta was her sister's maid of honor. Gerald S. O'Laughlin was best man, and the ushers were Hayden Hamilton, Randolph C. Wilson, Arthur C. Lyons, Ernest Meyrowitz, Eugene Kelly and W. J. Donovan of Buffalo, N. Y.

The bride wore white satin trimmed with princess lace, and her maid of honor was in pale green charmeuse trimmed with point lace.

Holderness of West Point, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Houghton and Vera Tiffany of Yonkers, Helen Stull of Wyncote, Penn., and Margaretta Fleming of Harrisburg, Penn. Little Miss Eleanor Scott of Philadelphia, a niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with point lace and a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The matron of honor wore white lace over pink, and the bridesmaids were in white lace with girdles of pink satin. All of the attendants wore leghorn hats with pink streamers and carried pink Killarney roses.

Wilder Stratton of Mount Vernon, where the bridegroom has resided for some time, was best man, and the ushers were Lieut. J. Warren Stilwell of West Point, John Stilwell of Yonkers, David Underhill of Flushing, L. I.; Raphael Shortledge of West Chester, Penn., and Julius Gregory of Mount Vernon.

BERNHARDT VISITS SUFFRAGIST HOME

KEPT WAITING A LONG TIME

Then She Comes to Hear a Speech and Receive a Suffrage Bouquet of Yellow Roses.

The Woman Suffrage Party is breathing a sigh of relief this morning. It entertained Mme. Sarah Bernhardt yesterday afternoon. The great French actress came as she promised, and everything passed off perfectly.

This was in spite of the fact that the new headquarters at 48 East Thirty-fourth Street was packed with visitors to its utmost limit; hundreds of would-be guests were turned away, and at least 500 packed the street in front of the house when the actress's automobile drove up and deposited her, her secretary, her doctor and her manager.

The reception was scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock and included addresses by Miss Mary Shaw, Mrs. Edith Ellis Furness, and Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, but at 1 o'clock the first guest arrived. Before 3 o'clock every seat on the second floor of the house, which is turned into one big room, was taken, the stair leading to an upper floor was crowded, and so were the stairs leading to the floor below, which had as many people as it could hold. Every one who came after that was turned away, and the crowd around the outside of the building grew.

Mme. Bernhardt had sent word that, owing to a sprained ankle, she would not be able to climb the stairs, and a room on the main floor had been reserved for her. Here Mrs. Frederick Nathan, who was down for the speech of welcome in French, was waiting. The time set for the actress's arrival came, and was long passed and no news. The party may have to cut down its expense account to pay for the many telephone messages it sent to the theatre and Mme. Bernhardt's hotel looking her up. Finally came the goods news: "Mme. Bernhardt left the hotel ten minutes ago."

There was a great noise of cheering outside soon, and the actress and her retinue had arrived. There was a big wicker chair at the back of the room draped with a yellow suffrage flag, with the words, "Woman Suffrage Party" and "Votes for Women," but Mme. Bernhardt stood resting part of the time against a desk draped with more yellow and decorated with flowers.

There was a big bouquet of yellow roses tied with yellow ribbon and fastened with a "Votes for Women" pin for Mme. Bernhardt, and Mrs. Nathan presented it in the name of the party. They were suffrage flowers in the suffrage color, she said.

"Very pretty," said Mme. Bernhardt in French as she took them graciously.

Mrs. Nathan expressed the appreciation of the party for the courtesy of the actress in visiting the women at their headquarters, their admiration for her as an actress, and the warm welcome they extended to her. Mme. Bernhardt did not make a set speech, but responded with a word or two at intervals.

The throng which had been waiting upstairs was allowed to come down in single file, passing out through the party's little cake-baking room to the outer door and the street. A pretty little normal school girl, Miss E. Adelaide Hahn, made Mme. Bernhardt an address in rhyme telling her that she was an angel.

Tea and some of the party's best chocolate cake were served to Mme. Bernhardt and her party. Miss Shaw in her address earlier in the afternoon paid a glowing tribute to Mme. Bernhardt. Mrs. Luella F. Gear, leader of the Eighteenth Assembly District, which gave the reception, was the hostess of the day.

Prices Recede Under Influence of Decline in the New City Bonds.

All but a little of the gain which was made in the general level of prices on Tuesday was lost yesterday on a volume of dealings which showed a sharp contraction from the total of the previous day. Attention was so largely centred upon the new City bonds that the course of that issue may fairly be regarded as having been the principal influence in the general movement of prices. The bonds sold below par, but only to the extent of $12,000, out of a total of over $2,100,000. But even at par, and the great bulk of the bonds traded in sold at that price, the quotation showed a loss to all of the successful bidders at Tuesday's offering who were sellers yesterday. It is not to be assumed that investors, who were allotted bonds at a very small fraction over par, would sell out at a loss the very day after entering their subscriptions. Doubtless the selling which forced the price down yesterday, apart from any possible short selling, came from bond dealers and brokerage houses, which bid speculatively for the bonds, hoping for a quick profit on a resale at somewhere near the premium which was quoted for the bonds in the "when issued" trading on the days preceding the sale. That chance being lost, a number of successful bidders in this group took a small loss rather than take up the bonds which they had regarded as a speculation rather than as an investment.

It nearly always happens at public sales of securities that a certain proportion of the bids are of this character. On this occasion the margin was so slight that the clearing up of speculative operations brought a recession under the subscription price, and, as it happened for a few bonds, a recession under par. Proper weight should be given to this phase of the situation in judging of the meaning of the decline which occurred in the city bonds yesterday. At the same time, viewing the matter more broadly, it must be recognized that in selling at a discount under the price realized at the public sale the bonds were in a sense merely following precedent established in the case of a number of other recent issues in the foreign markets as well as here—with this difference, however, that the sale under the subscription price of such bonds as the new issue of St. Paul 4½s was largely influenced by the fact that the issues were not fully subscribed, whereas this New York City bond issue called forth bids largely in excess of the amount offered. But even taking due count of this general tendency in the bond market the bears may well have been making more capital than they were justified in making out of the decline in the City bonds. That the results of the sale suggest caution not only for the City, but to other borrowers, is plain enough. Considering the matter from a closer market point of view, however, it is fair to assume that the sort of liquidation which was under way yesterday was serving to clear up the weak holdings of these new bonds. Their market position should be improved by this sort of liquidation. Again at par these new 4½s were selling on practically as high an interest basis as the City's bonds sold at any time during the recent decline in these issues, which occurred during a period when the general bond market was much more unsettled than it is at present.

Cases were heard yesterday of successful bidders at Tuesday's sale, who sold their bonds at a profit to investors, repurchasing a similar amount of bonds which were released by other dealers to whom allotments were made. This suggested that the process of absorption by actual investors was already under way yesterday, offering the best sort of offset to the sales by bidders who were unsuccessful in reaping a quick profit. It is expected that the new money which the Government is going to put into the National banks will be finding its way to the banks in considerable amount before the close of this week, or early next week, and this may well prove a helpful influence in the City bond market. There was some buying of the new bonds yesterday by banks, which intend using them for security for part of their Government deposits.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

No Frisco Announcement.

In Chicago yesterday President Winchell of the St. Louis & San Francisco said that arrangements for caring for the two and one-quarter millions of notes which fall due on June 1 had been made. He was also quoted as saying that "Frisco's net revenue for the first ten months of this year increased over $1,500,000 and the gross over $3,200,000. It has been the best year in the company's history. Business in our territory shows an ascending tendency." In the absence of any official statement of the arrangements which had been made for meeting the June maturities, rumors regarding the Frisco's financial position continued in circulation. The general 5s have sold down from 82¼, their highest point this year, to 67¼ yesterday. They closed at 68, with a net loss of 4 points. The refunding 4s showed better resistance, closing at 68, with a loss of 1 point. The common stock declined another ¾ and the second preferred a half. There seems to be little question of the company's ability to effect an extension of the maturing notes, if that is the only difficulty to be met.

A Message Misunderstood.

"I saw in THE TIMES an account of how you are entering upon a campaign of education concerning the Stock Exchange," wrote a Long Islander, with toil-cramped fingers, to the Library Committee. "Will you please write me and tell me if it is time that I bought ten shares of Steel common?"

Abrupt Selling of Oil Stocks.

A sharp break in the California Petroleum shares supplied a feature to yesterday's session of the market, although the decline of prices appeared to be no greater a matter of interest than the nature of the selling. The common shares were offered in fair quantity in the second hour, and the market for them proved so thin that a recession from 41½ to around 38 was quickly forced, and when offerings increased, after midday, a further fall of a point was recorded. After the low price of 37 had been marked up, selling pressure ceased as abruptly as it had been begun, and the common stock made a moderate recovery before the close. The Street decided that liquidation of long stock instead of short sales was the leading agent in producing the unexpected activity in these recent additions to the Exchange list, and it was said on the board room floor that a single holder of the common stock had let about 3,000 shares go. California common scored a new low record and, at the minimum figure of the day, stood 35½ points below the best price paid since the issue was placed on the Stock Exchange, in October of last year. Mexican Petroleum declined in sympathy with its sister stocks, ending with a loss of 1¾ points. Inquiry at the banking houses interested in these properties brought forth statements that earnings were satisfactory, and that working capital was sufficient for the needs of the year.

A Minor Railroad Problem.

Not all of the railways' troubles are beyond remedy. Visitors to the office of one of the Western lines yesterday found the officials interested in a new invention designed to meet the new situation raised by the recent State laws abolishing the use of the public drinking cups. The carriers have to provide ice water in their coaches or make enemies of the traveling public. The paraffin drinking cups in use on some lines are expensive and quickly litter up the cars. Moreover, ignorant passengers neglect to take a fresh cup. A new device for making use of the coolers now carried provides a patented faucet with a hole in the top to take a straw. When the handle is opened, water flows up the straw to the thirsty passenger's mouth. When he has finished drinking, the handle flies back and ejects the straw. With the new device in general use the tired mother with several fretful children should have no trouble in keeping them amused.

Two Bonds at 99 7-8.

It was regarded as rather an odd coincidence yesterday that the St. Paul 4½ per cent. bonds, which aroused so much discussion when they were brought out below par, sold up to 99⅞ for the first time, while the city's new bonds, also paying 4½ per cent., were selling down to 99⅞.

Belittle Talk of Friction.

Despite recent assertions of numerous savings bank trustees in this city that their institutions had found no advantage in belonging to the State Savings Bank Association, the prediction was made by influential savings bank men yesterday that everything would be serene at the annual meeting to be held to-day. A slate of officers has been prepared, and their election was said by a present officer to be only a matter of little, if any, debate in the meeting, because the make-up of the ticket was representative of the banks in all parts of the State. The same officer did not believe that any more banks would follow the lead of the Seamen's Bank for Savings in leaving the association. It was learned from other savings bank authorities that talk of friction within the organization had been exaggerated, although they did not hesitate to affirm reports of much dissatisfaction on the part of several institutions with the inactivity of the association when legislative matters were up lately in Washington and Albany.

Little Change in Steel Trade.

Incoming business to the steel companies is reported on the same scale this week as in the second half of April and the previous weeks of May. Shipments continue to run about 40 per cent. ahead of orders, but a decrease of output is believed in some quarters of the trade to be imminent because of a reported easing off in the placing of specifications.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Pittsburgh & Shawmut Railroad Company has arranged with Rhoades & Co. and the Guaranty Trust Company to extend for a year at 6 per cent. $2,500,000 of an issue of $3,250,000 equipment and first lien collateral trust notes, maturing June 1, 1913. The remainder of the issue will be paid off by the company.

The 3½ per cent. bonds of the City of Frankford, Mo., which were recently drawn for redemption will be paid at the office of Speyer & Co. on and after Sept. 1 at the rate of exchange of the day.

John T. Terry, Jr., was elected a Director of the Metropolitan Trust Company yesterday to succeed his father.

A membership on the Produce Exchange brought $415 at auction yesterday. The last previous sale was at $600.

Stockholders of the Michigan Limestone and Chemical Company elected as Directors at the annual meeting on May 19 R. Walter Leigh of Maitland, Coppell & Co., J. G. White of J. G. White & Co., and W. F. White of the White Investing Company.

Andrew H. Mars was elected a Director of the Fidelity Trust Company yesterday. Mr. Mars is Secretary of the company.

Much Better Tone in Berlin—Chinese Loan Absorbs London Traders.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, May 22.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"The firm tone in day-to-day advances in the morning was succeeded by ease in the afternoon, the large amount of money paid by applicants for the Chinese loan having been relent in the afternoon till to-day. Discount quotations were unaltered, though bills were rather less plentiful.

"The most interesting topic on the Stock Exchange was the immediate success of the Chinese loan, in which active dealings were reported. In other directions business remained on a disappointingly small scale, and the tone in consequence was dull in most markets. Owing to the imminence of the big French Government loan for over £50,000,000 ($250,000,000) all securities in which French operators were interested closed rather dull. Consols again fell slightly. The home railway market was lifeless. One of the steadiest markets was the American, where, apart from the relapse of Harriman stocks, prices were rather higher. Foreign railway stocks were again subjected to some selling pressure."

PARIS, May 21.—Prices were easy on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 85 francs 97½ centimes for the account.

BERLIN, May 21.—The tone on the Boerse was decidedly better to-day.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Trading sentiment on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was adversely affected by the decline in the new city bonds below par, prices reacting sharply in the afternoon, following early firmness. Forty-three different stocks were represented in the dealings, including transactions in a number of issues, sales of which failed to be reported elsewhere in Wall Street. In this class were American Car and Foundry, National Lead, Pittsburgh Coal, and American Beet Sugar.

Big Bond Issue to Meet Flood Loss.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 21.—To secure a loan of $630,000 from the Baltimore & Ohio, the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad to-day asked authority of the State Public Service Commission to issue $787,000 in 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds, to be sold at 80, the money to be used in repairing damage done by the March floods, estimated at $707,245.

RUBBER PROFITS FALL OFF.

Rubber Goods Company Sales as Great, but Competition Keener.

Net profits of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company in the fiscal year ended on March 31 amounted to $2,764,487, a decline of $736,510 below the record of the preceding year. After paying dividends of $2,280,601 on the preferred and common stocks, nearly all of which are owned by the United States Rubber Company, there remained a surplus for the company of $468,014, against $1,294,692 in 1912.

President E. S. Williams informed the stockholders yesterday in the annual report that while net sales were approximately the same as in the previous fiscal period, net profits were cut down chiefly because of the sharp competition between makers of automobile tires. The plants of the company, he said, had been well maintained, and in some cases enlarged, so as to take care of much more business than before when they are placed in full operation.

The bonds are non-taxable and are to run ten, twenty and fifty years. ### Wisconsin Cuts Express Rates.

MADISON, Wis., May 21.—Reductions in express rates averaging about 20 per cent. were ordered to-day by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission. Every express company operating in Wisconsin is included in the ruling. The order will go into effect in twenty days. The hundred-pound basing rates between points are much altered and the graduated scales on which the charges for the various weights are computed are changed completely.

Diversification of Investments

Much has been said and a great deal of advice offered regarding the diversification of investments.

Our theory of diversification is an equal division, viz.: one half in time-tested first mortgage bonds and one half in dividend-paying common stocks with prospects of material enhancement.

It is our opinion that of the latter class, the stocks of the former subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company offer exceptional opportunities. Investors would do well to obtain statistics of these companies.

We are in a position to supply authentic information to those interested.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat turned strongly upward in the last hour of trading and final prices showed net gains of 1⅛ to 1½c. Corn closed at best prices of the day and ¼ to ⅜c net higher. Oats moved in sympathy with other grains closing ⅝ to 1c net higher. Cotton closed steady and 5 to 7 points net higher. Cottonseed oil was rather firm and final prices were 1 to 3 points net higher.

WHEAT.

It was not until the last hour that the wheat market developed a pronounced tendency, and then it was decidedly upward, resulting in a net advance of 1⅛@1½c per bushel. Previous to this upturn the market had been very irregular, at one time selling ⅜c under the previous close in response to bearish weather and crop conditions from all parts of the domestic belt, together with easier foreign markets. The latter included declines of ¼d at Liverpool, ½@1c at Paris, ⅛@⅜c at Berlin, ¼c at Budapest, and ⅝@1¼c at Antwerp. A bearish interpretation was also placed upon the Illinois State report, while grain dealers of Oklahoma estimated that the State would raise 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels; also that the condition of the crop there, as well as in Western Kansas, was as good as on May 1. In fact, about the only unfavorable forenoon crop news came from Western Canada, where low temperatures and a lack of moisture were still complained of. The basis for the late afternoon advance, which ran prices up nearly 2c a bushel from the low point of the day, was a lot of bullish crop advices from the Southwest, notably Kansas. Among them was The Price Current report, which mentioned chinch bugs as being numerous in a very important part of the wheat belt of Kansas and Western Missouri. At the same time, this authority said that on the Government method of forecasting crops the June 1 report is likely to show a promise of 850,000,000 bushels of all wheat. Other reports said the crop was deteriorating in that section, and, altogether, with the market oversold, produced a very strong situation late in the day. There were quite a number of export rumors in circulation, but only two loads could be confirmed. Clearances were liberal again, and Broomhall estimated that North America will be called upon to furnish about 6,000,000 bushels weekly for the next nine weeks. No. 1 Northern, Duluth, in the local market was quoted at $1.01¼, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

The corn market also showed irregularity during the forenoon, with a weak spell, during which prices sold ¼ to ⅜c under the previous night. This was followed by positive strength in the late afternoon and an advance of ⅝ to ¾c, with closing prices the best of the day and ¼ to ⅜c net higher. This late rally was based upon the jump in wheat and complaints that, owing to rain in the Western belt, planting was considerably delayed. On the other hand, reports of large country offerings were heard from many sections and there was some talk of increasing receipts, although the movement for the day was again light. There was no change in the Liverpool market, and export corn at New York was quoted at 64½c nominal, free on board, afloat.

OATS.

The actions of this market in the afternoon were very similar to those of wheat, and prices advanced fully a cent per bushel from the lowest point of the forenoon on complaints that the crop had been considerably damaged east of the Mississippi. Bull support was readily obtained and prices advanced easily after more or less unsettled conditions during the forenoon, when the market was sold rather freely on good rains in the belt. Country offerings were said to be increasing. At New York standard whites were quoted at 45c; No. 2, 45½c; No. 3, 44½c; No. 4, 43½c; ordinary clipped white, 44 to 44½c; fancy clipped white, 45½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Lower hogs had a depressing effect on provisions early in the day, and they only rallied late in the session, when influenced by covering due to the jump in grain. Trade was moderately active and chiefly professional. Receipts at leading Western points were 88,000 hogs, including 24,000 at Chicago, 12,000 at Kansas City, and 7,000 at Omaha. Chicago expected 20,000 hogs on Thursday.

COTTON.

While weather and crop news continued of an apparently favorable average, the cotton market was steadier yesterday, and closed steady, at a net advance of 5@7 points. The demand again seemed to come from shorts and trade sources, the latter chiefly from abroad, while selling was scattered and seemed to come partly from the South. July was offered a little more freely. It was reported after the close that one of the Eastern mills had sold a little July here against cotton which they thought it would prove more profitable to deliver than to manufacture, but the offerings from this source were thought to be very small, and a good part of the July selling was attributed to local traders who were buying the new crop months as though undoing old straddles. Trading was generally quiet, but whenever cotton appeared around the ring in any volume there seemed to be a good deal of absorbing power on a moderate setback, as illustrated during the afternoon, when one broker sold about 10,000 bales of October and December within a range of 3 points, although the market had every appearance of being particularly narrow just before the selling started. Closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points, in response to better cables than due. There were a number of overnight selling orders around the ring which had apparently been inspired by the easier ruling of yesterday's market, but the offerings were taken within 2 or 3 points of the opening figures, and the market promptly steadied up again, with active months selling 6 to 9 points net higher during the early afternoon. Subsequent fluctuations were somewhat irregular, but slight reactions were followed by partial rallies.

Some authorities contend that parts of the Carolinas and Georgia have not yet had sufficient rain, and in certain quarters it is pointed out that continued wet weather in the Western belt may bring in complaints of excessive rainfall, but, generally speaking, there seemed to be very little criticism of immediate crop conditions. European spinners, however, are supposed to be buying more or less cotton for new crop delivery on the basis of 11c in the local market, and this is attributed to prospects for an improved trade abroad, and a consequent feeling that a large crop will be necessary next season with such a yield hardly to be regarded as a certainty, even on increased acreage, and with a fair start until the character of the growing season has been determined. Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to 1-16c higher.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There was a moderate trade in oil, with the market rather firm, closing 1 to 3 points net higher. The buying of May by shorts and of September for Western account were the chief features of the day. There was a little bull support from room traders, and crude markets were generally firm.

COFFEE.

Coffee experienced a sharp decline. Opening values were 9 to 12 points lower and final prices were only slightly above the low point at a net loss of 20 to 22 points. Total sales were 65,750 bags. Lower markets prevailed in Europe. Receipts at primary points were somewhat larger. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were slightly lower, but still above a parity.

PIG IRON CONTINUES DOWN.

Discussing current develpoments in the iron and steel trade The Iron Age says in its issue of to-day:

This situation this week is marked by a further decline in pig iron and in old material, and in the steel trade by the continuance of specifications at a rate 20 to 25 per cent. less than that of shipments, while new contracts are of comparatively small volume. In Chicago and the Central West the feeling is rather more cheerful, though without definite basis apart from the sentiment created by unusual crop promise. The possibility of even a small advance in railroad rates is not counted in the steel trade among the factors having a bearing on the early future.

Labor demands in consuming industries, particularly in the foundry trade, are more numerous. Buffalo and Los Angeles have been picked by the machinists' union for a test of strength, and in the former city a number of large plants have been closed down. Scarcity of labor is reported in a number of centres. Whatever recession there has been in general business has had little effect on consumption of iron and steel, though the melt of foundry iron is slightly less because of strikes.

Pig iron buyers are showing more interest in the market, but actual contracts are few, though sellers are looking for an early break in the deadlock. In a few cases deals have been made quietly, and presumably at low prices.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Sentiment in finished material market has improved, and there is increasing confidence that with heavy book orders, liberal specifying, and absence of cancellations there will soon be a turn for the better, but tremendous consumption of products of furnaces, foundries, and finishing mills still strongly contrasts with the very small volume of buying. Veteran observers say that this condition is more striking than at any period in their recollection. There must soon be considerable new business if the present rate of consumption continues. The ordering may, however, be for prompt delivery only until it becomes more apparent whether new tariff and other conditions will seriously interfere with business during the second half of the year.

BAD BRIDGES ANNOY UP-STATE MOTORISTS

One Down at Glens Falls Makes Detour Necessary—Jersey Coast Roads.

For the greater part of the year motorists making the run from Albany to Saratoga, Glens Falls, Lake George, and the north have found the important stretch of road from Lake George Village to Warrensburg closed, or partially closed, for new construction. During most of last Autumn it was necessary to start north from Lake George Village along the shore of the lake to a little place called Hillview, where a left turn was taken across the hills to Warrensburg. This was generally preferred to the main line, in spite of the fact that it was longer and rather hilly. According to the Touring Bureau of the American Automobile Association, the authorities are now permitting the use of the main line, however, at the tourist's risk.

The Spring floods carried away the bridge across the Hudson from Glens Falls to South Glens Falls, on the direct lint from Lake George Village to Saratoga, and also damaged the bridge on the alternate line through Luzerne and Corinth. Crossing the Hudson at this point is apt to prove a serious inconvenience during the coming Summer. The Luzerne bridge, although not carried away, has been posted as unsafe, but may be used at one's own risk. But while the other bridge between the two sections of Glens Falls is out, motorists will be forced to go round by way of Fenimore and Hudson Falls. It is said that more than a hundred machines had to make this detour on a recent Sunday. The Glens Falls Automobile Club has erected a "Bridge Down" sign, with a hand pointing the way to the detour.

Word comes from Asbury Park that work is being hurried on several good roads projects which were begun in the early Spring in anticipation of the Summer automobile travel. Kingsley Street, paved with wooden blocks, has been completed, and Oak Bluff Avenue from Ocean Avenue to Main Street, which is being laid with brick pavement, is alive with workmen these days. The project of connecting Asbury Park with Loch Arbour by an ocean driveway across the Deal Lake Flume now seems certain to be realized. Definite action is expected this week. South Main Street, which forms an inland link in the Ocean Boulevard because Ocean Grove has to be skirted, is to be repaired at once by the Neptune Township authorities. Next Autumn it is to be rebuilt. Back roads in this part of the shore are in fair condition. "Joe" Truax, motor cycle patrolman, who is known to many motorists who make the Jersey coast their stamping ground, is on duty once more. Asbury Park has been designated as one of the places for holding the examinations which Jersey automobilists must now pass in order to obtain licenses.

***

There has been a marked demand along Automobile Row for small, used town cars and second-hand taxicabs since the appearance of the taxicab ordinance—in fact, ever since the Mayor came out for public cab stands. The companies which deal in cars of this character are having a hard time to meet the demand. There was a waiting list of sixteen for small, used town cars yesterday at one of the agencies for imported cars.

***

At the latest meeting of the Contest Board of the A. A. A., Theron S. Duby, of St. Louis, Mo., was reinstated as a racing driver, as were Earnest J. Delaney of Jackson, Mich., and R. H. Pennebaker of Memphis, Tenn. The ineligibility of C. V. Dunivan, promotor of the meet for participation in which Pennebaker was suspended, was not removed. The applications of E. V. Rickenbacher of Des Moines, and of Charles Shambaugh of Lafayette, Ind., for reinstatement were also denied. The board allowed the claim of Earl Cooper for the half-mile circular dirt track record for 200 miles, which he made at Fresno, Cal., on Feb. 10 driving a Stutz that distance in 3:27 23 4-5. The application of S. W. Gumpretz for sanction for auto races at the Brighton Beach track May 30 and 31 was denied. The following is a revised list of proposed contests for 1913, with approximate dates:

GOV. HUNT TAKES NEW AUTO

Gives Old One for Prison Use, Causing Outcry in Arizona.

Special to The New York Times.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 21.—Honoring the requisition of Warden Sims of the State Penitentiary at Florence for an automobile to carry prisoners and supplies between the prison and the town, Gov. Hunt caused an outcry extending over Arizona when he sent to the prison an old car used for two years by Capitol officials and took the new machine for his own use.

For three months the new machine was used in Phoenix, carrying the Governor to various parts of Arizona, and being utilized by the Tax Commission for long trips into the mountains. Repeated demands for payment for the car were refused by the Auditor. Finally the Auditor was brought into court, but won on the ground that the machine in question never had been delivered to the prison. Then suit was brought against the State to recover the amount. This action was lost on the same ground.

Finally the agents obtained possession of the car and ran it overland to the prison. They obtained a receipt for the car, and a warrant was quickly forthcoming from the Auditor. An order issued by the Governor has kept the machine out of commission ever since. The old machine is still in use at the prison, the new one being in a garage in Florence.

The Governor announces that he will have the new machine back in Phoenix now that payment has been made. The Auditor holds that the machine is the property of the prison, and is for use exclusively at that institution, and declares that the Governor has no right to bring it here. The Governor says the old machine is antiquated and not in keeping with the dignity of the Executive, and he refuses to be seen riding in it.

When inaugurated Gov. Hunt refused to ride in an automobile, saying he preferred to walk the two miles to the Capitol, accompanied by the Supreme Court Justices and other officials, in true Jeffersonian simplicity.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

10,965. GUN STOCKS.—A business organization in a European country has requested an American Consular officer to supply it with names of American manufacturers of gun stocks, as one of its members desires to import rough stocks from the United States.

10,966. ASBESTOS.—Replying to inquiries from the United States, an American Consular officer in a European country writes that good asbestos is in great demand, and importations from the United States are considerable, aggregating 1,723 tons out of a total of 14,790 tons imported in 1912. The trade requires both fibrous and amphibolic varieties, the latter ground and shipped in bags. The ground variety is used largely in the manufacture of paper. Importers consulted state that offers, accompanied by samples, will receive prompt and serious consideration.

10,967. ELECTRICAL APPARATUS AND ACCESSORIES.—An American Consular officer in the Near East reports that a merchant in his district, who already represents several lines of American goods, desires to get in touch with manufacturers of all sorts of electrical apparatus and accessories, electrically driven household machines, electric automobiles, in view of the approaching availability of a supply of electrical current in a certain city.

10,968. PHILIPPINE AGENCY FOR AMERICAN GOODS.—The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is in receipt of a communication from a business man in the Philippines stating that he desires to establish relations with American firms seeking a market for their goods in that region. He desires to act as selling agent for the following articles: Flour, lard, salmon, zinc roof and cloth, also to act as purchasing agent for hemp, sugar, and tobacco.

10,969. TIN PLATE.—A business firm in India informs an American Consul that it desires terms and prices, c. i. f. city of destination, on tin plate, packed in cases of 112 sheets per case, size 14 by 20 inches, 70 pounds. This firm imports about 2,000 cases per annum.

10,970. SOLDERLESS CANS AND OTHER MATERIAL.—An American Consular officer reports that there is a growing demand in his district for cans for use in preserving fish and game, and the possibilities for profitable canning plants in the surrounding territory are steadily growing. Solderless cans are unknown in this region, and there should be a good market for this class of goods, as well as other canning supplies.

10,971. COTTON OIL, WHEAT, BARREL STAVES, LEAF TOBACCO, &c.—One of the commercial agents of the Department of Commerce writes that a firm of importers in France desires to correspond with American exporters of cotton oil. This firm has handled as much as 25,000 barrels in a single year, when the prices were right. The house is interested principally in Winter oils, but also handles all the other grades of refined oils. A small business is done with the North African colonies. Correspondence is also desired with manufacturers of Winter wheat for macaroni, beans, and peas, essence of peppermint, and other similar essences, barrel staves, and leaf tobacco.

10,972. BONE GREASE.—A business firm in Italy informs an American Consular officer that it desires to be placed in communication with American manufacturers of bone grease with the object of representing such firm as agent in that market. Prices, terms, conditions, and samples are desired.

10,981. RUBBER FACTORIES.—The American Consulate General at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, reports that bids for the installation of four large rubber factories will be received at the Department of Public Works, Rio de Janeiro, until June 23. A copy of the conditions under which tenders are to be made, with subsidies and other concessions to builders, may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

10,982. PIANO-MAKING MACHINERY & EQUIPMENT.—The American Consul at Moncton, N. B., reports that a piano manufacturing company is about to erect a factory for the manufacture of these instruments at an estimated cost of $50,000. The contract for the machinery and fixtures to be installed has not yet been awarded, and catalogues, quotations, and full particulars are desired from American manufacturers of everything pertaining to this work. Communications should be addressed to Amherst Pianos, (Ltd.) Amherst, N. S., Canada.

10,983. BREAKWATER AND SEA WALL.—The Department of Public Works, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, will receive bids until June 25 for the construction of a sea wall about 4,935 feet long and other important works in connection with the same. The American Consulate General at Rio de Janeiro has forwarded extracts of specifications covering these works, the estimated cost of which is $6,700,000.

10,984. ELECTRIC-MOTOR AMBULANCES.—An American Consul reports that the medical officer of a local municipality has left for London on leave of absence, and he has been instructed by the Council to examine the different makes of electric-motor ambulances with a view to the purchase of two such vehicles for local use. One of the ambulances is intended for ordinary use and the other is for handling infectious disease cases. American dealers in electric vehicles who may be interested should send catalogues, price lists, &c., to the London address of this officer, or have their representatives call on him. All correspondence regarding the ambulances should be in English.

10,985. RESIN.—A business firm in a Mediterranean country informs an American Consular officer that it desires to be placed in communication with American exporters of resin with the object of importing the article and representing shippers in that market. Prices, terms, discounts, &c., are desired. Correspondence may be in Italian, French, and English. References are given.

10,986. HICKORY HOOPS (Truss.)—A report from an American Consul states that a prominent local firm of merchants and agents desires to be put in communication with American manufacturers of hickory overpasser or trussing hoops. The firm states that a considerable business can be done in these hoops if satisfactory arrangements can be made. Prices are preferred cost, insurance, and freight.

10,987. ELECTRIC-MOTOR TRUCKS.—A Foreign municipal engineer is now testing an American electric-motor truck imported by a local firm in handling city refuse. An American Consul reports that the test will last about a month, and if it proves successful the engineer will recommend the purchase of half a dozen trucks of different makes to compare the efficiency of each, after which it is possible that about twenty-five of the make decided upon as the best for the local needs will be purchased. American manufacturers of electric-motor trucks who care to compete in supplying these trucks should send descriptive catalogues to the engineer at the earliest opportunity, and should quote him their lowest possible proces. Correspondence should be in English.

10,988. PORTABLE ELEVATORS AND CONVEYORS.—An American Consular officer in Brazil has forwarded several pages from a trade journal containing an article dealing with the question of using portable elevators and conveyors. A local business firm has expressed a desire to secure further information as to the manner in which these appliances may be used in piling bags of coffee in its warehouses. This company is said to be rated as one of the largest public storage warehouse concerns in the district and states that in case the system can be economically applied there will be an immediate demand for this machinery. Prices should be quoted in United States currency, free on board, New York.

The Sales Billed for the year were in excess of any previous year in the history of the Company. The ratio of the manufacturing profit to sales billed increased over last year, but unusually keen competition in all your Company's activities prevailed and still continues. (Here follows in printed report a condensed statement of gross earnings and net income for the past four years.)

The value of unfilled orders as of March 31, 1912, was $8,137,961; as of March 31, 1913, the value of unfilled orders was $12,061,473. The average number of employees during the year was 20,542, as compared with an average of 16,000 for the previous year.

The surplus as of March 31, 1912, was $6,648,964.29. This balance was increased by the Net Income for the year and various items detailed in the statement of Profit and Loss, to a Gross Surplus of $9,932,203.42. Against this Surplus have been charged dividends declared during the year, on the preferred stock at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum ($279,909), and three dividends of 1 per cent. each, aggregating $1,053,665, on the common stock; also miscellaneous charges totaling $283,187.12. These charges reduced the Surplus to $8,315,441.70, against which depreciations of investments aggregating $966,919.56 were written off, leaving the Surplus as of March 31, 1913, shown in the balance sheet, $7,348,522.14.

So far as your foreign companies are concerned, while further depreciation is possible in some of them, it will probably be more than offset by the appreciation of others; so that, after the final adjustment resulting from liquidation of the Russian Company, to which further reference is made hereinafter, it is believed that, under existing conditions, their aggregate book value will be a fair actual value.

There are items of home investments now in process of adjustments, upon which there may be expected further depreciation charges, but the surplus and reserve accounts of your Company are now greatly in excess of any depreciation in its tangible assets.

Assets.

PROPERTY AND PLANT—$20,467,224.74.

The increase in this item of $1,272,036.68 over the figures as of March 31, 1912, after deducting liberal depreciation charges, represents necessary purchases of additional manufacturing equipment chiefly at the East Pittsburgh and Newark Works, and the erection of additional buildings at East Pittsburgh on real estate already owned. No purchases of real estate were made during the year.

A further extension was obtained of the lease of the property on which your Company operates an iron foundry at Pittsburgh, Pa. It is possible that the erection of foundry and pattern buildings at Trafford City on real estate already owned will be started during the current year.

SINKING FUND—$160.20.

This item represents the uninvested balance of sinking fund payments made to the Trustee on account of the Company's issue of convertible sinking fund 5 per cent. gold bonds. As a result of the sinking fund payment made during the year, there were retired and cancelled a total of $628,000 face value of convertible bonds.

INVESTMENTS—$23,882,860.54.

A statement of the investments of your Company comparative between March 31, 1913, and the close of the previous fiscal year appears in full in the printed report.

Securities of W. E. & M. Co.

The increase in securities of your Company held in the Treasury is chiefly due to the receipt from the Trustee of $685,000 face value convertible sinking fund gold bonds, in accordance with the provisions of the bond indenture, and to the purchase of $150,000 face value of debenture certificates due July 1, 1913. The bonds are held in the Treasury for sale or use for sinking fund purposes, and the debenture certificates will be delivered to the Trustee for cancellation on July 1, 1913, on which date the entire outstanding balance of the issue of debenture certificates will mature.

Foreign Companies.

During the year the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Limited, made an issue of additional capital stock to which your Company subscribed for its pro rata amount, $243,400, at par, all of which has been paid for excepting $60,850 due under the terms of subscription on May 1, 1913. The Canadian Westinghouse Company, Limited, is paying cash dividends at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum in addition to adding a considerable sum each year to its surplus.

The increase in the capital stock of the Westinghouse Metallifaden-Gluhlampenfabrik Gesellschaft, m. b. H., represents a stock dividend received during the past year and the item of capital stock of the Compagnie des Lampes a Filament Metallique represents an exchange of the shares of the Westinghouse Metal Filament Lamp Company, Ltd., of London (a patent holding company) for the shares of the former which is a Lamp Manufacturing Company operating factories near Paris, France, and in Aarau, Switzerland.

You will note that the capital stock of the Westinghouse Electric Company, Limited, of London, has been depreciated to the nominal value of $1.00. This is a patent holding company, all of the capital stock of which is owned by your Company. It also acts as agent and trustee for your Company. During the year its expenses have been reduced to normal expenses for office rent and patent fees.

In general, the affairs of the other foreign companies, with the exception of the Russian Company, show further improvement during the year 1912. The British and French companies particularly give promise of continued improvement. During 1912 the Italian Company received large orders from the Italian Government for electric locomotives and other equipment, on which deliveries will shortly begin. The locomotives are duplicates of those ordered on previous contracts, which have proven successful in operation.

After an exhaustive investigation made upon the ground by your Chairman and certain other officers of the Company last Autumn, your Directors determined upon the liquidation of the Russian Company, and have proceeded as rapidly as possible in carrying out the plan. The works, consisting of real estate, buildings, equipment and inventories, have been sold and the collection of its accounts and payment of its debts are proceeding as rapidly as possible. It is anticipated that when its affairs are finally closed up, there will be a further depreciation of approximately $1,500,000, which will mean that your Company will receive practically the amount of its current claims against the Russian Company, and that its investment in securities of that company will be entirely charged off.

Other Manufacturing Companies.

The increase of holdings in other manufacturing companies is wholly due to the conversion of notes of the Westinghouse Machine Company taken under the plan for the discharge of the Receivers of that Company in 1908, into 6 per cent. bonds of that Company. The exchange for bonds was in accordance with a plan in which over 95 per cent. of the holders of notes of the Westinghouse Machine Company of the same issue as those held by your Company participated.

Traction and Power Companies.

During the year your Company acquired certain bonds and stock of the Lackawanna & Wyoming Valley Rapid Transit Company, in order to permit of the re-organization of that company which is now under way on a basis which your Directors feel will make the new securities an attractive investment.

Miscellaneous Companies.

The Electric Properties Company, which owns the entire capital stock of Westinghouse, Church, Kerr & Company, was organized originally as an ally of the Westinghouse interests, but your Company was not a stockholder therein, the principal stockholder being the Westinghouse Machine Company. Your Company, together with Messrs. Stone & Webster of Boston, The Equitable Trust Company of New York, and Messrs. Wm. Morris Imbrie & Company of New York, each taking a quarter interest, acquired the Westinghouse Machine Company's holdings, which was the controlling interest. Your Directors believe this will prove of advantage to your Company.

CURRENT ASSETS—$18,126,991.53.

The amount of reserve for notes and accounts receivable as of March 31, 1913, is believed to be sufficient to provide for any probable shrinkage in the book value thereof, with the possible exception of a note of the Security Investment Company, to which reference was made in your Directors' report for the year ended March 31, 1911.

Advances to Foreign Companies.

Russian Company $454,155.

As noted elsewhere, this Company is now in process of liquidation, and your Company should eventually recover all advances made since the receivership.

French and Italian Companies $275,032.

This advance was made for the purpose of assisting the Italian Company in financing a recent order for locomotives received from the Italian Government, to which reference is made elsewhere.

Austrian Company $225,508.

This advance was necessary to enable the Austrian Company to produce and market drawn wire Tungsten lamps, which type of incandescent lamp is rapidly replacing the old type of lamp throughout Europe.

French Lamp Company $50,000.

While the stock interest of your Company in the French Lamp Company is small, being less than $40,000, its affairs are so complicated with your other interests in Europe, that this advance was necessary, also on account of the introduction of the drawn wire type of lamp. Definite plans for dealing with this company have been formulated.

WORKING AND TRADING ASSETS—$18,510,222.56.

A large increase in these assets over the value as of March 31, 1912, was to be expected, in view of the increase in shipments billed during the year as compared with the previous year, and the increase of approximately $4,000,000 in the value of unfilled orders on hand as of March 31, 1913, as compared with the close of the previous year. The usual annual inventories of all raw materials, finished stocks, and work in progress were taken and valued at purchase prices or manufacturing cost, or less. A fixed basis has been established for the depreciation of inactive stocks.

OTHER ASSETS—$7,011,528.36.

The total of this item again shows a decrease as compared with the previous year. The amount of the expenditures for patents capitalized during the year was $26,381.70, all additional expenditures for patents and licenses and the cost of all development and experimental work having been charged to operating expenses.

Liabilities.

The changes in the funded debt of the Company as of March 31, 1913, as compared with March 31, 1912, have been explained in the comments pertaining to sinking fund and investments. The outstanding balance of debenture certificates matures July 1, 1913, and is expected to be provided for by the sale of convertible sinking fund bonds of an equal total face value that under the terms of the bond indenture were reserved to retire them.

The Four Year Notes issued under the plan for the discharge of the Receivers of your Company, matured January 1, 1913, and were paid.

During December, 1912, and March, 1913, your Company borrowed with Treasury securities as collateral, $3,500,000 on notes maturing in June and September, 1913. On August 1, 1913, the issue of $4,000,000 Three Year Collateral Notes made August 1, 1910, will mature. Your Directors have under consideration plans to provide for these maturities which it is expected will effect a considerable reduction of the total.

The other items appearing in the balance sheet under Liabilities do not seem to call for special comment.

The certificate of Messrs. Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants, by whom the books and accounts of your Company and of the subsidiary companies have been audited, appears in full in the printed report.

The acknowledgment of the Board is hereby made to the officers and employees of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and its several subsidiary companies for their devotion to the Company's interests and efficient services rendered during the year.

By Order of the Board of Directors.

GUY E. TRIPP, Chairman.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Won't Charge for Alterations.

Most of the larger local retail houses dealing in men's clothing are not in accord with the attempted movement to inaugurate charges to customers for alterations. It was said yesterday that reputable houses would probably never establish the custom. At special advertised sales, however, many houses charge for alterations, other than shortening sleeves and trousers, because it is considered only fair that customers should pay for more extensive alterations, considering the usual low costs of clothes offered, and that the houses' profits, at such sales, are considerably cut.

Henry F. Samstag on Tariff.

According to Henry F. Samstag of Samstag & Hilder Brothers, the proposed tariff revision will not affect local wholesalers of fancy goods and notions. Few changes will be made. "There is hesitancy on the part of our customers, however," said Mr. Samstag, "but we must have merchandise and so must the retailers. There are certain articles that will be affected, such as cutlery and those made of celluloid, wool and cotton, but we are going on as though nothing were going to happen. If the new rates could become operative in July and not be allowed to drag along until August or September, to spoil our season, our customers' hesitancy would cease, and the trade would be better satisfied."

Stopping Fake Shortage Claims.

To prevent losses through illegitimate claims of shortage of goods bought in the piece by retailers and cutters-up, a local silk house has adopted a plan of stamping "Yardage guaranteed" on each end of all pieces that have been cut for salesmen's samples or other reasons. No claims for shortage are allowed when a piece is returned with the stamp missing from either end. A somewhat similar method of guarding against the same evil is used by a downtown woolen goods wholesaler. In this instance, however, an instrument on the plan of a conductor's punch is used to cut the initial of the house about an inch high in each end of the goods.

Australian Meat Not Cutting Prices.

It was said yesterday at the local offices of Swift & Co., the Cudahy Packing Company and Sulzberger Sons & Co. that a belief that the shipment of frozen Australian beef and mutton recently imported into San Francisco would cause lower prices on those foodstuffs has not yet been borne out here. Reasons given for the inability of Australian exporters to compete here are that the meat would probably be affected by the long sea voyage and the overland journey, and that sufficient quantities probably could not be brought over.

At the offices of Charles Weisbecker, a retailer, it was said, however, that it might be possible to import sufficient quantities to build up a fair business, but that the matter had not yet been thoroughly tried out. The meat so far imported here from Australia, via London, it was said, had been disposed of to restaurants and hotels and had not been offered in the retail markets.

Cotton Goods Exports Fall Off.

There has been a noticeable decrease in the business done in the export end of the local cotton goods trade since the Underwood bill has been under discussion. Pending definite action, foreign buyers are holding off, and prices are softening here. The opinion was expressed yesterday, however, that the law of supply and demand would affect the future of this trade more than anything that was done at Washington. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from this port last week amounted to 4,611 packages, and were valued at $430,777.

Tariff Not Hurting Dress Goods.

Despite the proposed changes in Schedule K, one of the principal wholesalers of dress goods in this market yesterday reported a large business from his men on the road with Fall lines. So heavy was the demand, he said, that the orders booked to date showed a gain of $35,000 to $40,000 over those taken up to this time last year. In the primary end of the market the individual manufacturers are not making up stock goods for Fall, and a shortage of them is looked for about Sept. 1. The "corporation" mills are busy, however, one of them not being able to offer deliveries on certain lines of serges before Sept. 15.

Allen, who did business as the Metallurgique Motor Company, at 1,876 Broadway, bond $1,000, on the application of the United States Tire Company, a creditor. I., have filed a report in the United States District Court, showing the result of operation from Feb. 13 to April 23. They made a profit from operations of $63,427, and their current assets on April 23 were $976,953, and current liabilities $913,526. The combined balance sheet of the corporation and of the receivers on April 23 showed current liabilities of $4,453,182 and general mortgage liabilities, with accrued interest, $3,095,000. The current assets were $1,123,943 in equipment materials, contracts and cash, and the capital assets were $6,453,165 in land, buildings, and equipment.

J. L. Kesner Company.—Judge Mayer of the United States District Court yesterday authorized Leo A. Price and Abraham S. Gilbert, receivers of the J. L. Kesner Company, dry goods department store at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-second Street, to sell the stock of merchandise and fixtures at public auction under the direction of Charles Shongood, U. S. Auctioneer. No date for the sale was fixed.

MARY A. WHITE.—Sarah Carr, a servant in the employ of Mary A. White, who conducted a boarding house at 130 West Eighty-fifth Street, has filed a petition against Mrs. White, alleging that she is a creditor for $6,360. ## OPPOSES FREE SUGAR.

Porto Rico Association Tells Why Duty Shouldn't Be Removed.

In an endeavor to prevent the reduction or removal of the duty on sugar, the Porto Rico Association, representing the business men of Porto Rico, is sending this bulletin to American business houses:

Are you going to "sit tight" while Congress wipes out one of your best customers?

Under free trade with the United States, the commerce of Porto Rico has grown since 1901, from $17,500,000 to $92,600,000. Her purchases of American goods, which have increased from $1,500,000 in 1898 to $37,500,000, are rapidly climbing toward the $50,000,000 mark.

The chief factor in the building up of this market has been the development of the sugar industry, which, fostered by a modest tariff protection, has grown from $2,500,000 in 1898 to $31,500,000, and contributes directly more than 65 per cent. to the purchases made in the United States, and, indirectly but surely, affects most of the remaining 35 per cent.

If the sugar tariff is reduced or removed it will immediately impair the purchasing power of one-half of the people who now buy in the United States markets, and in time will detrimentally affect the other half.

Porto Rico occupies eleventh place in the list of the world markets of the United States, buying more than Russia, Spain, Australia, Africa, Turkey, China, the East Indies, and all the countries of South and Central America, excepting the Argentine Republic. Her purchases on the mainland are greater than those of any other non-continuous territory, exceeding those of the Philippine Islands by $15,000,000, Alaska by $19,000,000, and Hawaii by $14,000,000. Her per capita purchases are ten times greater than those of the twenty republics of Latin America.

If the tariff is seriously reduced or removed, half of a $50,000,000 market will be put in jeopardy. In compensation the sugar consumer may theoretically save $1.25 a year or one-half a cent a day. A thrifty person in a month could lay by enough to purchase a 15-cent cigar.

But don't you think a 15-cent cigar is a stiff price to pay for a trade loss of $25,000,000 or more?

Think it over. Then urge your Senator to vote against any change of rate in the sugar tariff.

The association has offices at 30 San Francisco Street, San Juan, Porto Rico, and 569 Fifth Avenue, this city.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Nightgowns of colored batiste are now being shown here, and are said to be taking well. They are offered in pink and white, blue and white, and other soft color combinations.

Fichu effects in women's neckwear are coming in for a good season. They are made especially desirable by the deep V-shaped yokes of the newest Summer waists.

Early sales of men's silk clothing presage a record demand for the coming Summer. These suits are said to tailor well and to hold their shape as well as the average cloth. Hairline effects, principally in black and white, are the most popular.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

Portugal affords a small field for the importation and sale of American fireworks. The annual expenditure for these goods is estimated at $140,000 to $150,000. The importation of fireworks ready for use is $20,000 worth. These are made in Germany, England, and China.

The increase in imports into Japan from the United States for 1912 was unprecedented, being upward of $22,000,000, or 50 per cent. over the previous year, making the total more than $63,250,000. At the same time Japan increased its sales to the United States by approximately $13,000,000.

BUSINESS NOTES.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Three Large Deals on Upper West Side—Thirty-eighth Street Protection Purchase—Long Island City Sale —Builder Buys Big Staten Island Plot.

Washington Heights and the Fort Washington section of the upper west side furnished three good deals yesterday which indicate the steady demand for apartment house property in that part of the city. Two of the sales were of large vacant plots, which evidently will be improved in the near future, and the other involved the two new six-story apartments, known as the Rio Grande and the Rio Vista, at 17 to 21 Fort Washington Avenue, occupying a frontage of 50 feet on the west side, in the middle of the block, between Fort Washington Avenue where it joins Broadway and 160th Street. The houses were sold by the Saranac Construction Company, Max Liebeskind, President, to Solomon L. Pakas, who gave in part payment New Jersey property. The houses were completed last November. They are well rented and command an extensive view over the Hudson River to the west. The selling price was about $300,000.

Of the two vacant plots sold, and which are suitable for immediate improvement, the larger is the northwest corner of Broadway and 145th Street, 100 by 150, which has been sold by the Realty Holding Company, N. J. Hess, President. The plot was acquired by the sellers from W. Lanman Bull last January. The buyer is L. Pierro, a client of E. Louis Jacobs. The corner has the advantage of being on two wide thoroughfares and is at the entrance to the Broadway Subway. It has been held at $300,000.

In the upper Fort Washington district the vacant plot on the southeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 188th Street was sold by Jacob Herb to a Mr. McCready, who gave in part payment the five-story flat in the Bronx at 1,181 Tinton Avenue, on a plot 50 by 135, between Home and 168th Streets.

Buys Thirty-eighth Street Lot to Protect Light.

The J. J. Steindler Company, owner of the Murray Hill Building, at 8 to 14 West Thirty-eighth Street, has purchased the adjoining property, 16, from Robert Endicott for the purpose of protecting the west light and air of its structure.

The property purchased consists of an old five-story building, on a lot 25.9 by 89 feet. A modern six-story loft will be erected on the site.

Operators Buy Harlem Flat.

Ennis & Sinnott, operators, have purchased from William C. B. Kemp, as trustee, 124 West 112th Street, a five-story flat house, on a lot 30 by 100 feet 11 inches. The property is located between St. Nicholas and Seventh Avenues. A. B. Amy & Co. were the brokers.

Recent Buyer.

J. G. Doughtry is the buyer of the dwelling at 864 West End Avenue, sold last week by Susanna M. Harahan.

Bronx Borough.

The D. L. H. Jackson Company has bought for cash from the estate of James D. Butman 854 Elsmere Place, between Southern Boulevard and Marmion Avenue, a five-story new law tenement on plot 40 by 100. Richard H. B. Wolf was the broker in the transaction.

An investor has purchased from the Hunts Point Realty Company a plot fronting 155 feet on each side of Seneca Avenue and extending from the Bronx River to Edgewater Road, with a water frontage of 225 feet.

Brooklyn.

D. S. Regan sold for Philip Bierschenk 856 Nostrand Avenue, a five-story apartment house, on plot 100 by 100 feet, between President Street and Eastern Parkway.

Tutino & Cerny have sold for Edward Rebenklau to a client for investment the three-story brick store on plot 20 by 100, at 4,810 Fifth Avenue.

Builder Buys in Long Island City.

Another investment deal in Long Island City that promises the immediate improvement of vacant property was reported yesterday by the Cross & Brown Company, which sold for Anna Pfeifer a plot 45 by 85 feet on the southwest corner of Freeman Avenue and Prospect Street.

The buyer, Andrew Newell of Manhattan, recently purchased the adjoining plot on the south side of Freeman Avenue, also 45 by 85 feet. Ground will be broken at once and the entire plot improved with new law tenements, for which there is a growing demand in this particular section.

Long Island.

Arthur Aldrich has purchased a tract of eighty-one acres at Riverhead from Percy L. Honsel and William R. Fry. The land will be cleared and bungalows erected on acre plots.

The McKnight Realty Company has sold at Cedarhurst to M. Cardoni of Manhattan a plot having a frontage of 40 feet on Linden Street and a depth of 100 feet; to E. Downing of Manhattan a plot of 40 feet frontage and a depth of 100 feet on Linden Street; to E. G. Dupre of Manhattan a plot having a frontage of 80 feet and a depth of 100 feet on Oakland Avenue; to Mary Roess of Manhattan a plot having a frontage of 40 feet on Locust Street; to G. Gross of Manhattan a plot having a frontage of 40 feet and a depth of 100 feet on Linden Street.

Staten Island.

The estate of Sarah H. Cisco has sold through Cornelius G. Kolff to Frederick Rohde, the remaining Richmond Turnpike frontage of the Cisco estate on Grymes Hill, consisting of 465 feet by 100 feet deep, fronting on Silver Lake Park, near Eddy Street. Mr. Rohde contemplates the improvement of the property by the erection of fine private residences.

Leases.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., in conjunction with Edgar A. Manning, have leased for a term of years for the estate of Dr. George M. Tuttle, his late residence at 38 West Fifty-second Street, a four-story modern house, with a large extension, on a lot 22 by 100 feet, to the Lida A. Seely Employment Agency.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has leased for Miss Elizabeth S. Lufburrow, the six-story building, 209-211-213 West Forty-eighth Street, on a plot 49.6 by 93 feet, 106 feet west of Broadway, for a long period, to Strauss & Co., Inc.

George R. Read & Co. have leased for F. C. Bowne the store at 33 Beekman Street to the Enterprise Desk Company.

The Herbert H. Herrman Company have leased the building at 532 Washington Street for William Cruikshank Sons to the Eureka Talc Company; the store at 2 Burling Slip for Cullman Brothers to William S. Gray & Co.; the building at 128 Clarkson Street for the Diamond Fabric Company to Charles L. Hirsch & Co.; the building at 102 North Moore Street for Lansing Company to Meyer & Degerdon.

Extra Mortgage on Fitzgerald Building.

An additional mortgage of $250,000 has been placed on the Fitzgerald building plot on the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street by the owning company, the Broadway Corporation. It has been obtained from the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company at 5 per cent. for a period of sixteen years. The previous mortgage is $500,000.

New Women's Club House.

Plans have been filed for remodeling the four-story dwelling and garage, at 855 and 857 Lexington Avenue, on the northeast corner of Fortieth Street, into a club house for the Women's Cosmopolitan Club, now at 142 East Thirty-third Street. The Lexington Avenue property is owned by Mary L. Tonetti, and the club has taken a lease for several years. A two-story rear extension will be constructed and interior changes made to the garage at an estimated cost of $25,000. William S. Miller is the architect.

$410,000 for Queens Buildings.

Plans were approved last week for ninety-four new buildings, to be erected in the Borough of Queens, to cost $410,612.

Henry Schlachter is to build sixteen two-story frame dwellings in Glendale to cost $40,000. Six will be located on the west side of Alpha Place, 18 feet north of Cooper Avenue, and ten on the west side of the same street, 106 feet south of Myrtle Avenue.

Robert Adolph is to build a four-story brick tenement to cost $26,000, on the east side of Herriman Avenue, 68 feet north of Shelton Avenue, Jamaica. This is among the first of that class of apartment houses to invade that high-class residence section.

Frederick Reineking is to build eight two-story frame dwellings to cost $2,500 each, a total of $20,000, on the south side of Fulton Street, Woodhaven, 116 feet south of Woodhaven Avenue.

Flushing Construction Company is to build a four-story brick tenement, on the east side of Central Avenue, 100 feet north of Sanford Avenue, Flushing, to cost $30,000.

Three Months' Construction.

In New Rochelle, according to Building Inspector William H. Switzer, there were issued permits calling for $150,000 worth of construction during the first three months of this year.

COAL MINE INQUIRY SURE.

Senate Committee to Report To-day Kern's Resolution Authorizing One.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Federal investigation of the strike of coal miners in the Paint Creek region in West Virginia was practically assured to-day when the Senate Education and Labor Committee agreed to report to-morrow, with amendments, Senator Kern's resolution authorizing an inquiry. The resolution, redrafted by a sub-committee with the understanding that it be laid before the Senate with the indorsement of the other members, provides for a "thorough and complete" inquiry into conditions in the Paint Creek region preceding, during, and after the strike.

The committee would be authorized to investigate questions of alleged peonage, interference with the mails, violations of the immigration laws, the laws for the trial of accused persons, and the Sherman act by the coal operators, and the causes that led up to the conditions existing in Paint Creek.

NEW RIVER MINERS GO OUT.

A Thousand Men, Some with Their Families, Move Into Tents.

CHARLESTON, West Va., May 21.—The miners employed in the New River coal field of West Virginia went on a strike to-day. One thousand miners, many with their families, have quit their homes and are living in tents furnished by the United Mine Workers of America.

VETERAN STABBED TO DEATH BY SON

Harry Mann, Crazed by Drink, Turns on Old Man Who Was Drummer at Gettysburg.

WOUNDS BROTHER ALSO

Plunges Knife Into Father's Abdomen When Told to "Quit Drinking and Be a Decent Man."

John Mann, a veteran of the Civil War and drummer boy at the Battle of Gettysburg was stabbed to death by his son, Harry, who also stabbed his youngest brother and fought off his mother when they sought to prevent the tragedy, and then tried to escape as his father fell dead beside his fainting wife in their home last night at 416 West Twenty-ninth Street. Mrs. Mann is the sister of ex-Lieut. of Police William Ennis, and she and her husband celebrated recently the fortieth anniversary of their marriage. They have five sons. Harry had developed into a quarrelsome member of the family because of his drinking.

At 7:30 last evening the father, mother, and their son, Winfield, were at the supper table in their four-room flat on the ground floor when Harry, who is a longshoreman, staggered into the room and began to curse his father.

"This must stop: you are getting to be a habitual drunkard," shouted his father, rising from the table and trying to push him out into the hallway. "Be a decent man for your mother's sake," advised the veteran. Harry became more angry as his father tried to reason with him, and suddenly sprang upon his father, who, despite his seventy years, defended himself as they fought and struggled through the rooms toward the front, and back again to the kitchen. Mrs. Mann tried to drag Harry away, but was hurled across the kitchen against the wall. The next instant the husband cried:

"Mary, I'm stabbed!"

The veteran tried to reach a chair, but collapsed and fell to the floor, and expired in five minutes from internal hemorrhage from a deep wound in the abdomen. Harry had plunged his knife, used for cutting rope on the docks, up to the hilt of its three-inch blade into his father's body.

Winfield, who had tried to protect his father by hurling crockery from the table at his brother, who he said appeared to be insane, rushed upon Harry, and the latter lunged with the knife at his body. Twice he was stabbed in the left arm. Seizing a heavy platter on the table, Winfield beat his brother over the head with it until the latter turned and tried to escape. Policeman Blanch of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, who had been called by a neighbor, met him at the door, knocked him down and took possession of the knife.

"Harry went out this morning to go to work," said his mother, "and when I saw him wild-eyed and in such a terrible rage, I tried to keep my husband from going near him, fearing there would be trouble, for he had been ordered from the house several times before. It was drink that did it.

Harry Mann was locked up in the West Thirty-seventh Street Station charged with homicide. He was in a bad way from the beating his brother gave him in trying to save his father and protect his own life, and a physician had to be sent for to treat him. When the police took him from his home a crowd of 200 neighbors, all of whom knew and liked his father, surrounded the patrol wagon and some shouted: "Lynch him."

Until recently the old veteran had been employed as machinist in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. For a few months when he became unable to do his usual work, he was an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Bath, N. Y. His sons, however, wanted him with them, and they made him return home. One of these sons is John E. Mann, the eldest, a member of the revenue guard in the Custom House. The others are James and Russell. John Mann, who enlisted as a drummer boy in the old Fifty-ninth New York Regiment, served all through tht civil war.

She was the daughter of John Rogers, a merchant of New York, in whose memory was erected the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street. For sixty-five years Mrs. Chisolm lived in a house at College Point on a site originally purchased by her uncle, Dr. William A. Muhlenberg, for St. Paul's College. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Mary F. Schieffelin, who lives in England, and two sons, George E. Chisolm of Morristown, N. J., and B. Ogden Chisolm of New York City.

HONOR FOR SOCIAL WORKERS

Medals Presented to Lillian D. Wald and Mabel T. Bordman.

The American Institute of Social Sciences, which was organized especially to give recognition to conspicuous workers for social betterment, held a meeting at 17 West Forty-third Street last night in honor of Lillian D. Wald of the Henry Street Settlement and Mabel T. Bordman, President of the National Red Cross.

Miss Bordman and Miss Wald were both awarded medals of the society after speeches in praise of their work had been made by President John H. Finley of the City College, Robert W. de Forest, and Mrs. Frederick Nathan.

"With these two medals our society has now recognized for their achievements for the common good seven men and three women," said President Finley. "The last medal went to President Taft for his service in promoting the cause of peace and arbitration. We have one medal holder in Spain, two in England, two in New Haven, one in Chicago, one in Washington, one in Henry Street, and two in all the rest of the United States. So I feel that our work of searching out the diligent servants of the whole people has just commenced."

Mrs. Nathan, in explaining why the society had decided to honor Miss Wald, said that from her settlement in Henry Street thirteen other settlements for nurses had been founded in New York, and the idea of having municipal nurses had been extended to many other cities.

Miss Borden, in acknowledging receipt of the medal presented to her, said that she wanted all the people to speak of "our Red Cross" just as they would speak of "our navy" or "our army." She said she accepted the medal on behalf of all Red Cross workers.

CHINESE TONGS END WAR.

Once More the Oriental Feudists Have Signed Up for Peace.

As a result of the efforts of Lian Luan Fang, Chinese Consul General in New York, and District Attorney Whitman, the two-year feud in Chinatown has been brought to an end. The rival tongs, which engaged in a three-cornered war were the On Leongs, Hip Sings, and Kim Lans, each occupying one of the three streets of the local Chinese colony. On the bulletin boards at 16 Mott Street and 18 Doyers Street yesterday long Chinese red posters were flying declaring over the seals of the three tongs and the Chinese Merchants' Association the cessation of hostilities.

After the Chinese Consul had found it impossible to get the leaders of the tongs to agree to the terms of peace, he referred the whole matter to Mr. Whitman, who instructed the peace advocates to report to him the names of all the recalcitrant feudists for the purpose of prosecuting them for blackmail and conspiracy to kill. The Kim Lans particularly held out for a large pecuniary indemnity from the Hip Sings for several members killed. After the threat of the District Attorney had been communicated to the tongs, all objections to the peaceful arrangements of the Consul General were withdrawn, with the result that yesterday's agreement was arrived at and published.

POLICE RESCUE A FARMER.

Get Him Away from Sharpers in Time to Save His Money.

Detective Griffith of the West Thirtieth Street Station was on a Madison Avenue car yesterday afternoon, when, passing Sixtieth Street, he saw three men whom he thought he recognized as professional sharpers talking to a fourth man. Griffith got off the car at the next street and came back, following the four as they went into Central Park and sat on a bench near the entrance. On his way Griffith picked up Patrolman Schaffer of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, and they accosted the four men.

The police say that the stranger described himself as a farmer, of Oakdale, L. I., and said the others had made his acquaintance on the strength of giving the Odd Fellows' greeting after they noticed a button of that order in his coat lapel. After several hours of polite intercourse, they told him that they had a "sure-thing" tip on the races. He played it for $5, and they told him he had won. Then they wanted him to plunge. They were urging him to do this when Griffith came upon them.

The three men were locked up on a charge of petty larceny. They described themselves as Thomas Flashman of 334 Lexington Avenue, Charles Bar of 216 East 116th Street, and John Moore of 310 West 135th Street.

RECLUSE PHYSICIAN DIES ON EAST SIDE

Dr. Frank Charles Passes Away in Squalid Flat—Wouldn't Call in Medical Aid.

MASTER OF 16 TONGUES

Refused to Take Payment for Helping the Sick—Made Living Tutoring Druggists.

Dr. Frank Charles died yesterday morning in a squalid two-room flat he occupied at 237 Second Avenue. On the walls of his rooms hung medical diplomas from the University of Budapest and the New York Homeopathic Medical College and two certificates, one issued by the Board of Health of San Francisco, on June 6, 1897, and the other by the Board of Health of Cook County, Illinois, on March 24, 1897, both granting him the right to practice medicine. There is also a faded picture with the words scrawled across its face, "A tribute to the good doctor from a litle girl."

Dr. Charles, those who knew him said last night, was born in Budapest, Hungary, about 60 years ago, and practiced law there in 1881. His real name, they said, they understood was Frank Caroly. To a few of his friends the doctor confided that he had at one period of his life had great trouble, which he wished to forget. He refused to tell them what it was that had darkened his life. Some said it was a woman, but this he denied.

He rented the two rooms in which he died a year and a half ago. Mrs. Rose Coleman, his landlady, said yesterday:

"He paid me $2.50 a week for the rooms, and he was always prompt with the rent. He was an eccentric man, and kept to himself most of the time.

Dr. Charles made his living by tutoring druggists and preparing them for medical examinations. He was a master of sixteen languages, and he also translated foreign medical works into English. He had few pupils, and Mrs. Coleman said he had found it difficult to get more than enough money to meet his immediate needs. Dr. Charles's library was small, and was for the most part made up of medical books, but in his rooms yesterday were found well-thumbed works of Virgil, Plato, and Aristotle.

Dr. Charles had long suffered from Bright's disease, which a few days ago reached an acute state. He engaged Joseph Handschur, a friend, of 19 East 112th Street, to come to his rooms to take care of him. Handschur, seeing how ill the doctor was, urged him either to call a physician or go to the hospital. Dr. Charles, however, insisted on prescribing for himself. He mixed some medicine and instructed Handschur when to give him doses. The doctor became very ill last Tuesday, but he refused to see a physician or go to the hospital.

"I am going to die," he said, "but I want to die in my own bed, and I do not want a physician."

During the night he became so ill that Handschur took matters into his own hands and summoned a physician to the house, who prescribed for the sick man. Handschur realized yesterday morning that Dr. Charles was dying, but before a physician could be summoned he passed away. Coroner's Physician Ray visited the house with Coroner Feinberg. Dr. Ray decided that the doctor had died of Bright's disease.

Dr. Charles did not practice medicine on the east side, but he was ever willing to help the sick and ailing who called on him for advice. Handschur said the doctor would never accept pay for these services. He was always glad, he said, to help the poor. "The doctor," said Handschur, "was especially happy if he could do something to help a sick child. He had a soft spot in his heart for the little ones."

Dr. Charles left but few effects. The Austrian Hebrew Burial and Orphan Association took charge of his body, and will bury him.

STOWAWAY ON OLYMPIC.

Gets Through All Right — Irishwomen Overboard at Queenstown.

The White Star liner Olympic arrived yesterday from Southampton via Cherbourg and Queenstown. As the largest ocean liner in service was leaving Queenstown two small boats with blue-eyed, soft-tongued young Irish women, who had lingered till the last minute to sell their home-made laces, were caught by the swell from the propellers and capsized. Women passengers on the Olympic screamed, but the boats near by picked up the young women at once, and they waved their plaid shawls and smiled to show that they were none the worse for their dip in the Cove of Cork, as the water is called.

The day after leaving the coast the Chief Steward, W. Jones, found a stowaway in the steerage, a Robert Cameron of Glasgow, 24 years old, who sent his wife and baby ahead to the United States four months ago. He had to stop in Scotland to nurse his father, who was ill in Dundee, and when his parent died recently Robert had not enough to pay his passage so he worked his way to Queenstown on a cattle boat and got on board the Olympic.

The second class and steerage passengers liked him so well that to show their sympathy a collection was taken up which amounted to $55. Cameron will go to Ellis Island to-day and after paying for his passage to the White Star Line he will have enough to assure his release from Ellis Island.

Alexander Rafter, an English farmer, died on Monday morning of heart disease and was buried at sea.

CITIZEN ACCUSES POLICEMAN

Alexander Jacobis Has Joseph Shepherd Held in $500 for Assault.

Patrolman Joseph Shepherd of the Lenox Avenue Station was held yesterday in $500 bail by Magistrate McQuade in the Harlem Police Court on a charge of assault preferred by Alexander Jacobis of 119 West 131st Street. Jacobis testified that the policeman had knocked him down six times, fracturing his nose and inflicting many bruises.

The assault, Mr. Jacobis said, took place on Lenox Avenue on the night of May 1. He was walking along the Avenue with a friend, Sterling L. Sherling, a lumber merchant of 420 East 136th Street, when the policeman made an insulting remark to him. He resented it, he said, and was knocked down. He was arrested on a charge of intoxication, but was discharged by Magistrate Levy the next morning. Then followed a complaint to the Mayor and a warrant for the policeman.

Shepherd, in his defense, said he was directing a woman to the nearest Subway station, when Jacobis came along and made an "uncalled-for remark." The arrest was not made, he said, until Jacobis had been warned twice.

WIFE ILL; ENDS HIS LIFE.

Mrs. Richer Dies, Not Knowing of Husband's Suicide.

Not knowing that her husband had committed suicide on Tuesday by throwing himself beneath the wheels of a Pennsylvania train at the South Street Station, Newark, Mrs. Samuel Richer of 69 Leslie Street, Newark, died at her home last night.

Mrs. Richer had been ill for a long time and the police believe that was the cause of Richer's throwing himself under the train. He had been told that his wife could not recover and he had become despondent.

Wall Street Barbers Win Strike.

From three to four hundred barbers in the shops in Wall Street and in Broadway below Fourteenth Street agreed, at a meeting held last night at Majestic Hall, 106 Forsyth Street, to go back to work to-day when their employers, at the instance of Joseph J. Ettor, the I. W. W. strike leader, signed an agreement making work hours from 7:30 A. M. to 7 P. M., Sundays off, and only four hours on legal holidays.

TAKE A TAXI PASS, SAID A MAN TO HIM

AND HE CHARGED HIS RIDES

But Rode Only When Necessary and Paid Up Finally in a Lump Sum —Now Confides in Grand Jury.

Police Captain William F. Day, at present in command of the West 152d Street Station, but formerly in command of a Tenderloin precinct, was a witness yesterday before the Supreme Court Grand Jury which is investigating the taxicab scandal. The investigators wanted to know how the Captain had come into possession of his "charge account" privilege with the Yellow Taxicab Company. Capt. Day, it was said, told this story:

He was walking along Broadway at Forty-fifth Street one night about 9 o'clock. A strange man accosted him. Capt. Day had never seen him before. Capt. Day did not know that the man was "Circular Joe" Vendig, confidential "outside man" for the Yellow Taxicab Company, who always ran about town with a bundle of passes for free taxicab rides in his pocket.

To the Captain's surprise this man, unknown to him, asked him how he would like to have a charge account privilege with the Yellow Taxicab Company. It did not occur to the Captain to ask for the man's identity. He accepted the man's proposal and the man turned on his heel.

A few days later a "charge account" privilege came through the mail. For nearly fifteen months Capt. Day rode in taxicabs under this arrangement. He didn't ride much—only when it was necessary. Recently he received an itemized bill for all his rides and paid in a lump sum. There was nothing wrong about this, he said.

Inspector George F. Titus, another patron of the same company with charge account privileges, again was called before the Grand Jury. He repeated the story which he told on Tuesday, that he had paid all his taxicab bills recently in a lump sum. Like Capt. Day, he said that there was nothing irregular in any of his acts.

Other witnesses were Edward Cullenton, a clerk in the License Bureau, and Benedict Holden, one of the attorneys for the Yellow Taxicab Company. Mr. Holden told Assistant District Attorney Du Vivier, who is conducting the investigation, that he received a retainer of $10,000 last year from the taxicab company. It was his first year in the city, he said. Before he came here, he said, he had practiced law in Hartford, Conn. He may be recalled to-day, along with Michael Bird, President of the Independent Taxicab Owners' Association.

With the testimony of these men, it was said, the investigation practically will be finished.

Indictments of two city officers are not expected until next week. There will be no indictments of Aldermen, it is believed, but a presentment which is intended to strike at several Aldermen, it is expected, will be handed to the court.

Bequests to Burdsall Servants.

Mrs. Irene Burdsall, who died on April 19, leaving an estate estimated as "more than $500 realty and more than $10,000 personalty," made provisions in her will, which was filed yesterday, for every servant in her employ at the time of her death, instructing her executors to give each $500. To Miss Winifred L. Mullany, whom she described as her seamstress and nurse during a long illness, she gave $5,000 as a reward for faithfulness. She also gave $1,000 each to the Madison Square Presbyterian Church and the Union Industrial Home Association for Crippled Children, and $500 to the International Sunshine Society.

FURNISHES $150,000 BAIL.

Friends of Freeman Come Forward with Securities Worth $500,000.

Albert W. Freeman, who was convicted with Julian Hawthorne and Dr. William J. Morton of using the mails to defraud through the sale of Canadian mining stock, was released yesterday in $150,000 bail pending the decision on his appeal. This is the largest amount ever given as bail in this Federal District, exceeding that demanded of Charles W. Morse by $25,000.

Sixteen men and women, who are friends of Freeman, supplied the bail, depositing in all securities with a value of $500,000. Commissioner Shields and Assistant United States Attorney Thompson were three days examining the securities. Among those who helped the promoter were his wife, who pledged the family home at Ramsey, N. J., for $20,000; Mrs. H. B. Curtis of Boston, a cousin of United States Senator Crane, who furnished $5,000; Burr E. Cartwright of Buffalo, $10,000; ex-Mayor James Shuart of Ramsey, $10,000; J. R. Muerling of this city, $20,000; Victor E. Freeman and Dr. Allan Freeman, brothers of the defendant $20,000 each; and Frank W. Savin of Port Chester, N. Y., $5,000.

In accepting the bail Judge Lacombe ordered Freeman to report daily to U. S. Marshal Henkel except Sundays, and if indisposed to telegraph. In case he should be unable to attend at the Federal Building for three days in succession a Deputy Marshal will be sent to see Freeman at his home in Ramsey.

ANNA HOLMES FOUND.

Girl Who Left Scarsdale Home Walks Into Police Headquarters.

Anna Holmes, the sixteen-year-old girl, of Scarsdale, whose mother notified the police on Tuesday that she was in New York with the avowed purpose of leaving for the Island of Trinidad, walked into Police Headquarters last night and said she had seen in the newspapers that they were looking for her. She would say nothing about her movements except that she had left her home in Scarsdale for what she considered good reason, and would not go back.

The police notified her mother at Scarsdale that she was found, and at a late hour the girl was still at Headquarters waiting for her mother to arrive.

Newark Progressives Indorse Him as Candidate for Governor.

Members of the City Progressive Committee of Newark have indorsed ex-State Senator Everett Colby as a candidate for the nomination for Governor of New Jersey. The members of the committee did not make the indorsement as a committee, but got together as "citizens" and adopted a resolution expressing their desire that Mr. Colby should become a candidate. They appointed themselves a committee to request him to make the run.

Ex-Senator Colby refused to say anything about the matter yesterday, except that he was not a candidate.
